'GAG RULE' NOW CRY OF THE REPUBLICANS

Their Turn, Led by Cannon, to Accuse Democrats of Practicing Czarlike Methods.

ALL-SUMMER SESSION LIKELY

Senators Expect It to Last Till September—Bryan Mixing in Choice of Minority Leadership.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Onlookers in the House galleries to-day enjoyed the amusing spectacle of Republican members accusing the Democrats, now in control, of applying "gag rule," their chief complaint against the Republicans when Mr. Cannon was Speaker. The subject of controversy was the new rules, which the Democratic Committee on Rules had brought in and proposed with a few hours' debate to jam through after the example so often set for them by the gentle Mr. Dalzell and the benevolent ex-Speaker, Mr. Cannon. When Mr. Henry, the new Chairman of the Rules Committee, moved a resolution to close debate to-day and that there should be no amendments separately, but that the only amendment to be permitted should be a blanket substitute in bulk, the minority gave evident signs of pain, and Mr. Mann, the minority leader, showed what he could do in an off-hand way in conducting a filibuster. But he could at best only force two roll calls, and the result was the adoption, by a vote of 205 to 137, of the Henry resolution.

The debate was mainly taken up by the Republicans. The star speech of the day came from Mr. Cannon, who was at his best, and dealt with his friends across the aisle in a manner to make everybody cheer again and again at his fine thrusts and skillful assaults. He was in fine fettle, and when at one point he remarked: "I am still a member of the House, and I never felt less like dying than I do right now," both sides raised a shout that was good to hear.

The ex-Speaker was glad to have the chance to get back at his tormentors for their oft-recurring references to his rulings and his alleged unfairness. On the whole, he said, the new rules were good. The Holman retrenchment rule, he thought, would come home to the friends of the majority to roost with unpleasant consequences. He said that while he was not a prophet nor the son of a prophet, he ventured to prophesy that that rule would serve to increase expenditures and would put on the statute books much vicious legislation.

Cannon Calls Henry Czar.

The manner in which the new Chairman of Rules had run the steamroller over the minority led Mr. Cannon to dwell in sarcastic manner on the fact and to refer to him repeatedly as "Czar" Henry. At one point he twitted Speaker Clark with his loss of the immemorial prerogatives of the Speaker—the power to appoint committees and to serve on the Rules Committee.

"If you only had been able to retain that place on the Rules Committee you might have been a Czar," said the ex-Speaker with a deep bow in mock obeisance to the Speaker, at which Mr. Clark smiled broadly.

There were innumerable instances cited by different members to show the abuse of the Holman retrenchment rule, where by striking off a dollar or a thousand dollars from a large appropriation bad general legislation not entirely germane had been put through. Mr. Dalzell reviewed the history of the revisions of the rules during Republican administration, and charged that the present rules were in the main those of Republican Congresses, but in the few proposed modifications had not been improved.

Mr. Norris of Nebraska, for the insurgents, eloquently resented the gag rule resolution, which prevented separate amendments. He urged that the rules should provide for a committee on rules to be made up geographically by a division of the States of the Union into nine groups, and declared that there should be a rule against executive sessions of committees. The entire Republican side cheered his utterances to the echo, something that sounded peculiarly strange to those who witnessed the stirring scenes during the struggle to overrule the Speaker a year ago.

The rules were adopted finally by a viva voce vote, no further attempt at filibustering being made.

What the Rules Are.

To a great extent the new rules are a repetition of those that have been handed down by many Congresses in the past. The Democrats assert that their greatest reform is in taking away from the Speaker his power to appoint committees and to designate the Chairman of each committee. The new rules provide for the election of committees and their Chairmen.

The second reform is a return to the former Democratic practice of permitting legislation on appropriation bills when that legislation tends to reduce the expenditures of the Government.

While the House is already down at hard work on matters of organization, and will soon plunge into general legislation, the Senators are disposed to do nothing until the House sends up measures for consideration. Senator Root was quoted about the Senate this morning as predicting that the session would last until September, and others guess about the same. Meanwhile it is said that bills, save a few of private character, will not be introduced except perhaps in obedience to requests from home.

Progressive Republican Senators received good representation on the Steering Committee and the Committee on Committees, which were appointed to-day by Senator Cullom, permanent Chairman of the caucus. This fact is received generally as indicating that the two factions in the Republican Party intend to adopt tactics of conciliation. The committees follow:

Steering—Cullom of Illinois, Gallinger, New Hampshire; Clark, Wyoming; Nelson, Minnesota; Gamble, South Dakota; Brandegee, Connecticut; Smith, Michigan; Borah, Idaho; Brown, Nebraska; Briggs, New Jersey, and Jones, Washington.

On Committees—Gallinger of New Hampshire, Lodge, Massachusetts; Warren, Wyoming; Penrose, Pennsylvania; Heyburn, Idaho; Smoot, Utah; La Follette, Wisconsin; Bourne, Oregon; Cummins, Iowa; Bradley, Kentucky, and Bristow, Kansas.

Bryan Takes a Hand.

Whether forty-one Senators constituting the Democratic Party in the Senate shall support a conservative or a progressive policy during the present session of Congress formed the subject of an earnest and animated conference participated in to-day by about fifteen Democratic Senators. The meeting was held in the committee rooms of Senator Stone of Missouri.

The gathering grew out of the visit of William J. Bryan, and was due to the prospect that Senator Martin of Virginia would be elected Chairman of the Democratic Senatorial caucus. The Nebraska leader is understood to have counseled his intimate Senatorial friends to select some other Senator more inclined toward the Bryan policies.

WARRANT OUT FOR BURRIAN.

Tenor Declared Fugitive from Justice by German Police on Husband's Plea.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 5.—Newspapers here announce that the German police have issued a warrant for the arrest of Carl Burrian, the tenor of the Dresden Royal Opera, who eloped to America two years ago with the wife of a Dresden merchant. The husband of this lady, it appears, has been following his wife and her singer sweetheart all around Europe ever since their return from the United States, but Burrian has always managed to avoid him.

Husbands in Germany have the right to demand the arrest of men who interfere with their domestic happiness, and Burrian, who is a Bohemian, has now been officially declared a fugitive from justice. His present whereabouts are unknown, but he will be arrested the moment he ventures to cross the German frontier.

Carl Burrian, sailed from New York on the George Washington on Feb. 25 and was expected to go directly to Dresden to fill a contract there. In fact the Dresden Opera House has been in distress for some time on account of the illness of several tenors and was counting on Mr. Burrian, whose professional standing in Germany is above that of all other tenors, to finish the season.

Developments have made that impossible, however, and at present the whereabouts of Mr. Burrian seem to be unknown. The tenor sang in New York this season his usual number of performances in the German works, including the rôles of Siegfried, Siegmund, and Parsifal.

INDIANA TRAIN HELD UP.

Lone Bandit Robs Passengers of $200 and Escapes at Muncie.

Special to The New York Times.

MUNCIE, Ind., April 5.—Westbound Passenger Train 27 on the Big Four Railroad was held up near here by a lone robber at 7:30 o'clock to-night and ten of the fifty passengers were robbed of $200 in cash.

The robber wore a mask, which fell off just as he was backing out of the coach in the centre of Muncie. He escaped, but the police have a good description of him.

One passenger fired a shot at the retreating bandit, and as he was disappearing in the dark several other men, recovering from their fright and astonishment, drew revolvers and also fired. It is not believed any of the bullets took effect.

Train 27 is a fast express, making stops only at county seats and the larger points. It is made up of only one vestibuled coach drawn at the rear, the remainder being express cars. The bandit, it is believed, boarded the train at Winchester, staying on the steps of the front vestibule.

At Selma, six miles east of Muncie, the passengers heard a crash as he broke the pane in a vestibule door. They had various notions of what had happened, many of them thinking a tramp had broken a beer bottle on the steps.

Benjamin Bank, a traveling salesman of Detroit, went forward to investigate, and as he reached the end of the car a man about five feet nine inches in height, weighing about 150 pounds, and wearing a bandana handkerchief over his face opened the door, covered him with a revolver, and shouted, "Hands up, everybody!"

Bank complied instantly. Then the bandit shouted, "Come forward, everybody, shell out."

BOY ROBS TEACHER.

Captured After Warm Daylight Chase in the Bronx.

Small boys and girls in the primary classes of Miss Bernice Wolgonat and Miss Nora Lenihan filled the yard of Public School 30, Brook Avenue and 141st Street, shortly before noon yesterday, enjoying a recess, when a tall youngster, evidently much older than the boys who attend the primary classes, which otherwise are devoted to girls, hurried through the yard and out the Brook Avenue entrance. An instant later John Kelly, the janitor, ran into the yard calling to the teachers to learn which way the boy had gone.

"He's a thief," cried the janitor. "I saw him coming out of your room, Miss Wolgonat," and as he ran into Brook Avenue after the boy, Miss Wolgonat and Miss Lenihan, hatless and coatless, followed. Miss Ellen Kane and Miss Mary McCarthy, other teachers, joined also in the chase.

The boy had a lead of half a block and he sped down Brook Avenue until, at 139th Street, he saw Policeman Lynch of the Alexander Avenue Station less than a block ahead. Then he turned into 139th Street and ran toward Willis Avenue. Kelly, the policeman, and the teachers followed, and at Willis Avenue the young women overtook him. The boy was quiet enough, seeing that he was caught, and Lynch took him to the station house.

There $9.01 was found in his pockets. Miss Wolgonat and Miss Lenihan, who had returned to the school, came to the station to report that they had been robbed, the first of $4.17 and the latter of 75 cents. It was learned that other teachers in Schools 37 and 9, in 145th Street and 138th Street between Brook and Willis Avenues, had also been robbed. The boy, who said he was Leonard Precniso, 16 years old, of 315 East 114th Street, was locked up.

TRAILING WOMAN SMUGGLER.

Evaded the Customs with False Bottom Trunks—Now in California.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, April 5.—Harvey Kirkpatrick of the United States Secret Service is in this city shadowing a woman who is suspected of smuggling gowns into this country through New York.

The suspect learned that she was being watched, and left San Diego suddenly yesterday morning. Her name could not be learned. She went to San Diego two weeks ago. Her home is said to be at Lenox, Mass., and that she is also well known socially in New York.

The woman spent last Fall in Europe, and returned with a large number of trunks. These were examined, but it has since developed that in a secret bottom in each of the trunks a number of handsome Parisian gowns were hidden. Soon after the woman had evaded the Customs Inspectors at New York she boasted of her achievements. According to her own statement the gowns were valued at several thousand dollars, and she planned to wear them on her present visit to the Pacific coast.

Collector Loeb learned of her plans and upon his request Kirkpatrick was assigned on the case, and he trailed the woman across the continent.

$50,000 FUND RAISED FOR M'CLELLAN CHAIR

Friends of the ex-Mayor Would Make Him a Professor at Princeton.

OFFER TO TRUSTEES PENDING

Some Talk of Opposition, but No Grounds for It Set Forth—Metz and J. J. Martin Raised the Fund.

It became known yesterday that a fund of $50,000, raised by friends of ex-Mayor George B. McClellan, was paid over to Princeton University a few days ago, the fund being offered to the Trustees of the University to establish a Professorship of Public Affairs, to which it is proposed the Trustees shall call Mr. McClellan.

Ex-City Controller Herman A. Metz and ex-City Chamberlain James J. Martin were the men active in raising the fund. Mr. Martin said last night that he and Mr. Metz were a committee of two. Contributions have been solicited for a period of more than a year; in fact, the project has been under way ever since Mr. McClellan completed his second term in the Mayoralty.

Mr. Martin, to whom Mr. Metz referred inquirers about the fund, said last night that the publicity given to it was premature. The information, he said, should come from Princeton, when the Trustees of the university acted on the question whether or not the fund should be accepted. Mr. Martin admitted that the fund was solicited with Mr. McClellan's knowledge and consent, and that the solicitation was not begun until certain influential members of the Princeton University Board of Trustees had been consulted.

Among those mentioned yesterday as having contributed to the fund was J. Pierpont Morgan. Mr. Martin declined to confirm or deny this report, saying that he would not give out any list of contributors. It was stated on good authority that the original project was to collect a fund of $100,000, but this was found to be impracticable.

Since the death of President Cleveland Mr. McClellan has received an annual appointment to the Stafford Little lectureship on public affairs, and has delivered two lectures each year. This lectureship is supported by the income of a gift of $10,000. No opposition to this appointment developed, but last night it became known that the new project to make Mr. McClellan a full professor of Princeton has aroused some antagonism, which has already taken the form of communications to members of the Board of Trustees, protesting against acceptance of the $50,000 gift. On what grounds this opposition is based did not become public in any authoritative form.

Mr. McClellan is well acquainted in Princeton, where he has made his Summer home, and maintains a house for week-ends throughout the year. He is an intimate personal friend of ex-President Woodrow Wilson, now Governor of New Jersey, a post once held by his father, Gen. McClellan, and with professors and Trustees of Princeton University. At a dinner in his honor in this city on April 20, 1909, he was hailed as Princeton's most illustrious living graduate, and a high personal tribute was paid to him by President Wilson.

Mr. McClellan graduated from Princeton with honors in 1886, the year after his father's death, and twenty-one years after his own birth at Dresden. He was graduated from the Columbia Law School in 1890, and was admitted to the bar in 1892 after reading law in the office of Henry & F. A. McCloskey. While he studied law he held the post of Treasurer of the Brooklyn Bridge. He married Miss Georgianna Heckscher in 1889 at Newport. Previous to his appointment as Treasurer of the Brooklyn Bridge he had been a reporter.

He was elected President of the Board of Aldermen in 1892, and subsequently went to Congress from the Twelfth District. In 1903 he was elected Mayor for two years. The campaign of 1905, when he ran against William Randolph Hearst for re-election to a term of four years, and the legal struggle over the count in that election are still familiar to New Yorkers.

John L. Cadwalader of the Princeton University Board of Trustees was asked last night about the fund which had been raised to make Mr. McClellan a Professor at Princeton. He said:

"I am unable to express any opinion as to the acceptance of the fund. The trustees have not met, and I have not seen the proposal."

Mr. Cadwalader is one of the trustees with whom Mr. McClellan has been especially friendly.

It was impossible to learn anything at Princeton last night about the probability of the fund being accepted. One of the resident Trustees declined to talk about the McClellan professorship fund, while the other said that anything to be made public would be given out after the meeting of the Trustees next Thursday. There was some comment to the effect that probably the proposal of Mr. McClellan's friends was to insure his selection to the McCormick Professorship of Jurisprudence and Politics, left vacant by the resignation of President Wilson.

Mr. McClellan is now in Europe. His exact whereabouts were unknown to his friends last night. His mail is being sent to the Paris office of a banking firm.

COX JUDGE DENIES BIAS.

Dickson Overrules Prosecutor's Affidavit Against Him in Perjury Trial.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 5.—Announcing that he was neither biased for nor prejudiced against either the prosecution or the defense in the case of George B. Cox, on trial charged with perjury, Common Pleas Judge William Dickson to-day overruled an affidavit charging him with "bias and prejudice," which was filed by Prosecutor Henry T. Hunt, and immediately afterward ordered the case to proceed.

Judge Dickson announced that the prosecutor had waited too long to file his affidavit and that it should have been filed when Presiding Judge Hunt appointed him to occupy the place made vacant by the swearing off the bench of Judge Frank Gorman.

The first matter in the trial of Cox to come before the new Judge was a plea by Cox's attorneys to have stricken from the files the motion for a change of venue which was granted by Judge Gorman shortly after the indictment against Cox was found. After allowing the filing of several affidavits which related to the procedure used by Gorman in granting the change of venue, Judge Dickson adjourned court for the day and announced that he would render a decision on the motion to strike the change of venue from the files to-morrow morning.

Dr. Murlin to Head Boston University.

MERRIAM'S FRIENDS TO PUT UP $150,000

Rosenwald and Crane Agreed to Meet Any Deficiency in Campaign Fund.

HARRISON TALKS OF PLANS

Milwaukee Socialists Lose—Tacoma Must Hold Another Election—Boise, Idaho, Goes Republican.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 5.—It became known to-day that instead of $57,404, as officially given out the night before election, Prof. Merriam's unsuccessful campaign for the Mayoralty cost no less than $230,000. Of this large sum of money required to carry the campaign up to and including election day it is said here that Julius Rosenwald, President of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Charles R. Crane, who are declared to have "underwritten" the Merriam campaign, will be called upon to make good a deficiency of $150,000, or $75,000 each.

Charles R. Crane is a son of R. T. Crane, the multimillionaire elevator builder, whom President Taft in the Fall of 1909 appointed Minister to China, but whose loquacity prevented his getting any nearer his post than San Francisco.

The statement is also made on apparently good authority that the list of contributions to the Merriam fund was juggled in order to cover up the sources of the funds. This assertion was based on the declaration that several of the contributors whose names appeared on the official list had given much larger amounts than indicated.

The statement is made that Victor F. Lawson, publisher of The Daily News, which was a champion of the professor, had contributed $10,000 to Merriam's fund. The official statement showed Mr. Lawson to have given $100.

Harold F. McCormick, whose name appeared on the list with a contribution of $5,000, is said to have given $10,000. Mr. McCormick had nothing to say regarding the matter to-day, referring the whole thing to Julius Rosenwald.

Charles R. Crane was credited with a donation of $5,000, but it is said that Mr. Crane had given $10,000.

Mr. Rosenwald was listed as having contributed $10,000. Neither Mr. Crane nor Mr. Rosenwald could be found to-day.

"I propose to give to Chicago a Democratic administration," said Mayor-elect Carter H. Harrison last night, after the returns from yesterday's election were all in. "I shall be personally responsible for the conduct of departments, and I shall name men for the heads of departments who are personally known to me and whom I consider my personal friends. That has been my policy in times past. It is a perfectly safe forecast that there will be an entirely new list of cabinet officers.

"My promise is not out to any one for any appointive position," the Mayor-elect said. "No promises have been made of any kind. I have chosen no one for anything, and no one will know who is on the list until it is submitted to the city council. Any statements to the contrary, emanating from any source, will be incorrect."

While the Democrats have made a gain in the city council, and will have a majority of twelve instead of the six they have had during the last year, it is said that the non-partisan organization of committees, which has been the custom for fifteen years, will still prevail. A sufficient number of the incoming Aldermen have signed a pledge to stand by the non-partisan organization to insure a two-thirds vote when the question comes up for final decision. The council will stand forty-one Democrats to twenty-nine Republicans.

TACOMA, April 5.—In a special election yesterday to recall Mayor A. V. Fawcett, none of the three candidates received a majority of the votes. As a result a second election will be held on April 18, when Mayor Fawcett and W. W. Seymour will be the opposing candidates. In the balloting yesterday Seymour received 8,665 votes, Fawcett 7,362, and A. H. Barth, Socialist, 3,303. A majority of the votes polled was necessary for the election. The newly enfranchised women took an active part in yesterday's election.

BOISE, Idaho, April 5.—The Republicans elected the Mayor of this city yesterday by a majority of 975 over the Democratic candidate. In Pocatello the Democrats elected a majority of the Council.

MILWAUKEE SOCIALISTS BEATEN

Majority Against Their Candidate for Judge Largest on Record.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 5.—The wildest dreams of the opponents of the Socialists were more than fulfilled by the results of the election. The majority against the Socialist candidate for Judge was 14,000, a figure never before reached even in the most one-sided campaigns.

The Socialists failed to carry the proposition to issue loan certificates for $1,000,000 for a municipal railway terminal. The proposal to issue bonds for $50,000 on the terminal was defeated.

Both projects were defeated by from 3,000 to 4,000, although never before in Milwaukee history have the voters refused to uphold a bond issue approved by the Council, and even yesterday they voted an issue of $300,000 for more schools by 4,000 majority.

MANITOWOC, Wis., April 5.—Manitowoc has returned to Socialism by electing Henry Stolze, Jr., Mayor, by a plurality of 149 over Isaac Craite, Democrat. Socialists elected one Alderman and one Supervisor.

At Two Rivers, where Socialism has held for several years, the Socialists were defeated completely.

KILLS G. A. R. APPROPRIATION

Dix Vetoes Bill Giving $50,000 for Encampment at Rochester.

ALBANY, April 5.—Gov. Dix to-day vetoed the bill of Assemblyman C. W. Phillips appropriating $50,000 for the promotion of the National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held in Rochester in August.

The Governor also vetoed a Brooklyn escheat bill of Assemblyman Schifferdecker on the ground that it is "unnecessary special legislation."

120,000 PAY TRIBUTE TO THE FIRE VICTIMS

THRONGS ALONG THE LINE

Leaders in the Suffrage Movement, Undismayed by the Weather, Join in the Line of March.

Rose Schneiderman, the slip of a girl whose eloqence stirred the Metropolitan Opera House mass meeting on Sunday, brought tears to the eyes of thousands yesterday as they stood along Fifth Avenue in a drifting rain, watching the funeral parade for the shirtwaist workers who perished in the Washington Place fire.

Little Miss Schneiderman had made many speeches since the Asch Building fire; workers everywhere had become acquainted with her. Hatless and without raincoat she tried to trudge along in the dripping procession, near its head. But long before it had reached its uptown destination at Thirty-fifth Street her feet began to falter.

Mary Dreier, President of the Women's Trade Union League, noticed that the girl was lagging behind her comrades in a line of eight, and took hold of her arm. Helen Marot, Secretary of the league, grasped her by the other arm, and the three, who more than any others have been in the limelight since the Ash Building fire, trudged on. None had umbrellas, and only one a raincoat. In front of them was a platoon of police, a funeral car laden with floral wreaths, with six white horses to draw it, and a score of fire survivors, one of whom carried a waistmakers' banner.

The crowds, which numbered, the police estimated, about 400,000, while a third of that number were in the line of march, everywhere recognized the girl who was being helped along. Her name ran from lip to lip along the curb lines. Men pressed close to catch a glimpse of her, and among the women, who outnumbered the men on the sidewalks as they did in the line of march, there were few dry eyes.

The parade, declared by the leaders to be the largest demonstration ever made here by working people, practically emptied the downtown and Brooklyn lofts and factories. Its numbers were at first largely underestimated, as it was thought the rain would keep most of the paraders away. But when, an hour later than the scheduled time for starting, a squad of traffic policemen headed into Washington Square from the south side, and another squad took its place on the northern edge, with a line of drenched paraders stretching out behind in both directions, estimators began to revise their figures. From 10,000, at which they started, they raised the figures to 100,000, and then to 120,000.

Difficulties of getting through crowded downtown streets and passing fire lines drawn about a burning building had detained the downtown section, which worked its way up to Washington Square from Rutgers Square, arriving at 3 o'clock instead of 2 as planned. Similar troubles had delayed the uptown section which had formed at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-second Street. Once in Washington Square, the consolidated columns began the march up Fifth Avenue at 3:40 o'clock, and it required four hours after the first file of eight had left for the last file to pass under the Washington Arch.

There were no propagandist banners and no bands. The intention of the leaders to make the occasion one for the expression of the working people's grief was complied with, but only by the rigid censorship of banners which some had brought to the line of procession. The National colors, draped in mourning, and union banners similarly draped, marked the headquarters of the various divisions. Girls, where the unions were composed of women, carried their banners throughout the line of march, and then would not admit that they were exhausted. On their hats and around their arms many wore bands of black ribbon.

At Thirty-fifth Street the parade turned into Fourth Avenue and then continued to Madison Square, where they dispersed, every parader thoroughly drenched by the drifting rain and mist.

While the parade was in progress a funeral procession, consisting of eight black hearses, with white trimmings, carrying the bodies of six unidentified women and a man, left the Morgue, at the foot of East Twenty-sixth Street. Thousands of people who had been attracted by the funeral notice watched the procession on its way to the Twenty-third Street ferries, and thousands more from Brownsville lined the streets through which the procession passed from the Brooklyn ferry slip to the Cypress Hills Cemetery.

Inspector Sweeney, from Brooklyn, and a force of seventy-five men were out to see that there was no disorder. They confiscated about 1,000 copies of an inflammatory circular.

"Never forgive the enemies of our class," they read. "If political office holders refuse to prosecute guilty capitalists, we must act as avengers of our comrades' blood." The rest of the circular was an appeal for money to appeal the case of a convict named Vincent Buccafori, now serving a ten-year sentence for killing the foreman of a shoe manufacturing plant in which he worked.

Mrs. Raymond Robins of Chicago, National President of the Women's Trade Union League, was a marcher in the parade. She had come from Chicago especially to participate in it. With her was Eleanora O'Reilly, who is to have charge of the factory inspections on which demands for specific changes looking to better fire protection are to be based.

Just behind the league officials marched the suffragists and suffragettes, and then came the Socialists. Of the suffrafists there was one who wore a conspicuously elaborate gown and carried a pink umbrella. She marched with the uptown section to Washington Square, and then, while waiting for the consolidation of the two lines, she deserted. Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch marched the entire route at the expense of her gown, and with her marched Dr. Helen Knight, Mrs. Sophia Kramer, Mrs. Jennette Rankin, Mrs. John Rodgers, and many others of the various suffragist organizations.

Through the east side, where sympathy with the "silent parade" was most tense, handkerchiefs waved from windows on both sides of the streets. In Fifth Avenue the only drapings observed were on the Church of the Ascension, whose doors were hung with American flags and crêpe.

While thousands of mourners were gathered at the graves in Cypress Hills Cemetery, Brooklyn, in which the unidentified bodies of seven victims of the Asch Building fire were buried, Brownsville's grief was evinced by the closing of all clothing factories, a parade in which 5,000 girls and men took part, and several memorial meetings.

WHITMAN'S CASE READY.

District Attorney Whitman, who is preparing to submit data concerning the Asch building fire to the Grand Jury to-morrow, held a conference yesterday with State Factory Inspector G. I. Harmon, who inspected the Asch building on Feb. 27, a month before the fire. Mr. Harmon made a long statement in the form of an affidavit to the District Attorney.

Coroner Holtzhauser announced yesterday that he will hold his inquest on Monday, and that District Attorney Whitman will be present to examine witnesses.

The relief funds in the hands of Mayor Gaynor and Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer of the Red Cross, were increased by yesterday's donations to $80,205.65.

In aid of the fire sufferers a benefit will be given at the Bronx Theatre, at 150th Street and Melrose Avenue, on Saturday evening, April 22.

W. W. ASTOR BUYS OBSERVER.

Gets Unionist Organ Whose Editor Raised American Dollar Cry.

LONDON, April 5.—It is announced that William Waldorf Astor has acquired The Observer newspaper.

The Observer is a Unionist organ and is published on Sunday.

The Observer, which is one of Lord Northcliffe's papers, has been edited by J. L. Garvin, one of the best known of Unionist publicists, since 1908. Mr. Garvin has been a contributor also to The Daily Telegraph since 1899.

In the course of the recent British Parliamentary campaign an editorial in The Daily Telegraph, credited to Mr. Garvin, said:

"Mr. Redmond, with $200,000 in hand, returns to this country for the work of tearing down the British Constitution with American money. Tell it to the counties. Tell it to the boroughs. Rub it in throughout the constituencies.

"Explain it wherever Englishmen are gathered together in public or private. Interpret it to the plain man in whose temperament sleeps yet a little of the old Adam of British patriotism, and ask him whether a more humiliating victory has ever been achieved over the whole character of a great people than that which the Ministerialists propose to purchase by the aid of the Molly McGuires and transatlantic subsidies."

PUBLICITY AID TO CHURCH.

New York Pastor Tells New England Clergymen to Advertise.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 5.—"Advertise your churches in the newspapers and keep in touch with newspaper men," is the advice the Rev. C. F. Reisner, D. D., pastor of Grace Church, New York, gave the assembled clergymen at the New England annual conference of Methodist churches, held in this city to-day.

"It is a great mistake for some clergymen to keep aloof from newspaper men and refuse to be interviewed," said Dr. Reisner. "Why, everybody reads the newspapers and if you want to get your interests before the public you must advertise in this important agency. They will always treat you fairly, if you give them reason for doing so. Why I never could get a congregation in my New York church did I not get the newspapers on my side."

COHALAN NOT RECOMMENDED

Dix to be Guided by Bar Association in Filling O'Gorman's Place.

ALBANY, April 5.—Gov. Dix said to-day that he had not received any recommendation for the appointment of Daniel F. Cohalan of New York as Supreme Court Justice to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Justice James A. O'Gorman as United States Senator.

The Governor will be guided largely in filling the vacancy by recommendations which he expects to receive from the New York City Bar Association.

OEHME SETTLES FOR $18,000.

Art Dealer Gives This Sum in Compromise with the Government.

It was learned yesterday that Julius Oehme, the veteran art dealer at 467 Fifth Avenue, whose stock of paintings—eighty-nine in all—were under seizure for alleged undervaluation, when on Jan. 27 they were publicly auctioned off at the American Art Galleries sale, has made a satisfactory settlement with the Government.

As a result of the compromise, the Government has collected $18,000 out of the fund of $43,000, which was the net proceeds of such of the paintings as were imported from abroad. The difference between the settlement figure and the $43,000 fund has been surrendered to Oehme, and it is understood that the forfeiture and condemnation suit will be withdrawn.

NO CHILDREN RULE BROKEN.

Four Babies in a Week in a Big Flatbush Apartment House.

Westminster Court is an elaborate apartment house at 1,618 Beverly Road of Flatbush, and A. R. Nemocks, the owner, lives there. The thing to do now is to ask him jocosely:

"Mr. Nemocks, what about your little rule that no children shall be allowed in any of the twenty-two apartments?"

Whereat he will avert his face to hide a lurking grin. For the rule has been flagrantly violated several times lately. On Wednesday last week Howard McFarland became the father of a boy. Three days later W. J. Ecks was similarly blessed. On Sunday Harold Beals announced the arrival of a girl, and, not to be outdone, Walter Heff told yesterday of a young son. All the babies are doing well.

FORCED SUBWAY TRAIN ON.

Passengers Refused to Change Cars Before It Reached the Marked Station.

Passengers on a Broadway local Subway train marked Dyckman Street became indignant last night about 6:30 when at 137th Street station the guards poked their heads into the doors and cried:

"Last stop! All out!"

"This train is marked to go to Dyckman Street, and it is going to go there even if we have to sit in it all night," an irate passenger insisted.

Then the guards announced that the train was disabled.

"It hasn't given any evidence of being disabled," the stern passenger replied, still refusing to move, and most of the passengers on the train staying with him.

It all ended by the train staying in the station about fifteen minutes with all the passengers remaining in their seats and with all the guards out on the station platform consulting with the train starter. Finally the starter ordered the guards back into the train and the train went with its triumphant passengers all the way to Dyckman Street.

SHOT INTO STUDIO WINDOW.

Missed Miss Helen Kinnicutt—Jealous Porter Thought to Have Fired It.

William Kinnicutt, Superintendent of the Studio Apartments, Sixty-seventh Street and Lexington Avenue, his 19-year-old daughter, Helen, and William F. Barnum of 347 East 120th Street, hurried into the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station last night, all of them very much excited.

They said that while Miss Kinnicutt and Mr. Barnum had been seated in the reception room of the apartment house some one had broken the window looking out into the street and an instant afterward there had been the report of a revolver shot and a bullet had entered the wall just above Miss Kinnicutt's head.

Mr. Kinnicutt told the police that several years ago he had been compelled to discharge a porter who had seemed infatuated with Miss Kinnicutt and he suspected that it was the porter who, seeing Miss Kinnicutt and Mr. Barnum together, had fired the shot. He gave a description of the man to Detectives Owens and McManus, and they set out to search for him.

James Murphy, a driver, of 235 East Sixty-ninth Street, was arrested later on suspicion that he had fired the shot. He denied it.

LISTS LAWBREAKERS FOR THE GRAND JURY

Magistrate Corrigan as a Witness Also Supplies the Addresses of Unlawful Houses.

McADOO GIVES NEW FIGURES

Statistics Sent to the Mayor to Discredit Those Corrigan Prepared—Drinks an Item in Cost of Raids.

The investigation of the so-called crime wave in this city developed rapidly yesterday Magistrate Corrigan, who has attacked the police for inefficiency and placed responsibility upon the Mayor, was before the Special Grand Jury for several hours. As a result of information, the Magistrate supplied concerning the trial of Inspector John J. O'Brien for letting Coney Island run "wide open" last Summer, the Grand Jury will call for the minutes of the trial and subpoena O'Brien and other witnesses, including, it was said, John Purroy Mitchel, who was Acting Mayor when Coney Island felt the weight of his displeasure.

In his speech at the City Club last Saturday Magistrate Corrigan intimated that Police Commissioner Cropsey was withholding the decision in the O'Brien case for fear of implicating a high city official. The Grand Jury will sift this suspicion to the bottom.

Mayor Gaynor spoke sharply to a delegation of men and women who called at the City Hall yesterday to protest about conditions in Morningside Park. Park Commisioner Stover agreed that conditions in all the parks were bad, principally through lack of police protection, and said that he had a plan of installing a curfew bell to ring everybody out of the parks at 8 o'clock at night.

Corrigan Holds the Prisoners.

Some people were saying yesterday that the raid which Deputy Commissioner Flynn made upon the Delaware Social Club, at 155 Allen Street, Tuesday night was for the purpose of embarrassing Magistrate Corrigan. The Magistrate had mentioned this place as a meeting place for crooks and gamblers. It was expected that the prisoners taken there must be brought before Magistrate Corrigan, so it is said, who is sitting in the Essex Market Police Court this week, and that the Magistrate would have to discharge them all, thus refuting his own statements. If such was the intention, it did not carry, for the Magistrate held "Yiddle" November, alias Harry Smith, on three charges and eleven others for disorderly conduct.

November was asked if he did not call on the Mayor at the City Hall the afternoon before the raid, but he denied it. Mayor Gaynor also denied that November had been to see him.

First Deputy Police Commissioner Clement J. Driscoll unwittingly backed up Magistrate Corrigan's statements that the city was infested with beggars, panhandlers and women of the street. The "squeal book" of the old Tenderloin Police Station was examined by the Grand Jury, and in it was found an entry made by Commissioner Driscoll on March 27 to the effect that he had visited the precinct and had found many women patrolling Broadway and many beggars out. The entry was signed by Mr. Driscoll.

Other witnesses made corroborative statement that the city was beset by crooks, and that the police were unable to suppress them.

This is a letter which Chief Magistrate McAdoo sent to Mayor Gaynor. The statement and table he mentions as appearing in THE NEW YORK TIMES were made by Magistrate Corrigan:

McAdoo Disputes Corrigan.

Office of Chief City Magistrate,
First Division, City of New York,
300 Mulberry Street, Manhattan,
New York, April 3, 1911.

My Dear Mayor Gaynor: My attention has been called to a statement published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Sunday which is intended to show the work of the Night Court for Women, as follows:

"Another interesting table shows what is being done with the women of the street. They have never been so free from molestation as now. This is a comparative table of the disposition of cases in September, 1909, and for the same month in 1910:

	1909.	1910.
Discharged	631	417
Workhouse	1	27
Fined $1 to $10	545	9
Probation	5	..
Good behavior bond	2	..
House of Good Shepherd	1	..
New York Magdalen and Benevolent Society	..	1
Hospital	..	21
Total arraignments	1,185	473
Total convictions	554	58
Total commitments	2	49

These figures are grossly inaccurate, as you will see by the report herewith inclosed. Instead of 417 having been discharged in the month of September the total arraignments in that court were 473, of which 263 were convicted and sentenced by the Magistrates for various offenses of which the court had summary jurisdiction; one was held for a felony, 24 for misdemeanors, and 183 were discharged.

Reasons for the Figures.

Coupled with the charge that no effort is being made to keep the streets free from these women nor to abate the indecencies and dangers of the nuisance, the month of September was evidently selected because of the small number of convictions for this form of disorderly conduct.

You will notice by the tables that during the months of September and October the figures had reached the minimum, but afterward they jumped suddenly up and have maintained a high level ever since. The reason why there were so few women brought to the Night Court during the months of September and October for this charge was because, after the new law went into effect these women who frequent the streets were led to believe, from statements made to them, that the physical examination prescribed by Section 79 and the consequences to them were very serious. Justice Bischoff declared that part of the law unconstitutional and the physical examinations were thereupon discontinued.

Of the 1,525 convicted since Sept. 1, the following is the disposition of the cases:

Fined	270
Probation	95
Discharged	18
Bedford Reformatory	24
House of Mercy	1
Magdalen Home	7
Hospital	79
Reprimand	4
$200 bonds, to keep the peace six months	1
Pending	2
Total	1,525

Prior to the 1st day of September, 1910, there were no records available to show the number of women arrested, convicted, or discharged, as to this particular offense.

Very sincerely yours,
WILLIAM McADOO,
Chief City Magistrate.

Hon. William J. Gaynor, Mayor.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.
April 5, 1911.

Dear Judge McAdoo: Your letter of April 3 covering the misstatements concerning the number of women brought into the Night Court and dealt with there is at hand. It gives an accurate and official statement of the whole matter, showing the efficiency with which it has been handled, but that is not the kind of statements which are now desired by the few people who are filling the newspapers with their misstatements. Their heads are filled with what they call vice, and that word vice has to them only one meaning. How they got their heads so filled with that kind of vice is astonishng. I will give your letter out, but I fear you will find that it will receive very little attention at this time in certain quarters.

Sincerely yours, W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
Hon. William McAdoo, Chief City Magistrate, First Division, New York City.

The Grand Jury is said to have been much impressed with Magistrate Corrigan's testimony. He gave lists of law breakers and law-breaking places, it is said, that he mentioned in his City Club speech, and added other information of a specific nature which will not be made known until it has been corroborated.

It was said that Deputy Commissioner Driscoll would be called to give evidence before the Grand Jury in person. Patrolman Edward Collins of the East 126th Street Station was a witness yesterday. Collins arrested John Antico after Antico fired four shots at him a few months ago. Antico was sent to Sing Sing. Just what Collins testified to was not divulged. Next to Magistrate Corrigan the most interesting witness was the Rev. Dr. George McPherson Hunter, Secretary of the American Seamen's Friend Society, of 76 Wall Street, with a mission at 507 West Street. Dr. Hunter is familiar with all the sea ports in North and South America. He testified, it is said, that there is only one other port that is worse than New York, and that is Rosario in the Argentine Republic. Dr. Hunter told of eleven specific instances of crime on the highway, including one murder, in the vicinity of his mission.

All these offenses, Dr. Hunter said, were committed within the past three months, the majority of them within a fortnight and only one arrest had been made. Even this arrest, he said, was made by one of the attendants at the mission. Dr. Hunter said that hoodlums wait for sailors, and when one passes they follow him and assault and rob him when a lonely part of the street is reached. In many cases, he said, sailors and bellboys from the large ships had been chased by "thugs" into the very doors of the mission.

There was a large crowd at the Essex Market Court yesterday morning to find out just how Magistrate Corrigan would deal with the 101 prisoners caught in the Delaware Club raid. "Yiddle" November was called to the bar first. Detectives Mugge and Toner were the complainants. They testified that when they entered the clubrooms they saw November draw a revolver from his hip pocket and try to slip it into the pocket of an overcoat hanging in a closet. Assemblyman Harold J. Spielberg appeared for the prisoners. November said he was a coat contractor with a shop at 193 Eldridge Street, and had formerly kept a saloon.

"Did you sign any papers or make any affidavits yesterday for any city official or have any communication with any city official whatsoever?" asked the Magistrate.

"No," said the witness.

"Did you see the Mayor yesterday? If you did tell the truth," broke in Lawyer Spelberg.

Magistrate Corrigan held him for carrying concealed weapons, for perjury, he having testified that he was never arrested before, and for impairing the morals of a child, a twelve-year-old boy having been caught in the raid. His bail was fixed at $2,500.

The detectives said they did not see any of the prisoners actually gambling, and all except ten, whom the detectives picked out as criminals, were discharged. The ten were charged with disorderly conduct and vagrancy.

The delegation calling on the Mayor with a petition signed by a thousand men and asking for the suppression of ball playing and noisy sports and rowdyism in Morningside Park, where they said women had been insulted and assaulted and hold-ups had occurred in broad daylight, consisted of S. N. Penfield, John Fitzgerald, Jr., J. A. Morris, R. T. Stout, Mrs. Silas F. Wright, Miss Georgia M. Penfield, and Miss Leverson. The Mayor told them that he had visited the parks last Fall, and that their suggestions were in line with efforts that he had been making to have order and decency established in all the parks. He chided the delegation because their petition had been made public somehow. Among the signers of the petition were Bishop Greer and the clergy and Trustees of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Father McGrath and other clergy of the Catholic Church of St. Thomas the Apostle, the Rev. Dr. McCurdy of the Morningside Presbyterian Church, and many others.

Controller Prendergast wrote recently to Police Commissioner Cropsey asking for more detailed information of the expense bills put in by detectives. Items which the Controller objected to paying, until he received more information, included drinks, cigars, bets, and similar things. It seems the detectives who get into gambling houses and make bets seldom win. One detective put in a bill which showed that from Feb. 1 to Feb. 25 he had lost $29 at craps, $18 on the races, and $10 at roulette. Another had a bill for December for $222, for January $191, and for February $124. It was also shown that while the bills for drinks for the Manhattan detectives averaged $2 and $3 a day, Brooklyn detectives got along with 30 to 40 cents a day.

One man had a bill of $11.20 for one day's drinks. The personal bills of the Commissioner showed that he spent $152 from Jan. 8 to March 2. One detective put in a bill for drinks for one day for $5.40, and 60 cents for food. Another bill from Dec. 1 to Dec. 10 showed that a sleuth had spent $50.50 for drinks and $5 for food.

CROOKS STILL BUSY HERE.

Burglars and Hold-Up Men Give the Police More Work to Do.

Yesterday's additions to the so-called crime wave included a burglary and several hold-ups.

Morris Zank owns a confectionery store on the first floor of a tenement building, in which he lives, at 105 East 119th Street. When Mrs. Zank went to the apartment she was surprised to find the hall door open. Peering inside she saw two men at a table in the dining room sorting out a bundle of articles preparatory to taking them away.

Mrs. Zank ran to one of the windows and yelled for the police. The men climbed out of another window, landed on a cornice, and crept the full length of the building just beneath the second floor apartments over a row of stores fronting on 119th Street. One ran east toward Lexington Avenue and made his escape. The other ran west and started up Park Avenue. A crowd had gathered by that time, and, headed by Policeman Koch of the East 126th Street Station, it closed in on the fugitive.

At 117th Street the man stopped, and, drawing a revolver, ordered those nearest him to turn back. They did. Then he ran east to Third Avenue, with Koch close behind. At 115th Street Koch captured the fugitive. He was taken to Police Headquarters, and later the Zanks identified a necklace, silver watch, and revolver as their property. Mrs. Zank told the police the door to her apartments had been broken open. The man gave his name as Louis Ritzo of 315 Third Avenue, Brooklyn. He was held in $2,000 bail for examination to-morrow by Magistrate Steinert in the Harlem Court.

Francesco Madone of 204 Oak Street, New Haven, Conn., was arraigned before Magistrate Freschi in the Tombs Court in the afternoon charged with carrying concealed weapons. Madone told the Magistrate that he was a merchant in the Connecticut town, and had come to New York to buy goods. He said he had heard so much about the crime wave in New York that he had bought the revolver to protect himself. Magistrate Freschi told him that the reports, in his opinion, were greatly exaggerated, and held him in $300 bail for trial in Special Sessions.

While walking in Seventh Avenue, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second Streets, yesterday morning, Charles W. Bock of 275 Seventh Avenue was held up and robbed of $489 in checks and $16 in cash by two men. Bock reported the case to the West Twentieth Street Station, but no trace of the men was found.

Henry Schwauk of 740 West 146th Street was returning from a dance early in the morning and got off an elevated train at 145th Street and Eighth Avenue. At St. Nicholas Avenue near 145th Street two men jumped from behind the stoop of a house, and while one held a revolver at his head the other ripped open his coat and went through his pockets. He got $12 in bills and some change.

James Gallagher and Victor G. MacLernon of East Orange and Alfred Smith of Newark were arrested in East Orange yesterday charged with assaulting and robbing Henry Schaefer of 7 Sussex Avenue, East Orange, of $100 at Twentieth Street and Irving Place on Tuesday night. Schaefer told the police that he met the three men in a Newark saloon, and they had several drinks. He displayed his money, he said, and the men followed him here. The police found him unconscious, with his money gone. One of the men is said to have served a prison sentence. They were held in $3,000 bail each until the New York police send for them.

Patrolman Edward J. Fitzgibbons of the new West Twentieth Street Station was held in $2,500 bail for trial by Magistrate House in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday on the charge of extortion. It is alleged that he took 25 cents from Guiseppe Agresti, an Italian peddler. Fitzgibbons was arrested last Saturday by Lieut. Costigan and Sergt. Mallon of Police Headquarters, who testified that they marked the money and gave it to Agresti, who had complained that the policeman on post was grafting.

Samuel Marks, who gave his occupation as a waiter of 263 West 112th Street, was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury yesterday by Magistrate Murphy in the West Side Court on the charge of keeping and maintaining a gambling house. The prisoner was arrested last Monday night by Central Office men in a raid on a house in West Forty-fourth Street.

REPORT ON CHICAGO VICE.

Commission Makes Radical Recommendations for Its Repression.

CHICAGO, April 5.—The Chicago Vice Commission, the first salaried municipal commission of its kind, made many radical recommendations in its report to the common council to-night, and gave an exhaustive review of the present status of the social evil in Chicago and means of suppressing it. The recommendations were directly against the European principle of segregation. The report urges constant and persistent repression of the social evil as an immediate method, with absolute annihilation as to the ultimate ideal. By means of the appointment of a Morals Commission and the establishment of a Morals Court.

Other recommendations made are: Physical examination of applicants for marriage licenses; better pay for girls; abolishment of the fining system against known members of vice districts; an intelligent and ample adult probation system; home for old offenders; investigation and supervision of employment agencies; laws calling centres of the evil public nuisances; municipal dance halls; frequent rotation of policemen; women officers for the police force, and hotels and homes for working women and girls.

Among contributory causes for present conditions found by the commission are want of the necessities of life, craving for simple luxuries, ignorance, and, chief of all, poverty. Lack of protection to immigrant girls also aids the evil. Insufficient pay for working girls is assailed at great length in bitter terms, and is called the chief reasons for the downfall of many.

Other causes are summed up thus: Lack of ethical and religious teaching; the large number of seasonal trades for women, leaving periods of the year with no employment; unhappy home conditions; careless and ignorant parents; desertion; love of ease and luxury, and a craving for excitement.

WILLIAM T. EVANS HONORED.

Largely Attended Lotos Club Banquet Signalizes His Patronage of Art.

William T. Evans, Chairman of the Art Committee of the Lotos Club, was entertained at dinner at the club house last night in recognition of his services to American art. One hundred and seventy-five club members were present. Mr. Evans, it may be remembered, has given many valuable paintings to the National Art Museum and the Montclair Art Gallery.

Professor Franklin W. Hooper, M.A., Director of Brooklyn Arts and Sciences in his address, said:

"The collections of paintings by American artists, made by Mr. William T. Evans, comprise one hundred and fifteen presented to the National Gallery in Washington; fifty-three presented to the Montclair Art Gallery; one hundred and eighty-four in his private collection at Wentworth Manor in Montclair, and his gifts to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences of three paintings, and to the Metropolitan Museum of Art of seven paintings; a total of three hundred and sixty-two. The collection in the National Gallery of Art is notable not only for its intrinsic worth, but because Mr. Evans's original gift in March, 1907, was an important factor in its establishment."

Among those present at the dinner were John W. Alexander, Edward Robinson, Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; John B. Agar, President of the National Arts Club; Alexander C. Humphrey, President of Stevens Institute; R. W. De Forest, Secretary of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and ex-Senator William A. Clark of Montana.

NEW HEAD OF PLAYGROUNDS.

William J. Lee Gets Place Howard Bradstreet Quit Under Charges.

Park Commissioner Stover announced yesterday the appointment of William J. Lee as Supervisor of Recreation in Manhattan and Richmond to succeed Howard Bradstreet. Mr. Bradstreet resigned some time ago after charges of favoritism were made against him by employes of the various playgrounds under its jurisdiction.

Mr. Lee was Ernest Harvier's chief lieutenant in the Democratic Union in the campaign of 1909. It was understood after the revelations of scandal in the Bureau of Combustibles a few weeks ago that Mr. Lee was to be made its chief. Fire Commissioner Waldo, however, selected a Deputy Fire Marshal for the place.

MUNICIPAL ART EXHIBITION.

New Types of Street Lamps and Letter Boxes to be Shown.

New types of public lamps, letter boxes, and other street objects will be seen at an exhibition to be held by the Municipal Art Society in the Studio Annex, 119 East Nineteenth Street.

The Board of Water Supply will be represented by views of the Catskill Aqueduct over the Poor Farm Brook and of Kensico Dam. How it is proposed to remodel Central Park at Ninetieth Street will be shown by maps and charts. The Washington Irving High School will make a special exhibit. The Municipal Art Society has agreed to superintend the decorations of this high school, and will present to the city a certain part of the proposed decorations.

PEACE HOPE RISES IN MEXICO CITY

De la Barra Admits Conference with Maderist Agent Gomez and Action May Follow.

ELECTION MUST STAND

But Diaz May Retire—Gomez to Reach Rebel Leader—Prisoners Wreck Puebla Penitentiary.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, April 5.—Foreign Minister De la Barra admits that he held the conference with Dr. Gomez, the Maderist agent, just before he left Washington, a report of which is published in the afternoon papers here, and that admission has augmented the hope of peace. It is certain the present Federal Government would rather fall by force of arms than declare the last Presidential election null, but all feel certain that President Diaz must retire within the year.

The prisoners in the Puebla penitentiary rose against the keepers yesterday afternoon, and twenty-two made good their escape, while five were shot by the guards. The fugitives are still at large, and all of them were under long sentences and are dangerous men.

The five prisoners who were shot were all killed. Following a concerted plan the prisoners had overpowered the chief of the guard. He offered resistance and was killed. A Sergeant of the guard squad was mortally wounded. Two soldiers fled with the prisoners, and are thought to have aided in the escape.

The story of the threatened strike of the engineers on the National Railway is exaggerated. The engineers say they will ask for the reinstatement of four men discharged for not taking trains through the danger zone, but they have no fear of the request being denied when all the facts are before the officials. No statement has been submitted to the officials as yet, but the officials have declared their willingness to do justice, and no trouble is likely.

Gen. Lauro F. Villar, who has been placed in command of the second military zone, with headquarters at Chihuahua, should arrive there to-morrow. He is making the trip from this city in an armored train running as a special.

Gen. Villar was called here four days ago from Nuevo Laredo, where he was the ranking commander, and named by the President to relieve Gen. Juan Hernandez, who has been conducting the Chihuahua campaign. It is not known to what command Gen. Hernandez will be assigned.

An official report of the battle at Aldama places the rebel loss at eighty dead. This includes twenty residents of Aldama, who joined the rebels in their fight against the Federals. In another official report of the three days' fighting at San Rafael and Ures, Sonora, the number of rebel dead is placed at 120, and that of the Federals at 30.

Reports received here last night from Culiacan, Sinaloa, state that a band of 500 rebels was defeated near Eadiraguato by Col. Morelos. According to these reports, forty rebels were killed and 106 saddle horses fell into the hands of the Federals.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The informal conference in Washington ten days ago between Señor de la Barra, Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Dr. Vasquez Gomez, head of the revolutionary party's confidential agency here, has resulted in the taking of steps which, it is hoped, may effect a settlement of the troubles in Mexico.

Dr. Gomez to-day sent messages to his colleagues, both in El Paso and San Antonio, Tex., informing them that he hoped soon to be in direct communication with Francisco I. Madero, the insurrecto chief in Chihuahua, and suggesting that it might perhaps be unnecessary for them to hazard the trip to the Madero camp.

Within the last two days it has been privately suggested to influential persons in Mexico City that peace negotiations would be hastened if telegraphic communication were permitted between Dr. Gomez in Washington and Francisco I. Madero in Chihuahua, Dr. Gomez yesterday being named by Francisco I Madero as the only man besides himself to whom peace proposals could be addressed. Dr. Gomez also believes an understanding could be effected if he were able to communicate with the rebel leader about the conditions of peace.

It is believed that the cordial meeting of Señor de la Barra and Dr. Gomez here, even though each was without instructions and expressed only personal opinions, was the forerunner of possibly fruitful peace negotiations. Señor de la Barra consented to see Dr. Gomez only after he had become Minister of Foreign Affairs, declining previously in his position as Ambassador to take part in discussion of internal affairs.

CHIHUAHUA BOTTLED UP.

Americans in City Expect Decisive Blow from Insurrectos.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, April 5, via Laredo, Texas, April 5.—Three thousand troops representing the main strength of President Diaz's forces in Northern Mexico are "bottled up" in this city.

It is the belief of the 700 Americans here that Francisco I. Madero, the insurrecto President, is preparing to deliver a decisive stroke with a view to bringing the insurrection to a crisis in this section. The opinion held by the Americans and expressed freely by them is that with its present tactics of allowing its forces to be shut up in the towns the Mexican Government will never be able to suppress the insurrection; that the insurrectos are gaining strength daily, and that already they have extended their control over a far greater area than heretofore has been allowed to become known.

Many smaller towns in the interior are garrisoned with a mere handful of men. Just outside the city the insurrectos are in great force. Madero, with Orozco and 1,200 insurrectos, is at Bustillos plantation, sixty miles west, where, surrounded by his staff, he has established a so-called capital.

Two thousand more insurrectos in smaller groups are stretched in a semi-circle about the north of the country.

Abraham Gonzales, who bears the title of Governor of Chihuahua State in the insurrecto camp, is at San Ysidor, about 100 miles west, where he has established a provisional government to the extent of appointing civil officers and police.

At Torreon forces are reported to be about the city. All the railroads to the south have been blockaded, although trains are still running in other directions. This, with the exception of the larger cities, makes a strip which the insurrectos control of almost 1,000 miles of territory south from the United States border.

Madero has given orders that no property shall be destroyed except such as may be necessary to promote the insurrection and block the railroad.

CANANEA, Sonora, Mexico, April 5.—Reports from Arizpe Coahuila indicate that the town, 50 miles south of here, may fall into the hands of the rebels at any moment. Six hundred rebel soldiers are reported in the vicinity of Arizpe, and they will encounter no opposition in taking possession.

SAYS JAPAN PRESSED DIAZ.

Mexican Declares Taft's Move Enabled Him to Refuse Coaling Station.

EL PASO, Texas, April 5.—According to a prominent Mexican-American, who insisted upon the suppression of his name, President Diaz was seeking a way to refuse a coaling station on Magdalena Island to the Japanese before the renewal of the American Government's contract came up for discussion.

"Diaz," said the Mexican-American, "found himself between the upper and nether millstones. He was impressed with the influx of Japanese into Mexico and, in particular, with the knowledge that they had mapped his entire western coast. Slow, insistent pressure was brought on him to give Japan a coaling station on Magdalena Bay. On the other side was the United States and the Monroe Doctrine."

He temporized until knowledge of his situation reached the White House. From the latter, to his considerable relief, came an unmistakable intimation that Japan was not to have the station, although the same privilege for the United States was not insisted upon. Diaz then informed Japan that he did not care to lease any part of his country to a foreign power.

"Not knowing what might be the result of the Mexican attitude in Japan, President Taft ordered the mobilization of a division of American troops at San Antonio, Galveston, and El Paso. In Mexico every citizen of standing and information realizes that in the event of Japanese aggression, which, however baseless the fear may be, is still feared, Mexico must rely upon the assistance of the United States. As against any oversea power Mexico would stand with her big neighbor to the north. Japan has never attempted the colonization of large bodies of Japanese on certain tracts of land in Mexico, but the aggregate immigration figures from the Land of the Rising Sun are impressive."

"Are not these immigrants mostly coolie laborers?"

"Mexico does not need to import labor; they are mostly veterans of the Russo-Japanese war. They are not brought to Mexico to make an army of protection against the Americans. They came of their own accord, and for their own ends.

"And bear this in mind, they do not make maps for fun, and we know that many of these immigrants have had no other visible occupation."

BERGER FOR RECALL OF ARMY.

Socialist Moves in Congress President Submit Reasons for Mobilization.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Representative Victor Berger, the Socialist member of Congress from Wisconsin, made his first appearance as an active legislator to-day by introducing in the House a resolution calling upon the President to submit to this session of Congress all documents, papers, and reports upon which was based the order for mobilization of a large part of the army of the United States near the Mexican border.

The resolution recites that the despotism and brutality of the Mexican governing class has goaded the poor and oppressed of that country to revolt, and that they are now struggling for liberty. It further recites that the threat of invasion by this country is used by the Mexican Government to fortify its position.

The resolution takes the position that the army of this country should be withdrawn from the border, and that the United States should remain neutral in the conflict and make it plain that it is not the intention of this country to invade Mexico.

The Maderist junta here is not a little disturbed by Mr. Berger's move. They say that the present revolutionary leaders have repeatedly declared they have nothing in common with the Socialists who for several years have been at work in the United States to foment political disturbances in Mexico.

FOG OVER HARBOR AND CITY.

A Collision Afloat and a Washout on Land—More Rain To-day.

Fog that came with the rain yesterday delayed the sailing of the big Mauretania with a host of passengers on board until late in the afternoon, and was responsible for one river collision. The rain lasted until late in the evening, and the promise for to-day is for more rain and colder.

The forty-four families who were turned out of their homes at 4,064 to 4,068 Third Avenue after the collapse of the rear wall of the building at No. 4,062 on Tuesday night were still the guests of the Bronx Church House yesterday. The Building Department consider their homes unsafe, and refused to allow them to return. Yesterday the rain caused a washout under the temporary sidewalk at the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, and the police stopped traffic there.

Afloat the fog was a worse trouble than the rain. It was so thick that from the water front nothing could be seen. In the morning the steam lighter Bayonne of the Manhattan Lighterage Company was rammed by the tug Edwin Terry of the Cornell Steamboat Company off Pier A, North River. The Terry lost her smokestack and Thomas Cullen, the steward, was knocked overboard, but was rescued from drowning.

The Mauretania, scheduled to leave her pier at 9 A. M., did not get away until 11:42. Then she had to anchor in the lower bay, and it was not until nearly 5 o'clock that she got her anchor up and passed out at Quarantine. The Sound steamers were held up nearly all day.

STORM TIES UP RAILROADS.

Loss in Kentucky $1,000,000—Fire Bells Warn Citizens.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 5.—Record rainfall and high winds in portions of the extreme South have interrupted train and wire service and left a trail of damage to growing crops. Hundreds of persons living in the river parts of Mobile are marooned by high water.

New Orleans reports comparatively small crop damage along the Louisiana coast, but through Central and Southern Alabama growing crops are destroyed.

Damage estimated at over a million dollars was caused in Middlesboro and the Yellow Creek Valley last night by a cloudburst. All streams in this section overflowed. Half of Middlesboro was under water, which in some instances was up to the second floor of houses.

At midnight the water became so high that the fire bells were rung, and many of the people, on arising to see the fire, stepped out of their beds into water that had filled their homes during the three hours previous.

The majority of the enormous loss falls on the railroad and the various mines throughout Yellow Creek Valley. All trestles on the Mingo and Stony Fork Divisions of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad were washed away, and the company has stated that it will be at least two weeks before traffic can be resumed.

NAME THE CO-RESPONDENTS.

Justice Newburger Says Lawyers Must Not Conceal Names They Know.

The practice of concealing the names of co-respondents in divorce cases was condemned yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Newburger. It has been the custom in many cases to allege that the name of the co-respondent is unknown and to restrict the proof to the fact that the co-respondent was not the husband or the wife of the person sued.

Justice Newburger's indignation was aroused when he learned from Maurice Levy, principal witness for Max Paskesz against his wife, Rose, that Levy knew the name of the co-respondent, and had told Joseph Prager, the plaintiff's lawyer, about it.

"This has got to stop," declared the Court. "You drew this complaint, and you knew perfectly well who the co-respondent was, yet you alleged that he was unknown. This practice is altogether too common in the courts, and must be stopped."

NEGRO TROOPS WILL GO TO BROWNSVILLE

Ninth Cavalry Will Be Moved from San Antonio for Border Patrol Duty.

HOT PROTEST IS EXPECTED

Negro Colonel Assigned to Regular Regiment with Many Southern Officers Takes Meals in His Tent.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 5.—The Ninth Cavalry, the negro regiment, the presence of which in this city caused a protest to be made to President Taft by Congressman Garner of the Brownsville district and others, is in accordance with orders already reported from Washington to leave San Antonio.

The regiment is going to do patrol duty on the border, and there is reason to believe that at least two troops will go to Brownsville, the town at the mouth of the Rio Grande, which was the scene of the trouble that caused a battalion of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, another negro regiment, to be dismissed from the service of the United States by President Roosevelt.

The order to move the Ninth out of San Antonio came from the War Department last night, and to-day the staff officers of the Department of Texas are busy designating the points on the border to which the troops are to be sent. The order from Washington calls for the return to San Antonio of the entire Third Cavalry and the return to El Paso of two troops of the Fourth Cavalry, the commands now guarding the border between Hancock, near El Paso and Brownsville on the Gulf, a distance of more than 1,500 miles.

The negro troopers, instead of appearing downcast at being ordered to the desolate stations along the border, apparently welcome the change. They had feared that they were to be sent back to Wyoming instead of upon this comparatively active service.

This afternoon, when it became known that the order detaching the regiment stated that the entire Third Cavalry and two troops of the Fourth were to be relieved, and that this meant a part of the regiment was going to Brownsville, the principal town in Representative Garner's district, army officers smiled. They referred to Mr. Garner's activity in getting the negro soldiers out of San Antonio, and wondered what his attitude would be when he found that the troopers would be transferred from another district to his own. San Antonio is in Congressman Slayden's district.

The posts on the border from which the patrols will operate are Hancock, Marfa, Marathon, Sanderson, Chisos, Del Rio, Eagle Pass, Minera, Fort McIntosh, Laredo, Sam Fordyce, and Brownsville. Already from Laredo, which is opposite Nuevo Laredo in Mexico, a report has been received that citizens are preparing a protest to send to Washington by wire, and it is rumored that Sanderson will take similar action. What Brownsville will do has not appeared.

Brig. Gen. Joseph W. Duncan, commanding the Military Department of Texas, said to-day that he expected to have the Ninth on the way to the border by Friday. The Third Cavalry and two troops of the Fourth, he added, will remain on duty until the negroes have arrived at the various posts, and will remain behind two or three days longer to teach the new comers the secrets of the patrol. It will be a week, he said, before the Ninth will be placed, and the regiments that are being relieved will not begin to return to the inland posts until the middle of next week. Gen. Duncan, who is a native Texan, smilingly declined to talk of Brownsville or any other border post to which the troops will be sent. When asked if it had been decided to send more than one company to Brownsville, he replied that it was not in his province to discuss orders before their execution.

The news from Laredo, which is, next to Brownsville, the largest border town east of El Paso, is that a petition is being circulated this afternoon in which the citizens claim that on a former occasion when negro soldiers were stationed at McIntosh they were the cause of much disorder in that town.

Col. John R. Marshall, the negro commanding officer of the Eighth Infantry, Illinois National Guard, who came in last night, to-day reported to the commanding officer of the Eighteenth United States Infantry, the regiment to which he has been assigned for the next two weeks. In that regiment 50 per cent. of the officers are Southerners, while, to further complicate the situation, the other Militia Colonel assigned to the Eighteenth is Col. Gardner of North Carolina. The colored officer has his meals sent to his tent, while the North Carolina Colonel and the other white officers assigned to the regiment mess with the regular officers. The negro keeps to himself most of the time.

NEGRO WINS CURTIS MEDAL.

G. W. A. Scott Eloquently Condemns Child Slavery in University Contest.

George William Artway Scott of the class of 1911, a negro, carried off the premier prize speaking honors of Columbia University in Earl Hall last night in a speech that was noteworthy for its earnestness. "Child Slavery" was the subject which won for the negro orator the coveted Curtis Medal.

"I stand here pleading for no race or creed," declared Scott in the course of his oration, "but I will say this: "The Nation which forty years ago was able to lift the shackles from 4,000,000 negro slaves should certainly be able to free 2,500,000 children."

In closing he proposed a National law for the suppression of child slavery, and the creation of a National children's bureau, under the Direction of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

Earl Hall was crowded with students and friends of the orators. Many negroes were present.

The Curtis Medals, two in number, are awarded annually at Columbia University for excellence in public speaking. They were established in 1902 by the late Samuel Putnam Avery, an associate of the late George William Curtis.

Second place was awarded to A. M. Grill, 1911, who spoke in favor of woman suffrage. A. W. Macmahon, 1912, and P. M. Beck, 1911, were the remaining speakers.

DENTAL CLINIC NEEDS HELP.

Magistrate Barlow Appeals for Fund in Aid of an East Side Charity.

Magistrate Peter T. Barlow, who fifteen months ago organized this city's first free dental clinic for poor children at 449 East 121st Street, is sending out a letter to personal friends asking them to give the institution their financial aid. With his appeal goes the indorsement of the clinic by Health Commissioner Lederle and Dr. Herbert L. Wheeler of Bellevue.

During the clinic's first twelve months 14,948 cases of defective teeth among poor children were treated. Two graduated and licensed dentists are busy every minute between 1 and 5 o'clock every weekday at the institution. Fourteen poor children are treated there daily by appointment and about twenty more a day come in at random. The two dentists, according to Magistrate Barlow, insist on having a parent's or guardian's permission before treating each child's teeth.

"I have figures which show that there are 200,000 children in this city whose physical and mental development are retarded because of defective teeth," said Magistrate Barlow yesterday. "Eighty per cent. of the school children suffer from indigestion, malnutrition, listlessness, and ineffectiveness in their studies from the same cause. Out of 500 school children who were examined some time ago 489 were found to need treatment badly."

The clinic itself, which has been intentionally located in one of the most poverty-stricken tenement districts of the east side, is in charge of Miss Marjorie Clarke. She was detailed to the clinic by the Board of Health fifteen months ago, and she described yesterday many cases of dentally defective children who had visited the clinic.

"Four hundred and eighty-six teeth were treated at the clinic last month," said Miss Clarke. "Three hundred and seventy-five teeth were filled and 172 had to be extracted. As for the benefit it is to the children in their health and studies, you have only to ask the teachers who are instructing them. Miss Tucker, the Principal of Public School 163, in East 120th Street, has an unusual number of poverty-stricken tenement children. She sent many of them to us for treatment.

"Miss Tucker sent a twelve-year-old boy to us some time ago. He was the leader of a truant gang and one of the most restless and discontented of her pupils. His front teeth had been knocked out in a gang fight and all his other teeth needed attention. I put him on his honor to come here, and he did come regularly until all his teeth were filled, cleaned, and adjusted. That was only six months ago. Since that time he has been promoted out of the highest class of Miss Tucker's school into the nearby Boys' School. He reports to me every Saturday, and is getting on splendidly with his studies. He has brought all the other members of his truant gang, one by one, to be treated. He has even begun wearing a collar and necktie.

"More remarkable still is the change which the clinic made in a boy of seven years. His mother is dead and his father dissipated and neglectful. The boy drifted from one school to another, never getting promoted. We treated his teeth for five weeks. This was only a few months ago. He is studying at the Harlem School for boys now, and brings home fine records. One would never think he had ever been accused of being stupid."

GIBBONS FOR FAIR PLAY.

The People's Rights Better Protected, He Says—Justice Due Corporations.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 5.—"An important condition in the industrial development of this country," said Cardinal Gibbons in an interview here to-day, "is the fact that the right of the people to fair and honest treatment by the big business interests is daily becoming more widely recognized by broad-minded and progressive men. Laws are being passed and enforced for the proper regulation and control of great corporations, particularly public service companies, and the rights of the people are each year being better guarded and protected. This is as it should be, it creates honesty in business relations, and without honesty there can be no real progress.

"It was said recently by Theodore N. Vail, the head of the great telephone and telegraph interest, that the public should be considered as virtual partners in all matters that pertain to the common welfare. Therefore, he says, he believes that there should be proper public control and regulation of public service companies. This utterance from a man representing 70,000 stockholders is indicative of the progressive spirit of the times, it shows a broad appreciation of the rights of the people.

"The people deserve fair and honest treatment, and in return they should treat the big business interests justly. Public control and regulation should be such as to assure the people good service at fair prices, and should also protect the investor; it should prevent destructive industrial warfare, for the people in the end pay for such strife; it should end improper political interference with the rights of the people and with the enforcement of just decisions; it should encourage honest effort to serve the people with the utilities which they require and at the same time furnish proper protection to the men who invest their money in the effort to do so."

FIND STOLEN ARMOUR FUNDS.

Widow of Kansas City Packer Was Robbed of Stocks Worth $100,000.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 5.—Stocks and bonds to the value of $100,000 were stolen recently from a safety deposit box in this city owned by Mrs. S. B. Armour, widow of Simeon B. Armour of the Armour Packing Company, and sold, it was learned to-day. All but a few thousand dollars has been restored to Mrs. Armour, and no prosecution will follow.

None of those who have acted as advisers in the case for Mrs. Armour felt at liberty to-day to make public the name of the guilty person.

The theft came to light through purchases made with money derived from the sale of the stocks and bonds. These purchases consisted of rare etchings, Oriental rugs, silverware, jewelry, and works of art. Goods costing more than $10,000 were bought of one jewelry store and were ordered sent to storage by the purchaser.

When Mrs. Armour discovered her loss and her attorneys had traced the stolen securities the goods were found still in storage houses. They were sold for the benefit of Mrs. Armour. The stolen securities were taken from the safe deposit vault and were negotiated through brokers in Kansas City. It was the custom of the person who took the securities to send them by a negro messenger to the brokers with a note asking that they be sold. The brokers who sold the securities believed the money was being used by Mrs. Armour for charities, and that she possibly was hiding her generosity in that way. Mrs. Armour is 76 years old.

CHICAGO, April 5.—John C. Evans, Superintendent of the American Bottle Works of Streator, Ill., died at St. Mary's Hospital late on Tuesday night as the result of injuries received on March 28, when two men attacked him while he was on his way home.

Evans was informed at the hospital that the only way his life could be saved was to submit to an operation. This he refused to consent to. No statement could be obtained from Evans as to who his assailants were. It is thought he refused to divulge the names of the men for the sole purpose of shielding the families of the persons involved.

DEGREE DEALERS ALTER NAME

"Carnegie Institution of New York" Omits City's Name from Title.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., April 5.—As a result of stories printed in New York papers regarding the status of the "Carnegie University of New York," which, it is alleged, disposes of diplomas, the institution to-day changed its name. When it was incorporated under the Delaware laws last February, with a capital of $100,000, it was known as the "Carnegie University of Naturopathy, Incorporated." The State Department to-day, on application of J. G. Vanderheide, Ph. D., President, of 128 West Fifty-eighth Street, New York, and the Secretary, J. E. Lintcott, changed the name to the "Carnegie University, Incorporated." Secretary of State Smithers said that no reason was given by the President or Secretary for desiring to change the name. The application was wholly formal.

Reynolds Clough, Secretary and Treasurer of the Capitol Trust Company, Dover, Del., who obtained the original charter for the university, stated that he knew nothing of the change of title, and that he was not consulted in the matter, although his company's office is the Delaware headquarters of the university.

The apparent headquarters here of the "Carnegie University" are located in a rather dingy first-floor flat at 128 West Sixty-sixth Street. J. G. Vanderheide, the alleged President, is an indifferently dressed man with a strong German accent, who admits that whatever university courses or degrees he has taken were acquired "abroad."

It came out last week that the "Carnegie University" was sending out postal cards offering to confer the degrees of B. A., M. A., Ph. D., LL. D., Litt. D., and D. D. to any one who would give the institution "financial assistance."

Reporters, pretending to be unsuccessful students seeking to buy degrees, to appease angry parents, promptly called at the headquarters of the "university." Vanderheide denied that he was President of the "university," or that he knew much about it, but afterward confidentially told the reporters that they could easily buy a degree of Ph. D., Litt. D., or any other academic honor from the "university" for payments ranging from $200 to $100. He implied that the study required would not be very hard, and that the degrees could be obtained after a nominal period.

To THE TIMES reporter Mr. Vanderheide took care to point out that a degree in his university was "not quite the same as a degree from Yale or Harvard." He emphasized that the headquarters of the "Carnegie University" were not here, but in Delaware. He stated that Andrew Carnegie had had nothing to do with the foundation of the institution, and that he did not know how it came by its name.

THE AMERICAN DISEASE.

Neurasthenia, or nerve exhaustion, is not unknown in Europe by any means, but it has reached a development in America hitherto undreamed of, and has come to be known distinctively as The American Disease. Every possible means of cure, or even relief, has been resorted to; sanitariums and pleasure resorts are filled and all kinds of mental healing have their advocates. Neurasthenia, however, has undoubtedly a physical basis; it is a literal starvation of the nerve centres, which are deprived of their albumen and phosphorus by the constant strain exerted by hurry, concentration and overwork, whether incurred in business, social duties or pleasure seeking. In a handsomely illustrated booklet, the work of a well known medical editor, the rational treatment of Neurasthenia is pointed out as being embodied in Sanatogen, the food-tonic; this is a chemical union of albumen and sodium glycerophosphate in the form of a soluble powder, easily taken in tea, cocoa, &c., and speedily productive of vigor and contentment, because it is a direct food to the tired body and exhausted nerve centres. This book is published by The Bauer Chemical Company, 506 Everett Building, Unioo Square, New York, who will send a copy free and prepaid, to any applicant, and contains the most extraordinary testimony, not only from physicians of international reputation, but also from many distinguished men and women in other walks of life, whose onerous duties have induced them to use this harmless aid to physical and mental well-being in order to avoid absolute breakdown. Prevention being better than cure, this book is recommended to all who find themselves under special strain and do not care to resort to deleterious stimulants, while those already attacked will find therein a unique and pleasant means of relief.

INSTALL DR. JOWETT IN HIS NEW CHURCH

Preacher at Induction Service Likens His Coming to Paul's Descent on Rome.

OUR NEED A VITAL GOSPEL

Not a Great Throng at the Formal Installation Service—Reception by the New Pastor Afterward.

Before a congregation composed principally of non-members, the Rev. Dr. John H. Jowett, former pastor of Carr's Lane Chapel, Birmingham, England, was installed last night as pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was in charge of the Rev. Dr. George Alexander, Moderator of the New York Presbytery, who was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Stoddard, the Rev. Hugh Pritchard, the Rev. A. L. Evans, pastor of the John Hall Memorial Chapel, Sixty-third Street and First Avenue; the Rev. Dr. Jesse F. Forbes, stated clerk of the Presbytery; the Rev. Francis L. Patton, President of Princeton Theological Seminary, and the Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts, stated clerk of the General Assembly. Dr. Jowett took no part in the proceedings and did not enter the pulpit until just at the close of the ceremony, when he pronounced the benediction.

The church, which was crowded to its capacity on Sunday, when Dr. Jowett preached his first sermons, contained not more than a few hundred persons.

The service opened with an anthem by a quartet, followed by an invocation by Dr. Stoddard and a hymn. Then came a Scripture lesson, prayer by the Rev. Dr. Pritchard, and the sermon by Dr. Alexander, who took for his text the passage from the Epistle to the Romans: "So much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also."

Dr. Alexander, in his sermon, drew a parallel between the visit of Paul to Rome, and the coming of the new pastor to this city from England.

"No force," said Dr. Alexander, "is so mighty as that of persistent effort. 'I must see Rome,' said Paul. It was the Divine call to preach the Gospel. Rome was the centre of the pagan world. It was the Rome of Nero, the seat of the world's iniquities. The ruler of the mighty house of Caesar was crumbling and about to perish. The poor were clamoring for bread. Famine and profligacy were face to face. The creed of the best was a philosophy of despair. Patriots ceased to expect a cure for the flagrant wickedness of the city.

"To this city went Paul. Why? Because it was the centre of Roman civilization; because there the battle of faith was to be fought. He laid his hand on the Eternal City and molded its future. He laid hold of the hearts of sinful men. His message transformed outcasts into heroes.

"Here in this city we are in the midst of the mightiest aggregation of humanity on the face of the earth. New York dominates the Western Continent by forces mightier than the cohorts of Caesar. It is a great caldron in which all race, all peoples, all creeds, are mingled. Its crying need, its unsolved problem, lies in its contradictory impulses. The greed of wealth pinches the poor, and the generosity of wealth is giving to the poor the glorious opportunity of a new day. We hear the charge that the churches have not kept pace with their opportunities, but this is not the case.

"What this city needs to solace its sorrow, to heal its disorders, is the glorious gospel of a blessed God—not a petrified gospel, not a monopolistic gospel, but a vital gospel that will unite the whole world."

The installation service was read by Dr. Alexander, after a hymn. Representing the Presbytery of New York, he first asked Dr. Jowett these three questions:

"Are you now willing to take charge of this congregation as the pastor, agreeably to your declaration of acceptance of their call?"

"Do you conscientiously believe and declare, so far as you know your own heart, that in taking up this pastorate you are honest and sincere in your desire to promote the glory of God and of His Church?"

"Do you promise by the assistance of Christ you will endeavor to discharge all the duties of this pastorate to this congregation, and will maintain a deportment in all respects becoming a minister of the Church?"

To each of these Dr. Jowett, who sat in a front pew, answered affirmatively.

The charge to the new pastor was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Patton, who said that the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church and Princeton Seminary had always been in close relations, so much so that the pastor of the church was considered as a sort of ex-officio member of the Princeton Faculty. He related some of the history of the church, and said it was potent for good in all the works in which the church was engaged.

After the service those present met Dr. Jowett, who held a reception at the foot of the pulpit.

TRUSTEES CALL WOMEN BACK

Explain Misunderstanding with Board of Associates in Home of St. Giles.

The Board of Trustees of the Home of St. Giles, The Cripple, at Garden City, began yesterday the reorganization of the Board of Associates. The Board of Associates, composed exclusively of women, announced itself disbanded on March 14, after differences with the Board of Trustees over the handling of funds.

The Board of Trustees concedes the importance of the women's work, and notices of the meeting yesterday, which, to all intents and purposes, were peace offerings from the Trustees, were sent to all the former members of the Board of Associates, with the exception of the officers, the Trustees holding that the board could not disband and that, consequently, the action of March 14 had been no more than the resignation of the officers.

It was explained yesterday that the request of the Trustees to be allowed to handle, through their treasurer, the funds of the women, was based on the fact that the State Board of Charities desired in all cases of charitable institutions that there be one treasurer with whom it might deal. That the women should have misunderstood the position of the Trustees was due, it was explained yesterday, to a misunderstanding over the building of the playroom annex to the surgical pavilion.

Despite the explanation of the Trustees, however, only ten persons attended the meeting yesterday in the diocese house at 150 Remsen Street. A committee of three was named to consult with the Trustees over the rehabilitation of the Associates board, but former members of the board who did not attend the meeting declared that none of the old members would go back.

TAFT ASKS EARLY VOTE ON RECIPROCITY

In Special Message He Says Canadian Plan Has Met with Popular Approval.

CLARK CLAIMS THE CREDIT

Reciprocity Always a Democratic Measure, Speaker Declares, Which Republicans Have Opposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—In a message only 600 words in length President Taft to-day urged upon Congress the need of prompt action indorsing the Canadian reciprocity agreement. That was the only topic mentioned, and aside from an outline of the history of the measure in the last Congress, consisted simply in explaining his obligation to Canada to get Congressional action as quickly as possible and in referring to the popular approval manifest throughout the country since the publication of the terms of the agreement.

Of almost equal interest was a statement issued this morning by Champ Clark, the new Democratic Speaker, in explanation of his failure to refer to reciprocity in his summary yesterday of the legislative programme of the Democrats. He said, in giving out the statement, that if he had thought of it he would have mentioned reciprocity in the close of his speech, but that in failing to do so he intended rather to take it for granted that it had Democratic support than to slight it.

In the House a fight on the new Democratic rules that lasted all day was interrupted for the reading of the message. Close attention was given the brief document, but no applause followed the reading. In the Senate the sole business of the session was the reading of the message. Though it was known that the message would be very short, and would embody no discussion or defense of reciprocity as such, nearly every Senator was in his seat. The reading of the message was concluded by 12:15 o'clock, and after a brief executive session adjournment was taken until to-morrow.

The President's Message.

The message follows:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"I transmitted to the Sixty-first Congress, on January 26 last, the text of the reciprocity trade agreement which had been negotiated under my direction by the Secretary of State with the representatives of the Dominion of Canada. This agreement was the consummation of earnest efforts, extending over a period of nearly a year, on the part of both governments to effect a trade arrangement which, supplementing as it did the amicable settlement of various questions of a diplomatic and political character that had been reached, would mutually promote commerce and would strengthen the friendly relations now existing.

"The agreement in its intent and in its terms was purely economic and commercial. While the general subject was under discussion by the Commissioners I felt assured that the sentiment of the people of the United States was such that they would welcome a measure which would result in the increase of trade on both sides of the boundary line, would open up the reserve productive resources of Canada to the great mass of our own consumers on advantageous conditions, and at the same time offer a broader outlet for the excess products of our farms and many of our industries. Details regarding a negotiation of this kind necessarily could not be made public while the conferences were pending.

People Approve It, He Says.

"When, however, the full text of the agreement, accompanying correspondence and data explaining both its purpose and its scope became known to the people through the message transmitted to Congress, it was immediately apparent that the ripened fruits of the careful labors of the Commissioners met with widespread approval. This approval has been strengthened by further consideration of the terms of the agreement in all their particulars. The volume of support which has developed shows that its broadly national scope is fully appreciated and is responsive to the popular will.

"The House of Representatives of the Sixty-first Congress after the full text of the agreement with all the details in regard to the different provisions had been before it, as they were before the American people, passed a bill confirming the agreement as negotiated and as transmitted to Congress. This measure failed of action in the Senate.

"In my transmitting message of the twenty-sixth of January I fully set forth the character of the agreement, and emphasized its appropriateness and necessity as a response to the mutual needs of the people of the two countries, as well as its common advantages. I now lay that message, and the reciprocal trade agreement, as part of the present message before the Sixty-second Congress, and again invite earnest attention to the considerations therein expressed.

Urges Early Action.

"I am constrained in deference to popular sentiment and with a realizing sense of my duty to the great masses of our people whose welfare is involved, to urge upon your consideration early action on this agreement. In concluding the negotiations the representatives of the two countries bound themselves to use their utmost efforts to bring about the tariff changes provided for in the agreement by concurrent legislation at Washington and Ottawa.

"I have felt it my duty, therefore, not to acquiesce in relegation of action until the opening of the Congress in December, but to use my Constitutional prerogative and convoke the Sixty-second Congress in extra session in order that there shall be no break of continuity in considering and acting upon this most important subject.

(Signed) WM. H. TAFT.
The White House, April 5, 1911.

Speaker Clark's Statement.

In his statement on reciprocity Speaker Clark said the situation was "one of the queerest mix-ups in legislative history." He contended that the question was of Democratic origin, and that if it were enacted into law it would be largely by Democratic votes. The history of the negotiations with Canada was stated by Mr. Clark to be as follows:

"In 1854 a Democratic administration negotiated a reciprocity agreement with Canada. In 1867 a Republican administration abrogated it. In 1911 a Republican President negotiated another one and a bill was introduced to carry it out. All the Democrats in the House except five voted for it. The President couldn't muster even a majority of the House Republicans for it. The next day he wrote a letter to Representative McCall of Massachusetts thanking him for getting it through the House. Then it was sent to a Republican Senate and they wouldn't even consider the matter. The Democrats have demonstrated over and over that they are in favor of reciprocity. Individually I have been advocating reciprocity not only with Canada but with all of the civilized nations of the earth."

Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee will introduce a Canadian reciprocity bill, which will conform in essential particulars to the agreement submitted to Congress last session by President Taft as the result of the Canadian negotiations. Mr. Underwood would not say to-day when the bill will be introduced or whether it will be free from amendments containing tariff revision legislation.

Indorse Reciprocity Plan

Two indorsements of the reciprocity agreement cheered the President to-day. The first came from W. F. Knox, Chairman of the Michigan Republican State Central Committee, and the other from Woodlawn Grange of Portland, Ore. Mr. Knox wired the President as follows:

> In yesterday's Spring election the entire Republican State ticket successful by normal Republican majority. This I regard as significant, in view of the declaration made in some quarters that reciprocity programme of Administration would disrupt the party in strong Republican border States. I regard outcome as a strong indorsement in Michigan of your reciprocity programme.

The Woodlawn Grange, in a letter to the President, forwarded resolutions adopted by it at a meeting last month. The grange adopted a resolution condemning the action of the National grange, which opposed the reciprocity with Canada.

ST. PAUL, April 5.—A special to The Dispatch from Grand Forks, N. D., says the farmers of North Dakota and the other border States will insist on a hearing before the National Ways and Means Committee before action is taken on the adoption of the Canadian reciprocity treaty. This is one of the results of the North Dakota anti-reciprocity convention held in this city yesterday. Special committees have been named to gather data all along the border.

AGAINST RECIPROCITY.

New Brunswick Legislature Rejects Resolution Indorsing It.

FREDERICTON, N. B., April 5.—By a strict party vote, an indorsement of the proposed reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States was refused by the New Brunswick Legislature early to-day. The vote, which was taken at 2 o'clock this morning, was on a resolution offered by C. W. Robertson, the Opposition leader, which indorsed reciprocity and favored an increase of the British preferential rate to 50 per cent. The vote was 15 to 29.

The Opposition is composed wholly of Liberals. The Government supporters are Conservatives, with the exception of the Hon. John Morrisey, Minister of Public Works, who is a Liberal.

SLANG IN SUPREME COURT.

Justice McKenna Uses "Oh, Cheese It!" to Clear Up Another Phrase.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Some of the slang phrases which Justice McKenna of the Supreme Court of the United States picked up years ago still cling in his mind.

Frederic D. McKenney, counsel in a case before the court this week, was trying to explain to the Justices what a railroad conductor meant when he said to an engineer, "Oh, h——, back up."

He was having some difficulties with the abstruse point when Justice McKenna came to his assistance.

"Did he mean what was once expressed by the slang phrase, 'Oh, cheese it'?"

"Exactly," responded Mr. McKenney, and the whole bench joined Justice McKenna in a chuckle over his slang.

Taft Heads International Peace Forum

WASHINGTON, April 5.—President Taft has accepted the honorary Presidency of the International Peace Forum. The Rev. John Wesley Hill of New York, who toured the country with Mr. Taft in the last campaign, is active in the organization and asked the President to become its honorary head.

Bill In to Restore the Army Canteen.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—A bill to restore the army canteen was introduced to-day by Representative Bartholdt of Missouri. Mr. Bartholdt declared the restoration of the canteen is necessary for the preservation of health and decent conduct in the army.

Forster Made Chief Clerk to President.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Rudolph Forster of Washington, was to-day named as chief clerk of the executive offices at the White House at a salary of $4,000 a year. Mr. Forster has been connected with the White House clerical staff for years, his latest position being that of assistant secretary to the President at $3,000 a year.

"BUSY BEES" ENTERTAIN.

Little East Siders Give a Play Called "Doll Fest" for Visitors.

Sixteen "Busy Bees" ran the whole University Settlement annual meeting yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called for 3:30 at the settlement, Eldridge and Rivington Streets, and there were to have been interesting speeches and reports, but neither the speeches nor the audience materialized. The weather was so busy outside doing the week's street washing that no one ventured out except four women and the workers at the settlement, always excepting the Busy Bees.

The Bees are mites of girls who belong to a settlement club of that name and they were to give a quite incidental part of the day's programme—a "Doll Fest." It is a little doll play which Headworker Robbins Gilman saw the children do for their own little club and he thought it was too good to be hidden and the Bees were to make a public debut yesterday to help entertain the visitors. The Bees were all there and they gave their performance to the handful of visitors and some other little boys and girls of the settlement. The meeting was postponed.

HANDWRITING NOT PROVED.

Ruling of Justice Maddox Frees Under Sheriff Phillips of One Charge.

Former Under Sheriff John M. Phillips, against whom nine indictments charging grand larceny were returned by a Queens County Grand Jury in the recent "graft" hunt, was freed from one of the indictments by Justice Maddox in the Queens County Supreme Court yesterday, after he had been on trial for two days.

It was charged that Phillips had drawn bids which were submitted by him through dummies and had thus obtained contracts for repairing culverts. To fasten the offense on Phillips it was necessary to prove that the bids were in his handwriting. Justice Maddox ruled that the prosecution must produce witnesses who had seen Phillips actually writing, in order to establish a standard from which a comparison could be made with the handwriting in the bids. This the prosecution was unable to do.

A motion to dismiss the remaining indictments against Phillips was denied.

LORIMER FUND STORY PUT UP TO HINES

Kohlsaat and Funk of Harvester Company Says Lumber Man Told of $100,000 Spent.

ASKED AID TO REIMBURSE IT

Edward Tilden Is Named as the Man to Send Contributions—Hines Makes Denial.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 5.—H. H. Kohlsaat of The Chicago Record-Herald to-day told the Senate Bribery Investigating Committee that Clarence S. Funk, General Manager of the International Harvester Company, was the man who informed Mr. Kohlsaat that "a slush" fund of $100,000 was put up to elect Senator Lorimer.

The publication in February of an editorial in The Chicago Record-Herald which charged the use of a $100,000 fund to elect Lorimer, resulted in the calling of Mr. Kohlsaat as a witness before the committee at its last session.

Mr. Kohlsaat then refused to make known the name of Mr. Funk. The Chicago publisher was given one week's time in which to divulge this name, or stand in contempt of the Senate Committee.

To the first question of Attorney J. J. Healy, Mr. Kohlsaat identified a telegram sent by him to Chairman Helm saying his confidant called at The Record-Herald office and was willing to appear before the committee.

"When I arrived at my office Clarence Funk called and told me he would be less than a man if he held me to my confidence," testified Mr. Kohlsaat.

"Mr. Funk told me that he had talked with Cyrus H. McCormick, President of the company, and told him he thought he ought to release me, whereupon Mr. McCormick said: 'Good, that is exactly what I want. I do not care for the consequences to the International Harvester Company.'

"I met Mr. Funk on Jackson Boulevard about thirty days after the confession of White, while on my way to the Chicago Club. He did not seek me out at all. Mr. Funk told me the man who came to him, told him they had an opportunity to elect Lorimer with a fund of $100,000. They sent it down, and Mr. Funk told me they were looking for reimbursement."

Mr. Funk was the next witness called. He said he had been with the Harvester Company nine years. His attention was called to a conversation with Edward Hines of Chicago shortly after the Lorimer election. The witness said:

"The conversation took place in the Union League Club, Chicago. It was a chance meeting. He said he had been waiting to see me and we sat in the lounging room.

"Hines said to me, without preliminary: 'Well, we put Lorimer over, but it cost us $100,000 to do it. We had to act quickly, so that it became necessary for us to put up the money. Now we are seeing some of our friends to get it fixed up.'"

"He gave me to understand they wanted to be reimbursed. I asked him why he came to us, and he said: 'You are as much interested as any one in having the right kind of a man in Washington.'

"I told him we would have nothing to do with it. He said he could only go to big people, and wanted to get $10,000 from each of ten. He left me and told me to think it over."

"Whom did he say they were to send the money to?" asked Attorney Healy.

"I have no evidence on that, and do not want to answer," replied Mr. Funk.

Chairman Helm ruled that Mr. Funk must answer the question, whereupon Mr. Funk asked to be allowed to give his answer confidentially to the members of the committee, but the request was denied.

"Edward Tilden, connected with the stockyards at Chicago, is the man to whom I was told to send the money," Mr. Funk then said.

"Has anything been said of Tilden collecting the fund?" Funk was asked.

"No."

"Were other names used?"

"No."

"Did he give you names of any contributors?"

"No, and I did not ask him," replied Mr. Funk.

"You told him you and your company would not contribute. Did you talk to any one of your officers?"

"Yes, I told Mr. McCormick, who said: 'Good; I am glad you turned him down promptly.' I also told Edgar A. Bancroft, General Counsel for our company."

Mr. Funk said he did not read The Record-Herald editorial which caused Mr. Kohlsaat to be called before the committee. He said Hines came to his office after the editorial appeared.

"Hines was disturbed," said Mr. Funk, "and undertook to refresh my memory on our conversation. He said he had not tried to get money from me, and had talked of money just in a general way. That was the first time I talked with him after the first conversation."

Mr. Funk said that his company had some dealings with the Hines Lumber Company. He said he had known Hines casually prior to the Union League Club talk. Funk declared that he was certain Hines had not told him the name of any contributer to the fund. He said he never had any difficulty with Hines, and had no antagonistic feeling toward him.

"I am here because I did not want to see my friend, Mr. Kohlsaat, go to jail," he testified.

Mr. Funk said he knew Lorimer only slightly, and never had any trouble with him or his friends. C. H. McCormick, he added, had no interest of any kind in The Chicago Tribune.

To Senator Helm, Funk said he had no idea whom Hines meant by "we."

Answering Senator Burton, Mr. Funk said neither he nor his company gave any money for the Lorimer election, and that he had no active interest in politics.

The committee then went into executive session, when the subpoenaing of more witnesses was authorized. The members would give no official notice of the men to be called. Chairman Helm said, however, that witnesses would be called in sequence as their names were revealed, which was taken to indicate that Tilden and McCormick will both be called.

The committee adjourned until a week from to-morrow to give Attorney Healy time to prepare additional evidence.

HINES MAKES DENIAL.

Says He Did Not Solicit Any Money from Mr. Funk.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 5.—Edward Hines is one of the wealthiest lumber merchants in the West. Most of his life has been passed there. He is also actively identified with many manufacturing concerns in Chicago.

When questioned to-day he denied absolutely the story told to the Helm Committee at Springfield that he, Hines, had solicited a fund of $100,000 to reimburse those who had "put up" for Senator Lorimer's election.

"I never contributed a dollar to the alleged $100,000 fund spoken of by Mr. Funk," he said. "I never solicited a dollar for any such fund, nor did I have anything to do with such a fund."

Mr. Hines was born in Buffalo, N. Y., July 31, 1868. Two years later his parents brought him to Chicago. He began his business career as a tally boy in the lumber yard of Fish & Brother. Later he became errand boy for S. K. Martin & Co., advancing to the position of bookkeeper, and then to traveling salesman.

After serving in various capacities for several lumber firms, he organized the Edward Hines Lumber Company in 1892, and since that time has been President, General Manager, and Treasurer of the concern. He lives in Evanston.

Cyrus H. McCormick, President of the International Harvester Company, confirmed Mr. Funk's statement that the Hines incident had been discussed by officials of the International. Mr. McCormick said:

"It is true that Mr. Funk told me, soon after it occurred, of the call made upon him, and the request for a contribution, which he had promptly declined. He told me this as a matter of information, knowing full well that such a proposal would not, under any circumstances, be considered by our company."

Edward Tilden, who could not be located to-night, has for many years been actively identified with the packing interests and has contributed largely to the development of that industry in this city.

He was born in Utica, N. Y., on June 17, 1858. In 1883 he became assistant cashier of the Drovers' National Bank at the stock yards. After that and until 1897 he was Treasurer of Libby, McNeill & Libby. Since then he has been President and Treasurer of the concern.

Mr. Tilden is a Director of the Drovers' National Bank, the National Packing Company, the Anglo-American Provision Company; Treasurer and Director of the Sioux City Stock Yards; Director of the St. Louis Stock Yards, the Chicago & Alton Railroad, and other large corporations. He resides in Chicago.

MAY REOPEN CASE.

Disclosure of New Evidence at Springfield Tends That Way.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—While at least one Senator has already, in private conversation, said that the Lorimer case will be reopened before the extra session ends, the prevailing opinion is that it will all depend on the definiteness of the new evidence obtained either by members of the Senate or by the Investigating Committee now sitting in Illinois on the case. The evidence of H. H. Kohlsaat, it is believed, is getting near the sort of testimony on which a reopening of the case could be based, but Senators of nearly all persuasions are loath to admit that the tedious subject, which lasted through months of the last session, will be again revived.

While no one will take the open position that the Lorimer case is res judicata, the Senate likes to consider itself a court in such matters, and to hold that its decisions once reached are unalterable. That position will certainly be advanced when the inevitable move to reopen the case is made, but the final disposition of the matter will be made by a Senate which includes seventeen new members and which has lost ten of the men who voted for Mr. Lorimer.

It seems now almost certain that a resolution declaring Mr. Lorimer's seat vacant will be introduced, and that it will be met by the cry of persecution. But with the new blood in the Senate and the new evidence being presented in Springfield it is a question whether the cry of persecution will be effective.

One new point that will tell heavily against the Illinois Senator in a new trial of his cause here will be a little trick he and Mr. Hale of Maine tried to play on the Senate in the closing hours of the last session. Mr. Hale, without the knowledge of even his Republican colleagues on the Appropriations Committee, inserted an amendment to the General Deficiency bill indemnifying Mr. Lorimer to the extent of $25,000 for the expense to which he had been put in his own defense. Even before the amendment was reached it was generally known that the plan was for Mr. Lorimer to rise and move to strike out the item, thus making a grand-stand play. That was what happened, but the Democratic members of the committee saw its object and roundly denounced Mr. Hale and Mr. Lorimer for their tactics.

Saks & Company receive important consignments of English clothes

To be thorough in main issues is to be thorough in side issues. Now, England is a side issue with us. Yet we could not treat it as such, for some New Yorkers prefer English clothes. So we betake ourselves to England twice a year, to study the styles there, the fabrics most in favor and the colors. And being tailors ourselves, we may be calculated to exercise fine discrimination in our selection of representative English tailors.

To-day our English clothes are here. Every garment is such as London is wearing. And in their essentially English features it cannot be denied that they have quiet dignity and charm. There is something restful in the indefiniteness of their soft-rolling lapels—and ease and grace and relaxation in their lines.

The assortments are probably unmatched anywhere. They include overcoats, rain coats and Raglans in all the new English cloths and colorings; and Sack or Lounge Suits—as well as that typically British institution, the semi-fitting, semi-belted Norfolk—in all the favored fabrics and including even white flannels.

CAMORRA TREASURER HEARD AT VITERBO

Notorious Owner of Continental Gambling Clubs Duplicates the Alibi of Enrico Alfano.

HIS AIRS AND HIS DRESS

Curious Career of Aristocrat of the Upper Crust of the Underworld Laid Bare by Farris.

VITERBO, April 5.—One of the most interesting characters in the Camorra, Giovanni Rapi, the supposed treasurer, was heard in his own defense to-day. Questioned by President Bianchi of the Court of the Assizes he made a general denial of complicity in the murder of the Cuocolos, called attention to discrepancies in the testimony of Gennaro Abbatemaggio, the informer, and sought to impress the jury by the assertion that having escaped the jurisdiction of the court, he voluntarily returned to stand trial.

Rapi, also known as 'O Professore Rapi, has the bearing of a gentleman, and to-day he was dressed in the stylish clothes which he affects. He looks like a retired General of the army, a generous waistband having been extended noticeably during his confinement. Speaking in a carefully modulated tone and with precision, the prisoner betrayed a desire to emphasize his social superiority over the other defendants.

By profession Rapi is a high-class gambler, and has experienced the usual ups and downs of a follower of chance. The surveillance of the Italian police becoming oppressive, he went to Paris, and when expelled from the French capital he set up business in London, subsequently returning to Italy with a fat purse, there to go broke again.

He founded the Unione del Mezzogiorno of Naples, to the success of which many of the aristocracy are said to have contributed their fortunes in a single night's play. He conducted gambling places also at Rome and Ostend. In his Neapolitan resort, Gennaro Cuocolo, the murdered Camorrista, is asserted to have gathered information of its patrons that made the latter victims of crime. Rapi had many bankers, politicians, and journalists among his acquaintances.

As a young man Rapi bore an unenviable reputation. An incident of his early career involved a woman companion. This woman had another admirer lower in the social scale than Rapi. This man met a violent death. The authorities questioned Rapi, but could prove nothing against him.

When they continued their surveillance he left the country, going to Paris, where he remained until the end of 1902. Then with other foreign gamblers he was driven out of that city, going to London, where he remained during nearly the whole of 1903.

Referring to this period in his life, the prisoner said that not being in Naples in 1902 it could not be true, as Abattemaggio said, that he was then acting as the receiver of stolen goods for the Camorra.

Rapi returned to Italy with $40,000, which he lost in establishing thte Southern Club of Naples, which he described as "a noble institution aiming at the moral resurrection of Southern Italy." The police say that the club was a dangerous gambling house. The story told by the prisoner regarding his movements from the time of the murder of Cuocolo and his wife is similar to Alfano's testimony and was in substance as follows:

"On the day that Cuocolo is supposed to have been killed I went with Enrico Alfano to try out some carriage horses. We reached Torre del Greco, where we met some of Alfano's friends, and we all dined together. I did not suspect that the banquet had any sinister object and no word out of the ordinary was said.

"I paid the bill, as I was considered the richest of the party. When, with the others present at the dinner, I was arrested, I gave this plain explanaion of the situation, and it was sufficient to bring about the release of all of us. Later I obtained permission to re-enter Paris, and I was about to recoup my earlier losses when, hearing that I was again accused, I willingly returned to Italy. I announced the hour of the train upon which I would arrive. Capizzuti, the carabiniere and police spy, profiting by the information that I had so generously given, met me at the railway station and placed me under arrest."

Rapi, continuing his testimony, said that he had been a teacher in the schools at Naples, but went to France to find more remunerative work.

"While in France did you not call yourself a professor of the University of Naples?" asked the President of the court.

To this Rapi replied:

"I do not see why, as I instructed boys who ultimately went to the university, I shouldn't call myself a professor of the university."

Rapi took particular pains to refer as frequently as possible to his acquaintance among the aristocracy in Naples. A certain Count had invited him to stay at his villa at Castellamare, where he was living with an American. At this point Signor Romaldi, counsel for de Angelis, one of the prisoners, interrupted to say:

"I suppose you acted as interpreter?"

Signor Bovio, Rapi's lawyer, jumped to his feet and shouted:

"Shut up! It is not permitted to ridicule an accused man."

Romaldi retorted: "All the lawyers have taken one side or the other."

President Bianchi energetically called for order, and the case went on.

Giovanni Rapi's original name was Rapa. He kept it through his "liceo" or high school career, but changed it when he went to teach school, at the age of 20 in Porta Capuana district of Naples. For "rapa" in Italian, means "turnip," and his pupils made fun of him. To his teaching days is also due his sobriquet of "'o professore" or "'o Maestro." He was born nearly fifty-five years ago in Casagione, and there his aged mother still lives.

Although well educated and a fluent talker in the dialects of Southern Italy as well as Italian, French, German, and English, and always dressing in the height of Parisian fashion, he is essentially a man of mediaeval times when duelling, gambling, and love adventures were the pastime of the wealthy and noble. He is at home in Rome, Paris, or London, and has made his way into exclusive sets in all these cities with perfect ease.

Rapi is scarcely mentioned in Abbatemaggio's "confession," and one must look elsewhere for information identifying "'o Maestro" with the Honorable Society of the Camorra. This information was chiefly gathered by Maresciallo Farris, who while his colleague, Capizzuti, was delving into the "mala vita" or underworld of Naples, was visiting the clubs and being entertained by the aristocracy of the town as a man of fashion.

To be sure, Rapi was known to have some peculiar acquaintances, but these were pardoned him on account of the universality of his exuberant nature, and, when he was arrested a few days after Alfano's supper party at the Mimi a Mare Inn, his aristocratic friends treated the matter as a joke. This supper party, it will be recalled, consisted of the two Alfanos, Enrico and Ciro, the latter of whom died eighteen months ago in prison; of Gennaro Ibelli, and of Rapi. It was held at Torre del Greco, not 200 yards from the Cupa Calastro, where Coucolo's body was found on June 6, 1906, the day after the murder. It is alleged that to this party, at 9 o'clock on the evening of the fifth, came Mariano de Gennaro with tidings that Coucolo had been slain, and that Alfano gave the messenger a glass of wine before he departed.

At any rate, Rapi and his companions were arrested on June 9 and kept in Sant 'Efremo Prison for over a month, when, through the intervention of the priest Don Ciro Vitozzi, accusing de Angelis and Amadeo, they were released.

On July 17 there was a great crowd at the entrance to Sant 'Efremo, for the news had gone forth that the examining Magistrate, Enrico Romano, had decided to release the four prisoners. First appeared Ciro Alfano on the arm of Ibelli. They passed into the crowd unobserved. Then came Enrico Alfano with his superior air of silence. The crowd cheered [illegible] then opened to let him go on [illegible]. Last of all came the smiling, magnetic Rapi, arrayed in evening dress—a habit he always affected on great occasions, night or day. He made a little speech to the crowd, saying:

"I was very sure of my release. In fact, I said so to the examining Magistrate from the very first. I said to Signor Romano: 'By arresting me you offend yourself, Justice, and the majesty of the law.'"

Getting into a waiting carriage, he went off to pay a round of visits to the newspapers to vindicate his character. On the following morning nearly all of them published eulogies, with his portrait.

When Alfano came to New York Rapi went to Paris, where he opened a gambling club in the Boulevard de Clinchy, not far from the Moulin Rouge.

Meanwhile the Carabinieri Fabroni, Farris, and Capizzuti had been set to work almost before the triumphant exit from Sant' Efremo. At the Unione del Mezzogiorno, or Southern Union, Farris found that the proprietor was a man of considerable importance, while Capt. Fabroni, who was looking up the police and court records, found that he had no criminal career, although everybody said he consorted with criminals. It was then merely a matter of gossip that he was the Treasurer of the Camorra.

But little by little Farris managed to reconstruct Rapi's past. He interviewed the friends of Rapi in the Galleria Umberto Primo and the Piazza San Ferdinando. Rapi was well known at all the resorts there, and his friends saw no harm in answering the questions put to them by the young and wealthy Sardinian, who was in reality Farris, who had just annihilated the brigands of his native island.

Farris thus learned that in 1900 Rapi had been particularly attentive to a beautiful woman named Elvira, a Frangese, who, in turn, was loved by a certain Pasquino, but did not return his affection. One day Pasquino met Elvira and Rapi walking in the Piazza San Ferdinando and assaulted Rapi. The latter remained on the defensive, although he was known to carry a sword cane, until friends separated them.

Not long after this Pasquino was killed in a planned quarrel—a "Jichraremento." The affair took place in a crowded restaurant, but when the police came they found only Pasquino's body and the proprietor's wife asleep behind her desk. Some months later Elvira and Rapi were reported to be in Paris—visiting Neapolitans had seen them driving in the Bois—then in London.

In 1903 Rapi returned to Naples with several hundred francs and founded the Unione del Mezzogiorno, and forced the Duca di Noia, a very distinguished member of the aristocracy, to become its President. This club prospered, and Farris found that many young men of noble families had been ruined there. This was the procedure:

Rapi, who employed the most skillful "croupiers" outside of Monte Carlo, would accept the I O U's of his visitors up to a certain sum and would then take promissory notes for the totals, turning these notes over to Enrico Alfano and Ibelli for collection. These two loaned money at a terrible rate of usury, and the fate of the young men was sealed. Some, for a release from prosecution, became "Giovani Onorati," or honorary members of the Camorra, and revealed where robberies might be successfully carried out at the homes of their aristocratic friends. Farris also discovered that Rapi was in receipt of large sums from America, and that he was financially interested in a private bank in New York, where the savings of immigrants were forwarded home at large commission.

On occasion Rapi had mixed himself up in politics and had been recommended by the Deputies of Naples for the Consular post at Cairo. He often spoke in public, and had once helped to elect Count Enzo Ravaschieri, defeating Ettore Ciccotte. In his speeches he condemned the Socialist Party vociferously, and in private spoke tearfully of his eighty-year-old mother, around whom he was ever drawing a poetic and melancholy veil.

In short, Farris established to his satisfaction the following facts: That Rabi was an important member of the Camorra; that he used his journalistic and aristocratic friends to further the ends of the society; that he was the Treasurer of the society and possibly the medium of transferring funds between the Black Hand in America and its directors in Naples and Palermo. As to Rapi's connection with the Cuocolo murder, that was to be discovered.

In the Spring of 1907 Rapi was still in Paris. Capizzuti was with Abbatemaggio at Capua, where the Carabiniere had just revealed his identity. In the slight light that the informer, who belonged to the Bassa or lower Camorra while Rapi belonged to the Alta or Higher, was able to throw upon the career of Rapi was the allegation that he had distributed $200 among the actual murderers of the Cuocolos of which Abbatemaggio had received $80.

The time had arrived when it was deemed desirable to interrogate the missing proprietor of the Southern Union. One day there appeared at Rapi's place in Paris an elegant young man, who gave his name as "Count Meli." He brought letters of introduction to Rapi. In private he informed him that he was the well-known Sicilian bandit, Failla Mulono. Rapi was enchanted; he had heard of Mulono's escape from Caltanessetta the year before. "Count Meli" told Rapi that he had learned in Naples that the gambler was being openly accused of being implicated in the Cuocolo murder, and he advised him to go there, if only to vindicate his honor. Rapi laughed.

A few days later "Count Meli" showed him an article in Il Mattino of Naples in which it was stated that Gennaro Abbatemaggio had charged Rapi with being a principal in the murder.

This was too much and Rapi started for Italy. His elegant young friend, who was neither Count Meli nor yet Failla Mulono, but Gaetano Ugga of the Reali Carabinieri, had gained his point. Rapi was on his way to Naples.

Although steps had been taken to place him under surveillance as soon as he crossed the frontier, yet Rapi reached Rome undiscovered and went to the office of La Tribuna, where he dictated a memorial protesting his innocence. Then he took the train for Naples. On this train were Marescialli Capizzuti and Farris. Neither was in uniform nor disguised. Capizzuti sought Rapi's compartment and saluted him with:

"Where are you going, saro 'Prefessore?'"

"I am going to Naples."

"How fleshy you have become. Doubtless you remember me?"

"Your face is familiar, but I do not remember your name."

"What! Not remember me? I am Maresciallo Capizzuti."

"I am glad to meet you again. I am going to Naples to vindicate my honor. I heard in Paris much gossip about me connecting my name with the Cuocolo affair. Tell me what they are saying in Naples."

"First," replied Capizzuti, "let me introduce my friend Maresciallo Farris."

The introduction took place and the three were soon chatting intimately together. What Rapi told the Carabinieri will be introduced in the trial at the proper time.

BOOKMAKER'S WIFE CHARGES CRUELTY

She Declares Ullman Struck Her and Suggested Suicide After Alleged Loss of Good Looks.

JUDGE REFUSES ALIMONY

Husband Says He Has Become Poorer While Mrs. Ullman Saved Money.

Bitter comments on the hard times which the anti-race track betting laws have inflicted on the race-following community figure in the separation suit of Agnes against Coleman Ullman in the Supreme Court, as they have figured in other matrimonial actions of race-track people recently. Ullman, the defendant, is a brother of the late Joseph Ullman, one of the best-known members of the Metropolitan Turf Association.

Mrs. Ullman states that she married the bookmaker in St. Louis in 1889, and that they have two children, Frederick J., aged 19 years, and Genevieve, aged 12 years. Her husband she alleged to be worth $50,000, while she claims that her only income is $600 a year from two houses in St. Louis. Her husband, she says, recently received $24,400 of insurance money and a half interest in the $34,000 estate of his brother Joseph.

Ullman, she charged, was cruel to her at their home, 618 West 147th Street, struck her, and threw things from the windows. Among these missiles she enumerates a pound of butter, the coffee pot, (three times;) his son's clothes, a mattress, the meat for dinner, the coffee mill, and two chairs. Her son's affidavit relates that his father pointed his revolver at his mother and made threats against her, while her sister, Theresa Malone, asserts she heard Ullman say to his wife:

"You're losing your good looks. The only thing left for you to do is to commit suicide."

Ullman's reply to these charges is that he does not believe that his wife is in her right mind. A year ago, he says, she committed the offense of shop lifting and was arraigned before a Police Magistrate under her maiden name of Agnes Malone and confessed her guilt, returning the stolen property on signing a paper on her release, in which she agreed not to bring a suit for damages for her arrest.

After this episode, Ullman says, his wife complained that she was being followed by detectives, and that whenever she entered a large department store a bell was rung to inform the employes that some one had put in an appearance whom it was desirable to watch. She employed Delos Kneeland, a lawyer, to go to the District Attorney and complain of this alleged hounding. Ullman adds that he paid Kneeland his fee and told him to drop the case.

Ullman states that he bought his wife property in St. Louis valued at $17,000, and that she has $2,500 worth of diamonds, which she carries in her stocking. He has given her $15,000, he says, in the last ten years, and believes that she has saved a large part of it and has it now in her possession. He admits that he received the amounts specified by his wife from the estate of his brother, Joseph, but says he had to expend large amounts in connection with the latter's last illness and burial. The special train to bring the dying bookmaker back from California cost $5,000, the sanitarium charges were $2,000, the debts and administration expenses of the estate were $10,000, and he had to pay $1,000 to the physician who made the trip East on the special train.

Since the law against bookmaking at race tracks was enforced Ullman complains that he has been without occupation and has enjoyed no income. He lost $3,000 in the bric-a-brac business and $2,000 in the brass business, and since then has been afraid to engage in any enterprise lest he should lose what little capital he has remaining.

One of the causes of the family trouble, Ullman says, is that he is a Jew and his wife is a Catholic. At the time of their marriage she embraced the Jewish faith, only to foreswear it later and to send their children to Catholic schools.

Mrs. Ullman's plea for alimony, pending trial of her suit, was denied on the ground that she had enough for her support without it.

AIR PERILS FOR WARSHIPS.

Naval Architects Say Aeroplanes Will Not Tend to Limit Battleship Size.

LONDON, April 5.—The menace of missiles dropped from dirigible balloons and aeroplanes as affecting the problem of the size of battleships was the subject of discussion at the annual meeting to-day of the Institute of Naval Architects.

The general trend of opinion as expressed by John J. Welch, Professor of Naval Architecture at Armstrong College, University of Durham; and Admirals Sir E. R. Fremantle and Sir Reginald N. Custance and other speakers was that the best protection against the attack of aerial craft would be found in a counter-attack by the same type of airship; and that the new danger would have no greater effect upon the limitation of the size of warships than had the introduction of the torpedo.

Arnold Hills, Chairman of the Thames Iron Works, Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, Limited, which recently launched the super-Dreadnought Thunderer was emphatic in the opinion that motor battleships without stokers, boilers and funnels, would be afloat within five years.

In this connection it is interesting to note that internal-combustion propulsive machinery is being fitted in some of the newest submarines for the British Navy and Reginald McKenna stated in the House of Commons this afternoon that the suitability of this type of machinery for other warships was receiving the earnest attention of the Admiralty.

MORETON FREWEN TO RESIGN

Plans to Give Up Parliament Seat to Make Place for Timothy Healy.

LONDON, April 5.—Moreton Frewen will soon resign his seat in Parliament for the Northeast Division of Cork County as he opposes the Government's Veto bill and desires to create a vacancy for Timothy Healy, who was defeated in the last election. Discussing his proposed retirement to-day Mr. Frewen said:

"I am convinced that the Veto bill includes every wrong method for winning public opinion in England to rational home rule views. A second chamber of destruction instead of construction is incompatible with the Federal solution, which is the only solution. It is quite impossible to achieve such a constitutional rearrangement as is desired without the co-operation of both great parties.

"The furious passions that are being stirred up must make the generous financing of the new Irish Government and the completion of the land purchase hopeless for many years. To have coaxed the Tories, to have conciliated the classes and creeds; this would have been quite easy indeed, thanks to the Federal movement for which Lord Grey is chiefly responsible. The leaven was already at work but now we are likely to be undone. However, it is not possible for me to advance such views. To do so in this crisis would be to weaken Mr. O'Brien and his new movement upon which is contingent that broader settlement which I anticipate with confidence when this present attempt is seen to have miscarried."

The government promised Mr. Frewen an opportunity this month to present in the House of Commons the problem of silver exchange with Asia. He predicts a recurrence of the crisis of 1906-07 with equally disastrous results.

JAPANESE COMMEND TREATY.

Opposition Press, However, Criticises Immigration Provision.

TOKIO, April 5.—The leading newspapers Kokumin, Jiji, Asahi, Yamato, and Hochi comment approvingly upon the conclusion of the Japanese-American commercial treaty. The Mainichi and others of the opposition criticise the Government, saying that the treaty reflects upon the honor of Japan, because it concedes the wishes of the United States in the matter of Japanese immigration. The action of the Government is approved by Count Okuma, formerly Foreign Minister and now President of Waseda University; Mayor Ozaki of Tokio, Viscount Kaneko, Privy Councilor and members of the House of Peers, who was formerly Minister of Justice and special representative to the United States; T. Miyaoka, formerly Councilor of the Japanese Embassy at Washington, and Dr. Hatoyama, who joined the Constitutional Party two years ago and is now its leader.

Count Hayashi, formerly Ambassador to Great Britain and Minister of Foreign Affairs, who has retired from the public service, says that while the agreement to limit emigration to the United States is a reflection upon this country, nevertheless it would be impossible for any Japanese Government to conclude any other arrangement.

TO MAN ST. PIERRE FLEET.

900 Fishermen from St. Malo Arrive at Little French Island.

ST. PIERRE, Miq., April 5.—The dwindling population of France's last colonial possession in North America has been increased temporarily by the arrival here yesterday of 900 fishermen from St. Malo. The men, who will man the St. Pierre fishing fleet on the Grand Banks this Spring, arrived by way of Bordeaux on the transatlantic liner St. Laurent.

These fishermen will furnish crews for fifty vessels. The fleet is expected to sail for the Grand Banks about April 20.

GAYNOR IS AGAINST THE INCOME TAX

Writes to Dix That the Inclusion of Incomes "from Whatever Source Derived" Is a Menace.

HURTS STATE AND CITY BONDS

Mayor Protests Against the Ratification of the Constitutional Amendment in Its Present Form.

Mayor Gaynor has declared himself against the proposed income tax amendment. He stated his position yesterday in a letter to Gov. Dix, which is as follows:

Office of the Mayor.

The Hon. John A. Dix, Governor.

Sir: As the Legislature is soon to vote on the question of ratifying the proposed amendment of the Constitution of the United States empowering the Congress of the United States to lay and collect an income tax, I feel it my duty as Mayor of the City of New York to say a word of caution against its ratification.

While I am heartily in favor of enabling the National Government to lay and collect an income tax, if necessary to the National revenue, I am not in favor of the adoption of the present proposed constitutional amendment to that effect, for the reason that its wording gives rise to a grave question, to say the very least, whether income from State and municipal bonds could not be taxed under it.

The proposed amendment is as follows:

"Article XVI. The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration."

The danger lies in the words (I quote) "from whatever source derived." Why were they put there? What do they mean?

It cannot be gainsaid that the ordinary and natural sense of these words includes income from any and all sources. And when you read the whole section there is no detraction from this meaning. It declares that the Congress may lay a tax on incomes, whatever source they may be derived from.

But it is argued that if this proposed amendment be adopted the Supreme Court of the United States will, by a process of learned "construction," as the lawyers call it, hold that it does not mean what it apparently, or plainly, says, but something different and less, namely, that an income tax may be laid on incomes from all sources, "except State and municipal bonds." It is said that the Supreme Court will abandon the plain meaning, and adopt this other meaning, for the reason that as the law now is, as declared by its own decisions, the National Government has no power to tax the bonds or securities issued by States or their municipal corporations. But who can assure us of that? The opposite contention is that these words, "from whatever source derived," cut away the effect of such decisions, and that the court will so hold. We all know that your predecessor, Gov. Hughes, now a distinguished member of that court, will so vote, for in a special message to the Legislature last January he advised against the ratification of the proposed amendment for the reason that, in plain words, it included all sources of income, and would have to be so construed by the courts. And all over the country competent Judges and constitutional lawyers are of this opinion.

Why should a constitutional provision of concededly doubtful meaning be adopted? The only stumbling block to the adoption of this provision is its doubtful meaning. No one wants to give power to the National Government to tax income from bonds of the States and their municipal corporations. Why, then, should not the Congress at once recall and amend this proposed constitutional amendment, or propose a new one, doing away with all doubt?

If this amendment be ratified by a sufficient number of States to adopt it, I am not able to see otherwise than that the mere doubt about its meaning will affect the price of outstanding State and municipal bonds and compel States and cities to increase the interest rate on all bonds issued by them after its adoption, to the extent of the income tax that may be probably levied. That doubt would linger until a case involving it were got to the Supreme Court of the United States and decided. That might not be in ten years or a generation from now. It could not be until the Congress had passed an income statute, and a tax was cast thereunder. Meanwhile, the mischief would persist. Why should such a situation be created, and especially when it can be avoided with little trouble and no delay?

Respectfully yours,
W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

It is understood that the Mayor wrote the letter on the urgent request of several of his friends that he express himself upon the matter

NEW JERSEY'S AWAKE, SAYS GOV. WILSON

Winning People's Fight Against the Interests, He Declares at Burlington Celebration.

HAILED AS NEXT PRESIDENT

Bryan Praises His Work and Says He Can't Sleep for Smiling Over Democracy's Gains.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., April 5.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson, Senator Martine, and William J. Bryan were the principal speakers here to-night at the Jeffersonian celebration held by the Democratic Club of Burlington County. Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, expected to be one of the speakers, but sent a message that owing to unexpected Congressional duties he could not leave Washington.

Gov. Wilson spoke on "The State of New Jersey." He declared that New Jersey heretofore had been considered to be devoted to the service of "Big Business," but she had awakened and the eyes of the entire country were now on her to see how she was going to deal with her problem.

The Burlington Auditorium was packed to its utmost capacity to hear the speakers, and prominent Democrats from all parts of the State were present. The meeting was preceded by a dinner and a reception, at the home of Thomas H. Birch, who presided at the auditorium meeting.

Gov. Wilson's Speech.

Gov. Wilson said:

"It has been a common remark in our newspapers of late that the eyes of the whole country are now upon New Jersey. If this is true, why is it? It is because New Jersey has waked up. Waked up to what? To the reconstruction necessary in order to revive and reconstitute our Democracy and put our institutions once more on the footing of their original conception and inspiration.

"Apparently it has been a matter of surprise to the rest of the country that New Jersey should thus have waked to the circumstances and opportunities of the day. What was it that the country supposed New Jersey to be devoted to? I am afraid there can be no doubt as to the answer. She was supposed to be devoted to the service of the interests, of big business, irrespective of the interests of humanity and of justice and of the equitable arrangements of our economic society. It was supposed that New Jersey did not intend to take any part in the modern reformation. It was taken for granted that she was too completely controlled by great combinations of capital to be free to follow the impulses of her people, even if they should feel the impulse of change which is now everywhere else abroad.

"It is worth while to ask ourselves exactly what we mean by the interests. I suppose that we mean those powers of money, those organizations for the control of industry, those vested privileges and legal advantages whose possessors and promoters have placed material wealth and economic prosperity, as they conceive it, and as they control it, above all needs of political liberty and common human welfare. Undoubtedly, our system of wealth has brought men of such views into great power, and they have exercised that power to the utmost for the promotion of their own ends.

"And yet it is not the men we attack so much as the point of view. The men who have controlled our recent industrial deevlopment have, for the most part, been thoroughly honest. They have tried to look at the interests of the counry as they conceive them in a large way. They have managed them in a masterly fashion, have shown powers much larger than the mere powers of busines management, as large as the powers of great statesmanship. There have been evil men among them, men unscrupulous and selfish and deliberately neglectful of the public interests, but they have been a minority among the men who have stood at the centre of our great material achievements.

"What we attack when we attack the so-called interests is a system, not a body of honorable citizens. We wish to show such men that they were mistaken, not to treat them as public enemies.

Political Alliance the Menace.

"What has most alarmed us has been that our industrial leaders, the honest along with the dishonest, in order to achieve their ends, or, rather, in order to be let alone in the pursuit of them, have undertaken to manage politics in their own interest by alliance with the political machines of both parties; their power consisting in the fact that they supplied the money which the politicians used to maintain their own control, the politicians, in turn, shaping to their wishes the policies to be pursued and the legislation to be stopped or promoted.

"The reason our attention is once more concentrated upon the tariff is that it furnishes the biggest example of all of the management of legislative action for the benefit of great interests by means of the control which those great interests have maintained over legislation. It is not necessary to expound this example, for the whole country has analyzed and comprehended it, and now knows that the chief ambush of special privilege, the chief abuse of Governmental power in behalf of special interests, is to be found in our tariff legislation.

"The great interests have sought to control legislation, partly because of a fundamental distrust of popular government on the part of the men who have been at the head of our industrial system. They distrust democracy itself. It is a notable circumstance that when in very recent months it was suggested, very foolishly but very persistently, that there was danger of the establishment of a monarchy in this country (a suggestion which did deep injustice to the statesman in connection with whose name it was made,) from quarters not a few in this country the suggestion was hailed with unconcealed satisfaction.

"There were men of large affairs who said without reserve that they thought we should be better off in such circumstances. Nothing could more clearly prove their fundamental distrust of government by the people. They do not believe that the people understand their own best interests. They hold a theory of trusteeship of government, of government for the people, but not government by the people; the theory of those who would protect the people against themselves, patronize them, act for them, construct their government in their interests, but without their co-operation and consent. Under the demoralizing influence of such policies as are embodied in the high protective tariff, this has become, in fact, the theory of the Republican Party. The 'superior' people, the people of large business and of large experience, must, in their view, determine and be sponsors for the policy of the country.

"It is against this theory that the great reaction has set in. The first victories for the people have been won; victory after victory will follow these first successes, until we have again carried our institutions back to their first inspiration and founded them once more upon absolute confidence in the people as their own masters and arbiters.

New Jersey Not Asleep.

"I do not like to hear it said that New Jersey has awakened to see at last the light of this new day. I do not believe that she was asleep; she was only deeply discouraged. Impulse after impulse of reform and rejuvenation had been disappointed because political managers did not comprehend or respond, and she had grown a bit hopeless and lethargic. Now she has taken heart and is at last releasing her energy along the channels of genuine reform. At heart her people were always progressive, always alive to the genuine needs of her life. But they did not see the way. They did not see how it was possible for them to express their purpose in action. She has now put herself where she belongs—among the progressives. The only persons she now looks to for guidance in either party are those who proclaim themselves progressives and offer her the things she has been waiting for.

"A 'progressive' is a man who sees the new ways of progress and of development, who rejects trusteeship and all conceptions of privilege and believes in common rights. Hence the measures to which we are in the present session of our Legislature devoting our chief energies—first, to cut off the secret and hidden uses of money in politics by effective legislation against corrupt practices; second, to give the people direct access to their government at every point by a thoroughgoing reform of our primary and election laws; third, to give to the government which shall thus directly represent the people the control of public service corporations—those particular corporations concerning which the argument for control is clearest, and, fourth, to provide insurance for workingmen against industrial accidents. These are the preliminary measures of justice and reform. When we have given the people control of the government and have remedied some of the fundamental iniquities of our present industrial system we shall be free to pursue a rational programme of modern reform.

"These measures are merely items representative of the general principle that industry, like politics, is not for communities, but of them; that the only term to be sought in public action is the common term—the interest, vitality, development of the people as a whole; their frank inclusion in every process, whether of legislation or of adjudication; that the general readjustment must be based upon a renaissance of rights and humanities as against all privilege and private power."

Speaking to the toast "Watchman, What of the Night?" Col. William Jennings Bryan reviewed the Democratic struggle for reforms in the last fifteen years, and praised the work of Gov. Wilson in New Jersey as one of the greatest influences for political advancement in all the East. Many of the State political leaders present took the Bryan speech as a direct boost of Gov. Wilson for the Democratic nomination.

"No citizen of New Jersey was more happy than I when the news came of the splendid victory of Gov. Wilson at the polls, he said. "He had raised the expectations of the Nation as well as the State by his campaign promises. As a candidate he made specific promises as personal pledges, and events show how as an Executive he has set about to fulfill every pledge.

"Our hopes in the West are raised by Gov. Wilson's record. I am glad to stand on this platform with him, and of his constituents here there is none moro anxious to do him honor than I.

"I think one of the best things he has done was to send Martine to Washington as your Senator.

"As I understand it, we should not have had Martine if we did not have Wilson. We are weak at Washington only in the Senate, but of the Senators gained in the new Congress, nearly all the Democrats are of the right type.

"New Jersey sent a lifelong reformer, and New York, more strange to say, has just sent us a progressive Senator. We want them all like Martine, who stands like a rock against any combination of Democrats that seeks to league with standpat Republicans and thwart progressive legislation.

"From a Democratic standpoint the last fifteen years have been dark. But I come to give you promise of the dawn. I am an optimist. I have been compelled to go through the shadow of the valley of political death so often that I can distinguish the dawn when I see it."

Mr. Bryan stopped here to review the intellectual, moral, and political advance of the nations of the world. The greatest hope in America, he said, was the rise of the wealth producers from the clutch of the money changers, and he declared that the principles Democracy had fathered had wrought the change in the public conscience.

Adolph Spreckles, Louis Brandeis, Congressman George Fred Williams, and Gov. Foss he cited as exponents of the awakening of the highest type of citizens to the universal brotherhood of man.

Much of his address was devoted to an argument for the direct election of United States Senators and for the National income tax. He touched on the spread of direct primaries, and promised Jerseymen that he would return to give them more signs of the times, such as the referendum, the initiative, and the recall.

"I suppose I am having more fun than any other man in America," said the speaker. "According to the law of compensation, I am getting repaid for all that I suffered. These progressive doctrines, now so popular, were only a few years ago likened to Bryanism in derision. My enemies used the phrase so much that it got blown into the bottle so hard that now these things have become popular they cannot draw it out. I have felt so good in the last few days I have been losing sleep, as I haven't been able to stop smiling at night over what I have seen in the daytime in Washington.

"The day began to dawn for Democratic principles very soon after Mr. Roosevelt began to show he was familiar with the planks of our platform."

Senator Martine in a brief address evoked great applause when, slightly turning toward Gov. Wilson, he said:

"I will come back here next year, if spared, to plead the cause and candidacy of a fellow Jerseyman for the Presidency of the United States."

Senator Martine said the the Democrats would revise the tariff so that the tax on the necessities of life would be reduced.

TO JAIL FOR PERJURY.

Shoplifter Who Induced Friends to Testify Falsely Goes to Sing Sing.

Rafael Toledo, who for a time posed as a Spanish Count, was sentenced in General Sessions on Tuesday to not less than two years and six months and not more than six years and six months in Sing Sing for subornation of perjury. The perjury case against Toledo grew out of his arrest for shoplifting in a Sixth Avenue department store.

Jewelry he was alleged t ohave stolen was said by him to be the property of a friend for whom he had been about to exchange it when he was arrested. To support this statement he induced two young men, by promises of part of the damages he expected to win in a suit for false arrest, to testify that they had been present when the friend gave him the jewelry.

Both men repented later and revealed the plot.

CALLS NEW LIBRARY A MERE FIRE TRAP

R. B. Stanton, Engineer, After Careful Inspection, Reasserts City Treasures Are in Peril.

DANGER IN ELECTRIC WIRES

Says Fire is Certain to Start in the Wooden Ceilings and Equipments—City Officials Agree with Him.

At a meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers in the clubrooms, 220 West Fifty-seventh Street, last night, Robert Brewster Stanton, a civil and mining engineer of 32 Nassau Street, strongly censured the builders of the new Fifth Avenue Public Library for not making the rooms in which the thousands of books are stored absolutely fireproof.

Mr. Stanton's statement was a reiteration of a warning he sounded in a letter to THE TIMES about two years ago when the interior decorations of the library building had not yet assumed form, and was inspired at this time by a final tour of inspection made yesterday in company with officials of the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, after reading the reply of Thomas Hastings, architect of the building, to his letter to THE TIMES of March 30. Mr. Stanton objects not to the system of electrical insulation as installed but to the combination of this electrical system with the hundreds of tons of wood used in the construction of walls, ceilings, bookshelves, and reading room equipments.

Discussion of the subject brought out opinions that the New York Public Library, which means as much to the people of New York as the Congressional Library at Washington means to the Nation, warranted an equally competent fireproof construction, and that the attention of the city authorities should be brought to bear immediately on a situation of affairs which might so easily lead to a repetition of a fire loss such as that occasioned in the loss of the library in the Capitol fire in Albany.

Mr. Stanton's Views.

Mr. Stanton's criticisms, as expressed last night, were also set forth by him in this letter to THE TIMES earlier in the day:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I thank you for having submitted my letter on the possibility of fire in the new public library to Mr. Thomas Hastings, of the firm of Carrere & Hastings, the architects of the building, and for publishing his reply, in your interview with him, at the same time with my letter in your paper of April 1.

I have delayed answering Mr. Hastings's criticism for this reason: I have practiced my profession as a civil and mining engineer for forty years, but I am not an electrical expert, and I wished to consult eminent electrical engineers on the subject. I now beg indulgence and space in your journal to discuss so important a matter as the safety of our public library now being housed on Fifth Avenue.

It was certainly very kind of Mr. Hastings to pronounce the statements in my letter "absurd," and then to proceed to acknowledge and confirm every statement I made, except the conclusion I drew from the facts. The wooden ceilings do exist, and the kindling wood is piled over the book shelves exactly as I stated. Mr. Hastings says: "There are few wood ceilings in the building." In the name of common safety, why should there be any in such a fireproof (?) building? Brick, mortar, and steel would have accomplished the same ends.

How many constitute a "few wood ceilings"? I counted at the time of my inspection a dozen places or more where wooden construction was then being placed around and over the bookrooms, and the workmen told me that the great ceiling over the main library room, which ceiling is so wonderfully and expensively decorated, was built in the same manner.

The "damnable folly" and the inexcusable crime of which I spoke consists in placing over the priceless and unreplaceable treasures of our public library the "cords of kindling wood," and thus creating if it were only the merest possibility of such a fire, and therefore such a catastrophe from water as I described—from any cause. Much greater is the folly of having placed in such a tinder box the ever ready "electric match," which I shall now proceed to show will in all human probability at some future time be ignited.

The Ceilings of Wood.

According to your quoted remarks from Mr. Hastings he admits, for he does not deny, the headings you put to my letter as published, that the "inflammable ceilings" exist just as I stated, and for the same reason he admits that the "new Public Library has electric wires led through pine kindlings," but says "there is nothing defective or unsafe with the electric wiring of the new library." In proof of which he states, "the electric wiring in the building is the best that brains and money could desire. * * * We employed an expert electrician at a salary of $10,000 to attend to the job for us. The work was approved by the Building Department." And as a clincher Mr. Hastings adds: "The wires are insulated in iron conduits and it would not be possible for them to come in contact with any of the woodwork in the building." This last is but Mr. Hastings's opinion. We will see what it is worth.

First, however, let me say that when I first inspected the new library building I saw many wires coming out of the iron conduits and distributed among the aforesaid "pine kindlings" in the ceilings then being constructed with no iron conduits or pipes around them. This was perhaps temporary work. To be fair to Mr. Hastings, I admit that all these wires were subsequently taken down and put into iron pipes, and, further, that the wires themselves were first insulated in the usual way before being placed in the iron pipes. But let me ask, Do all these precautions—a $10,000 electrician, the placing of the wires in iron pipes, and the approval of the Building Department—insure that absolute security which should have and could have been acquired for our great library, not the building itself? I answer, No.

Since reading Mr. Hastings's answer to my letter, as given by you, I have consulted a number of eminent electricians and electrical engineers, and it was their unanimous opinion that the placing of the wires inside of heavy iron piping was practically no protection at all, when the pipes were placed in the position and under the conditions as stated above.

In Quest of Facts.

I was not looking for opinions, but facts. I found them. Here they are:

Within the past three years there have occurred two fires in this City of New York that were caused by electric wires which were seemingly perfectly insulated inside heavy iron pipes. First, the wires themselves were insulated with the usual materials "fully up to the best requirements of the Building Department," and then put inside the iron pipes. Something happened—the unexpected and unforeseen, of course—a short circuit, a broken switch, a fuse that refused to fuse, or what not; holes were burned in the pipes, and the buildings were set on fire.

This happened in two of the great public resorts of this city, which if they had been filled with an audience at the time as many deaths might have occurred from a stampede as in the recent shirt waist factory fire.

I have to-day had in my hands the pipes and wires taken from the two buildings, and had related to me the facts in the case, but have been requested not to state where the electrically started fires occurred. I am, however, authorized to extend to you, Mr. Editor, and to Mr. Hastings an invitation to go with me and see the relics of these two fires, and hear the whole story of their cause. I shall be glad to accompany you at any time.

It is hardly necessary to add that any humanly devised mechanism is liable to accident and failure, even if installed by a $10,000 expert, and in the light of what has already happened in two of our public resorts in this city, I am free to say it is still my humble opinion that just such an occurrence will at some future time happen in the new Public Library Building as I detailed in my first letter.

What is the remedy? At the time I first called your attention to the conditions in the new library building, in June, 1909, the work was only partially done. Now it is all completed. There is but one remedy—tear down all the flimsy fire traps of the wooden ceilings and wall paneling, encase the pipes in solid cement, and replace the ceilings with nothing but steel and cement or mortar; and tear out all the varnish-covered wall panelings, leaving not a particle of such kindling wood in the building. This will cost many thousands of dollars, it is true. Are the hundreds of thousands of books, ancient manuscripts, and works of art of the Lenox, Astor, and Tilden collections worth it?

A thousand times yes! Will the powerful influence of THE NEW YORK TIMES be used to insure, beyond the shadow of a doubt, the treasures so many of us love? It is my humble prayer that such will be the case.

ROBERT BREWSTER STANTON.
32 Nassau Street, New York City, April 5, 1911.

City Officials Agree with Him.

City officials who were interviewed yesterday by a TIMES reporter supported Mr. Stanton in his contention that wood should not have been used in the reading and stack rooms of the library, even at a sacrifice of architectural beauty. They all asserted that the electrical equipment was the best that money could install, but that metal sheeting immediately adjoining all electrical conduits would easily have made the building absolutely fireproof. This was also the contention of J. C. Forsyth, chief electrical Inspector of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, and of W. B. White, Chief Inspector of the Survey and Electrical Bureau.

One of the high officials of the Interborough who has charge of the electrical department of the system, explained that the lighting of the Public Library, although requiring a much smaller voltage than that employed in the running of the Subway, was none the less likely to result at some time in a fire due to electric wires coming in contact with the iron conduit pipes holding them.

"A conduit pipe might, in turn, be touching a steel column or a water or gas main," he said, "causing the formation of an electric arch. Any piece of wood having immediate contact with the free flow of the current would, of course, be ignited."

When the attention of Prof. George F. Sever of Columbia University, consulting engineer for the city, was called to Mr. Stanton's criticism, he said that he had already taken a personal interest in the accusation in so far as he had himself requested J. C. Skerrett, Chief Inspector of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, to make a tour of inspection of the library in company with Mr. Stanton. He was not able to give a personal opinion at this time, he said, but would investigate the matter later.

Others who were interviewed said that Mr. Stanton's attitude was absurd; that it was out of the question to build even a library without the use of wood, and that the building was as safe as any could be. They said that such a matter should have been brought up eleven years ago, when the plans were up for consideration.

Jamestown Racetrack Wires Cut?

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 5.—Consternation was caused among handbook men in Cincinnati to-day when they learned shortly before post time for the first race at Jamestown, Va., that the trunk lines connecting the track with the larger cities all over the country had been cut without warning. Long distance telephone lines were brought into play in the transmission of the information necessary to the operation of handbooks and poolrooms.

POOLROOM PATRON STARTED A RAID

Ran $10 up to $500, He Says, and Gamblers Had Him Beaten for Demanding His Winnings.

GETS ALLEGED PROPRIETOR

Also "Kid" Cook, a Strong-Arm Man, and Thirteen Others, Including a Known Crook.

Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn, with Lieut. Collins and twelve men, raided an alleged poolroom on the second floor of 311 West Fifty-ninth Street, just off Columbus Circle, yesterday afternoon, and of 200 men found there arrested thirteen. According to the Deputy Commissioner the poolroom has been running off and on for two years, but evidence against it was hard to get until a few days ago, when a man, a patron of the place, made a complaint.

This man told the Commissioner that he had started with $10 and by playing in the poolroom had run it up to $500. This money was held by the managers, and when the player asked for it a day or so ago he says he was told that the bankroll was somewhat slim, and would he come back the next morning after banking hours when his money would be given to him.

Instead of receiving the money the next day he was told to wait on the corner for a few moments when it would be brought to him. He did as directed, and presently was approached by three men whom he knew as habitućes of the poolroom. Instead of giving him the money he said he had won, they set on him and before a gathering crowd caused them to run away, beat him almost insensible.

"I hate to be a squealer," this man told Commissioner Flynn, "but I can't allow them to keep my money and give me a beating besides."

The Commissioner sent one of his own men to obtain evidence against the place, and with the aid of the complainant he succeeded in getting into the room. Yesterday Chief Magistrate McAdoo issued two warrants on his testimony. They called for the arrest of John Proprietor and John Knockout, and charged common gambling and assault.

The raiders found the room protected by an icebox door at the head of a flight of winding stairs. They had brought with them the hydraulic jack against such an emergency and were about to apply it when they discovered a second door, the panels of which were of glass, but which had been covered to make it appear like a second icebox door. To break this down was the work of only an instant, and Lieut. Collins and his men rushed into the room just as one of the men within pointed to the detective who had been inside and shouted to another man in the place:

"That's the informer. Get him."

Collins says that the second man was rushing at the detective when the raiders grabbed him. This man, the police say, was Harry Cook of 140 West Sixty-third Street, who, they say, is known as "Kid" Cook, and has a local reputation as a strong-arm man. It was he, the police say, who led the attack on the man who was beaten.

Besides Cook, for whom one of the warrants called, the police also arrested Robert Kennedy on the John Proprietor warrant. They charged him also with assault, the name of the complainant being concealed by the police.

Of the other thirteen prisoners, one man was found who had pawn tickets in his pockets for pledges on which he had received $1,000. The police say he is a well-known crook, and that his picture is in the Rogues' Gallery.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo issued orders to the police that in the event that any of the prisoners were bailed out they were to be notified not to appear this morning in the West Side Court, but to come before him in his office, at 300 Mulberry Street.

According to the police, the poolroom has been frequented mostly by chauffeurs, and many complaints have been received, it is said, from the families of these men, who complained that they were losing their pay and tips in betting on the races.

SWEEPING INQUIRY INTO MATTEAWAN

Governor's Investigators to Begin One Soon and Legislature Also Expected to Act.

TO EXAMINE ALL INMATES

Alienists Will Determine Whether Any Should Be Released—Thaw's Chances of Freedom.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 5.—Far more sweeping than any similar inquiry in the history of the State will be the investigation of conditions at the State Asylum for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan, which will be begun next week by William Church Osborn and George E. Van Kennan, the special investigators of the State Department, recently appointed by Gov. Dix.

Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of this city will also move for a legislative investigation of Matteawan, and incidentally of the other penal institutions of the State, as soon as the Legislature reconvenes on April 17. This will be independent of the investigation ordered by Gov. Dix.

The investigation by the Governor's order will be made under the Sherman-Moreland act, which gives the Governor the widest powers and discretion in such inquiries. For several weeks investigators have been at work preparing the groundwork for the public hearings.

One feature of the inquiry will be the examination of all inmates in Matteawan by Drs. Austin Flint and Carlos F. MacDonald, for the purpose of determining whether any of those incarcerated should be discharged as sane or be sent back for trial. This is for the purpose of either substantiating or setting at rest the reports that for a long time have been in circulation to the effect that many of the inmates at Matteawan are illegally held.

The action of the Governor's investigators is due in a large measure to the disclosures made in the course of the various habeas corpus proceedings for the release of inmates by Norman A. Lees, who himself was confined at Matteawan for several months last year. Mr. Lees had the fullest opportunity to observe the methods used in dealing with the inmates by those in authority at the institution, and as a result he made charges of grave abuses against the management.

Interest naturally centres on the case of Harry K. Thaw, who killed Stanford White, and after his acquittal on the ground that he was hopelessly insane was sent to Matteawan. It has been hinted that friends of Thaw were behind the activities of Mr. Lees, and that these were undertaken with a view to the ultimate release of Thaw from that institution after legal proceedings begun for that purpose had failed to bring him his freedom.

As Drs. Flint and MacDonald both testified at Thaw's trial that his mental affliction was incurable, it has been suggested that the proposed step to have the inmates examined by these two alienists might have been taken for the purpose of settling once and for all the status of Thaw to his disadvantage.

"There is no legal method that I know of by which Thaw can be compelled to submit to an examination by the two alienists," said Mr. Osborn to-day. "And even should he be examined and the two physicians should declare him incurable, there is nothing to prevent him from seeking a judicial determination of his case. He has the means. The examination will be rather in the interest of such inmates as do not possess the means for such litigation, but I do not anticipate that the findings will disclose many inmates to have been wrongfully committed or held at Matteawan."

As far as possible the Governor's investigation will include all the administrative departments. It was stated here to-day that one of the first departments to be taken up would be the State Highways Commission, which Gov. Dix is seeking to have abolished.

Mr. Osborn said to-day that he did not know whether this department would be taken up next week or not. The legislative leaders hope that the investigation of the Republican State Highway Board will disclose conditions which they may be able to use as an argument in connection with their advocacy of the bill to turn the control of this department over to the Democrats, which soon will come up for final debate in the Legislature.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 5.—In commenting on the appointment of Drs. Flint and McDonald to examine into the mentality of the patients at the Matteawan State Hospital, Charles Morschauser, attorney for Harry K. Thaw, said to-night:

"The appointment of these doctors, who have already said Thaw was a paranoiac, is a farce. They might just as well have appointed Dr. Lamb, the Hospital Superintendent, and Dr. Baker, his assistant. What show would Thaw have with these two men? The unfortunates at Matteawan will have no chance whatever with these doctors.

"The time is ripe for an upheaval at Matteawan, and before we get through with the hospital officials they will all be removed."

At his home in the Bronx last night Senator Stilwell had this to say on the proposed legislative investigations of Matteawan:

"My resolution will provide for a joint committee of the two houses with the usual powers and with the addition of two physicians, to be appointed by the Governor. Their services, of course, will have special reference to Matteawan, and, in fact, it is the reported abuses at that institution especially that gives rise to the need for investigation.

"I have information which I will bring before the Senate in presenting the resolution that will startle the members and the people of the State. I have obtained this not from Harry K. Thaw or Norman A. Lees, but from investigations of my own. When this is made known I have no doubt the investigation will be authorized. The Legislature clearly has the right to order it, regardless of the action of the Governor in starting another investigation.

"As I understand it, the investigation by the Governor's Commissioners will refer to specific cases, whereas ours will be general. I have specific cases to bring up, but we will go into the whole matter of the conduct of Matteawan and other penal institutions as well."

Senator Stilwell is a member of the Senate Committee on Penal Institutions and Chairman of the Codes Committee.

HOSPITAL GOATS AT LARGE.

Inoculated with Fever and Diphtheria Germs the Police Say—One Recovered.

The police of the East Twenty-second Street Station were alarmed last night when it was learned that four black and white goats innoculated with scarlet fever and diphtheria germs were at large in the city, having been stolen from the Willard Parker Hospital, at the foot of East Sixteenth Street, early in the week. They had been kept, the police said, for experimental purposes.

Lieut. Burke immediately scoured the neighborhood, and succeeded in locating one of the goats in the stable of William Brooks, at 614 East Thirteenth Street. The new owner of the goat was enraged when the Lieutenant asked him whether or not the animal had been milked.

"What's that got to do with it?" asked Brooks.

"Why, that goat's just full of scarlet fever germs," returned the detective.

Brooks retreated to the further end of the stable and Detective Burke procured a twenty-foot rope and led the animal to the hospital. Brooks, who followed at a distance, told the detectives that he had bought the goat for fifty cents on Monday morning. The goat had not been milked.

The three remaining goats are still being sought.

MORE PLACES FOR TAMMANY.

Twenty-two Offices Put in the Exempt Class by Civil Service Board.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 5.—By a party vote the new Dix Civil Service Commission to-night adopted a resolution placing in the exempt class twenty-two Transfer Tax Appraisers, employed in connection with the collection of the State inheritance tax. If Gov. Dix approves the resolution State Controller Sohmer will have at least ten more good berths for Tammany politicians. A short time ago, by similar action, the commission gave the Controller power to appoint men to fill twenty-six places as Court and Trust Fund Examiners and Stock Transfer Tax Examiners.

All of these places were transferred from the exempt to the competitive class in the administration of Controller Clark Williams. When the new Tammany Controller made application for the transfer it was vigorously opposed by the Civil Service Reform Association, which characterized the request as a grab for patronage.

Gov. Dix has not yet approved the transfer of the Court and Trust Fund and Stock Transfer Examiners. He has promised the Civil Service Reform Association that a hearing will be given before him prior to any action.

Soon after the adoption of the first rule by the Civil Service Commission one of the Examiners concerned applied to the court for a writ of mandamus to compel the commission to rescind its action. This case will be heard by Justice Rudd in this city on Saturday, and Attorney General Carmody will make the argument in behalf of the commission.

In behalf of the application of Controller Sohmer it was said to-day that nearly all of the Transfer Tax Appraisers in New York were, or had been, Republican district leaders, who would not be expected to perform work that would reflect credit upon a Democratic Controller. The salary of each Appraiser in New York and Kings is $4,000 a year.

DIX FOR EARLY ADJOURNMENT

Legislators, However, Not Hopeful of Finishing Work Before June.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 5.—All the Democratic leaders in the Legislature are expected at the Capitol to-morrow. Thursday is the regular day for the meeting of the Governor's "Cabinet." It is understood that all the important legislation on the Governor's programme and means to expedite the work of the Legislature will be discussed.

The Governor is very anxious that the Legislature should get through with its work within three weeks after April 17, when the lawmaking body is scheduled to reassemble at the Capitol. All the legislative leaders are as anxious as is the Governor for an early adjournment, although they hold out little hope for a termination of the work of the Legislature earlier than the last week in May. Some of the leaders believe that the session must be carried into June to enable the lawmakers to give proper consideration to the great amount of work before them.

Speaker Frisbie, who was at the Capitol to-day, said that he did not look for a final adjournment earlier than May 27.

The important appropriation bills at present are being whipped into shape for presentation to the Legislature by Assemblyman Alfred E. Smith, majority leader of the lower house, and Senator James J. Frawley, head of the Senate Finance Committee. It was stated to-day that the appropriation bills are almost completed.

Direct primaries, conservation, water storage, highway reform, legislation affecting the management of the State's penal institutions, the New York City Charter, and barge canal terminals, are among the other important Administration measures that the Legislature still has to consider.

TIMES BULLETINS PRINTED BY WIRE

How the Novel Device Is Operated to Give the Public Flashes of the News.

ANY ELECTRIC WIRE WILL DO

Type-Wheel Driven by a Delicate Arrangement of Machinery Similar to the Sunflower.

In the windows of the Times Building two bulletin machines have been installed by the Electric Press Bulletin Company of Philadelphia, and another is soon to be set up in the downtown office of THE TIMES in Beekman Street. Here before the eyes of the passersby the most important news is printed hour by hour. On a roll of paper, nine feet high by six wide, the bulletins appear in letters two inches high, and they are easily read.

The man in the street is fascinated, as it is, by what he can see of the process. There is something strange about the type wheel two feet in diameter, which goes swinging round apparently uncontrolled to stop at exactly the letter or figure required. The spacing of the lines is perfect; stops are inserted correctly, and there is a finish about the whole device which has caused many expressions of surprise at its ingenuity.

As a matter of fact what can be seen from the street is the smallest part of the wonders of the new machine. The present type is a great advance on that used for the first time in this city by THE TIMES last Summer, when it did specially good work in recording the Jeffries-Johnson fight round by round, as the news was flashed over the wires from Reno. The wheels are operated from an insignificant-looking keyboard not unlike that of a typewriter, in the publication office of the Times Building, and are adjusted so perfectly that they may be controlled at a distance of miles by a current so slight that it can be sent over a telephone wire without hampering its use for conversational purposes.

The Electric Press Bulletin Company derives the power for the motors of its machines from whatever local source is convenient. This differentiates its machines from the small devices used by the "ticker" and other machines so long familiar in the field of telegraphic printing. THE TIMES machines are all connected over a single metallic telephone circuit to a keyboard in the Times Building, and print their bulletins practically simultaneously.

Beneath the keyboard of the machine is a cylinder which is kept rotating by a diminutive motor. On this cylinder is a pin to correspond with each of the keys, and as soon after a key is struck as its pin comes in contact with it the cylinder comes to a stop until the key is released. Geared to the pin cylinder is another smaller one, with electric contacts so insulated and arranged that as it revolves it sends alternate electric impulses, first positive and then negative, and so on, over the line to operate a polarized relay on each of the large machines in the circuit.

The result is that as the striking of a key causes the stopping of the pin cylinder, a printing impulse is sent out over the entire circuit, and every machine is directly controlled by it. All the undepressed keys of the board are locked, so that they cannot be operated till every machine in the circuit has printed the particular letter required, and the wheels on every bulletin machine revolve in unison with the impulse received from the keyboard. Meanwhile the operator sees exactly what he has accomplished by means of a miniature type wheel which has been mounted on a shaft at one side of the keyboard, and prints on a strip of paper, five inches wide, exactly what he is printing on the bulletin strips wherever they may be placed.

As the impulse from the operator is received by the bulletin stations, two distinct sets of operations are set in motion, the coincidence of which results in the printing of the news—the two-foot type wheel with forty-one characters on its circumference begins to rotate and a delicate electrical device known as the "Sunflower" is set in motion to select the particular character to be printed.

The "Sunflower" consists of a circle of electric contacts, each corresponding to one of the characters on the type wheel, which in appearance are not unlike the petals of the flower, after which the arrangement is called. The impulse from the keyboard is carried to a set of polarized coils, between which vibrates an armature. This rotates a small shaft that in turn carries a projecting finger round the centre of the "Sunflower," so as to establish contact with the precise petal which corresponds to the character to be printed.

A second and somewhat larger arrangement of electric contacts in the same "Sunflower" fashion, known as the "selecter," is near by, and each petal of the smaller circle is separately wired to its mate on the second one. Consequently the circuit as far as the "selecter" is made for the particular letter required, and it only awaits completion to pass the electric current on to the type wheel.

This closing of the circuit is accomplished by means of a multiple contact sweep of arm, which revolves around the centre of the "selecter" as the shaft of the type wheel rotates. The current is then carried to one of the two small magnets on the moveable latch plate of the index wheel. The magnet attracts its armature and throws a latch key in the way of the proper pin on the revolving index wheel. The latch plate is carried forward and throws a pawl into tha proper notch in the index wheel. The wheel stops and is held rigidly still, and the type wheel and shaft are also halted, the shock caused by their stay being absorbed by a pneumatic cushioning device.

As the type wheel stops the actual printing has to be done and a contact has to be made between the paper and the type wheel. The mere stoppage, however, sets certain levers in motion, which cause the printing platen to descend, press the paper on the type wheel, and print the character desired. The platen returns to its former position, the latch key and pawl are automatically released from the index wheel, and the type wheel, begins to revolve again, till the depression of another letter on the keyboard starts the whole series of impulses over again.

When the operator wishes to begin a bulletin, he first starts the small motor actuating the pin cylinder of the keyboard and thereby sets off the small contact cylinder, which, by sending out electrical impulses of alternate polarity over the circuit to the "Sunflower" of every machine in the circuit, brings the finger of each of them to a common or unison point.

The operator presses a key marked "Start." The cylinder revolves, alternate impulses to a certain number are sent over the wire, and the finger of each "Sunflower" moves rapidly round till it is opposite a predetermined segment, and a pin on the cylinder of the keyboard strikes a corresponding projection in the depressed "Start" key. A prolonged electrical impulse is thrown out, the fingers of the "Sunflowers" are drawn into contact with the proper segments, and a local current sent into an automatic switch on each machine. The switch operates and throws a local current to the motor of each machine and the type wheels and shafts are set in motion.

To produce the paragraph indent the operator presses the "Space" key three or more times, and the required result is obtained by the particular segment of the "Sunflower" needed being energized. As each letter is struck, its own petal of the "Sunflower" is energized and communicates its current to the "selecter" and thence to the type wheel. When the line is filled up the type wheels are automatically released and are carried back to the starting point. At the same time the paper is spaced upward one line, and the matter just printed is brought into view.

AUTO LICENSES COMPLETE.

All Applicants Have Received Them, Lazansky Notifies Police Departments.

ALBANY, April 5.—A circular letter has been sent to the head of every police department in the State by Secretary of State Lazansky, notifying them that every owner of an automobile and chauffeur who has made application for a license under the Callan law has received his necessary credentials for this year. The police will now be called upon to enforce the law.

"It will interest you," says the letter, "to know that 46,458 owners have registered. Under the first registration in 1910, over 60,000 owners were registered. At the present time 20,421 chauffeurs have been licensed. Under the first registration there were over 27,000 chauffeurs licensed."

MAY LEVY ON TRUST INCOMES

Court of Appeals Upholds Amendment to the Garnishee Law.

ALBANY, April 5.—Incomes from trust funds created prior to Sept. 1, 1908, which aggregate over $12 a week are subject to judgment and execution in favor of creditors as provided in the amendment to the so-called Garnishee Law, which took effect on that date. The validity of this amendment is upheld in a decision by the Court of Appeals in the action of the Brearley School, limited, against Beverly Ward of New York City.

The Brearley School recovered a judgment in the City Court of New York on Sept. 27, 1909, for $727. An execution was issued upon this judgment against Ward, but it was returned unsatisfied. The school then made application for leave to levy the execution upon the income which Ward was receiving under the will of his father, probated in 1879, which amounted to $3,000 a year.

To Report to Dix on Capitol Fire.

ALBANY, April 5.—Gov. Dix has called a meeting of the State Trustees of Public Buildings for to-morrow to discuss the cause and damage resulting from the Capitol fire. The question of asking the Legislature for necessary appropriations to reconstruct the damaged west wing of the building will also be considered. The Governor wants the Legislature to give the matter immediate consideration.

McClure's is built right. Its fundamental element is right. Its dimensions are 7 x 10—and there is magic in those measurements. The magic lies in the fact that it is the readers' shape.

It's not the publishers' shape; it's a costly shape to manufacture.

But it's the readers' shape. It induces and tempts the buyer to read—it's a book.

It's easy to hold; its bulk is conveniently distributed.

• That particular shape has long been associated with interesting and substantial literature; with a wide and varied range of topics; it's the reading table shape; the shape the public likes.

If it's the readers' shape, it's the advertisers' shape. No class of magazines is so thoroughly read, cover to cover, as the standard shaped magazines.

All of which means that the advertiser in McClure's has the highest possible percentage of chance of getting his message heard.

CITY CALLED IN CASH AS CARNEGIE CLOSED

Banks That Loaned to Cummins Lost Their Deposits or Put Up Ample Security.

HYDE WAS THEN IN FLORIDA

Whitman Seeks to Know if Any One in Chamberlain's Office Knew of These Loans.

The authorities who are investigating loans to William J. Cummins by seventeen banks and trust companies which received generous deposits of city funds have been informed that heavy withdrawals of city cash from most of these banks immediately followed the closing of the Carnegie Trust Company. The investigators have been told that on the day the Carnegie closed Deputy City Chamberlain Walsh visited most of the banks and trust companies which had loaned money to the Cummins group and informed them that unless the city deposits were immediately guaranteed by bonds or other security the entire city deposit would be taken from them.

The Grand Jury will take up this phase of the investigation shortly, and an effort will be made by District Attorney Whitman to bring out if possible whether or not any one in the City Chamberlain's office knew that these banks and trust companies had loaned to Cummins and his associates the bulk of the deposits received from the city.

City Chamberlain Hyde at that time was on his houseboat in Florida, out of touch with his office, which was in charge of Deputy Walsh. Whether Mr. Walsh will be called as a witness before the Grand Jury or not could not be learned last night.

From sources other than the District Attorney it was learned that the investigators have been informed that the city's entire balance, $175,000, in the Nineteenth Ward Bank was withdrawn immediately following the Carnegie Trust Company crash. The city's balance in the National Reserve Bank, $250,000, also was withdrawn. Both of these banks had loaned heavily to the Cummins syndicate.

The Public Bank's city deposit of $25,000 was withdrawn. In case of the Hungarian-American Bank, which had loaned the Cummins syndicate $100,000 on the same day it received a city deposit of $125,000, the City Chamberlain's office ordered the $125,000 withdrawn. But on the following banking day a check for $100,000 against the city's deposit in the Hungarian-American was canceled, that bank having guaranteed the city's deposit with satisfactory bonds. Another check for $25,000 went through, however.

The city's balance with the Madison Trust Company was $275,000. It was withdrawn by the City Chamberlain's office on two checks for $175,000 and $100,000. Two days later when the Morgan interests took over the Madison Trust and merged it with the Equitable Trust the Equitable Trust received the $275,000 deposit. The Mercantile National Bank, which also loaned to the Cummins syndicate, also had its city deposit curtailed by $150,000.

The Savoy Trust Company, which loaned $50,000 to the Cummins syndicate on the day following a city deposit of a similar sum, was notified by the City Chamberlain's office that it would have to put up satisfactory bonds. Bonds for $100,000 were produced, but $30,000 of the city's money was withdrawn a few days later.

A Borrower in Hyde's Office.

The investigators also learned yesterday that one of the borrowers from the Carnegie Trust in the Fall of 1910 made his headquarters in the law offices of City Chamberlain Hyde at 60 Wall Street.

A loan of $10,000 stands on the Carnegie's books in the name of C. S. Eaton. The loan is secured by $20,000 in first mortgage 6 per cent. bonds of the Brandon Gas and Power Company, Limited, of Manitoba, Canada. C. S. Eaton is President of the Brandon Gas and Power Company, Limited, and has desk room in Hyde's law office. Mr. Eaton is now said to be in Cleveland. His $10,000 note was on demand and bears date of Oct. 18, 1910.

Pursuing its effort to shed more light on the manner in which the Hungarian-American Bank obtained a city deposit of $125,000 and loaned $100,000 to the Cummins syndicate on the same day, the Grand Jury had before it yesterday John Alvin Young, former President of the Windsor Trust Company, a former Director in the Hungarian-American Bank and ex-member of its Discount Committee.

Before entering the Grand Jury room Mr. Young is said to have admitted to the investigators that he was aware of Cummins's assurance that he could get the bank a large deposit, but that he did not learn the deposit was to be city funds until it had actually reached the bank. Mr. Young is said to have admitted that the loan to the Cummins syndicate was made only after Cummins had assured the bank that he could swing a deposit in excess of his loan. Mr. Young is also alleged to have told the investigators that while he never visited City Chamberlain Hyde in the interests of the Hungarian-American Bank, he did solicit a city deposit for the Windsor Trust Company, but that his request had absolutely no connection with any loans to the Cummins syndicate.

The official investigators also took up the Robin load of $130,000 to the Carnegie Trust Company yesterday, and it was stated on good authority that indictments involving a forgery charge in connection with the entry of the loan on the books of the Carnegie Trust are likely to be asked for before the week ends.

The Grand Jury reported to Justice Davis in the Supreme Court late yesterday afternoon and handed in several indictments. A report that the indictments had to do with the Carnegie Trust investigation sent a crowd hustling into the courtroom. But the indictments proved to have no connection with the Carnegie matter.

One of the most interesting documents on file yesterday in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court was City Chamberlain Hyde's belated report of his investments of trust funds intrusted with him by the courts. The City Chamberlain had been ordered to file this report on or before Feb. 1. In a letter to Presiding Justice Ingraham the City Chamberlain said the suggestion to hand in the report had come from his counsel, Samuel Untermyer. The report shows that the City Chamberlain holds $2,754,833 in court funds, of which $1,216,407 is on deposit in banks designated by the State Controller. The balance is invested in mortgages and city bonds. The mortgage investments total more than $1,000,000. Many of these were placed through the Astor Mortgage Company.

South Shore Bonds Questioned.

The validity of the South Shore Traction Company's entire bond issue of $482,000 has been questioned, and upon the outcome of an investigation now pending by the Public Service Commission will depend whether or not the Carnegie Trust will be able to realize on $190,000 in South Shore Traction Company bonds which it holds as collateral. These bonds were offered recently for sale by the acting receiver of the Carnegie Trust, and were bid in by the State Banking Department at the nominal sum of $95,000 in the absence of other bidders.

It became known yesterday that the investigators of the Public Service Commission had uncovered what are alleged to be several questionable transactions concerning the issue of South Shore Traction Company stock while Joseph G. Robin was in control, and coincident with this discovery the question of the validity of the company's bond issue was raised.

The bonds were issued on June 28, 1907, just twenty-two days after the act authorizing the Public Service Commission became operative. But it was not until July 1, 1907, that the commission was appointed and began its active labors. Permission to issue the bonds was not obtained from the Public Service Commission but from the old State Railway Commission. This authorization was obtained in 1904, long before Robin came into the affairs of the traction company. As the bond issue was made without authorization by the Public Service Commission the investigators of the Public Service Commission say there is grave doubt of their validity.

The Public Service Commission inquiry has brought out that in the Winter of 1909-10 the South Shore Traction Company reported the entire stock issue of 20,000 shares outstanding. This report was sworn to by Arthur C. Hume, Secretary of the traction company. But subsequently Mr. Hume amended his report by saying that only 6,000 shares were outstanding and that a serious mistake had been made.

In countersigning the stock the Columbia Trust Company, as registrar, discovered 8,000 shares of stock outstanding which were not accounted for in the statement. The trust company called for an explanation, and was informed that these 8,000 shares of stock had been issued to cancel certificates then supposed to be held by persons who had no right to them.

The Public Service Commission, upon learning of this, ordered Secretary Hume to cancel all stock which the extra 8,000 shares was to supplant. The Public Service Commission's investigators say that the extra 8,000 shares had been issued to enable Robin to use it as collateral for loans, but it was never used for such a purpose.

Reichmann's Defense.

The line of defense which will be adopted by Joseph B. Reichmann, former President of the Carnegie Trust, who was indicted on the charge of making a false report to the State Banking Department, was made known yesterday by a friend. Reichmann's explanation of the transaction on which he was indicted is given by this friend as follows:

"While the capital of the Carnegie Trust Company was impaired, as charged, the manner of its impairment was brought about in a simple manner and one which reflects no dishonest motives on the company's officials. The impairment was occasioned by the delay in the receipt of a block of municipal bonds of Schenectady, I believe. The Carnegie Trust Company had sold a block of city and State bonds in order to buy the Schnectady bonds, as the latter paid a larger return. The money was paid for the Schnectady bonds in August of last year, but the bonds were late in arriving.

"Just at that time Reichmann and his associates knew that an examination by the State Banking Department was due. There was no tip to that effect. It was the regular quarterly examination, and the bank officials wished to restore the impaired capital by bringing new money into the company. Reichmann and William J. Cummins went to Joseph G. Robin, who had been a Director in the Carnegie and was still a depositor there, and asked him to participate to the extent of $130,000 in a loan to Joseph Marcus, an east side banker, which was on the Carnegie books, and secured by a valuable mortgage.

"Robin agreed to this, but instead of sending cash he sent city bonds to the extent of $130,000. Moreover, he took all the security for the Marcus loan.

"When it came time to make an entry in the Carnegie books an error was made by the auditor. He entered the $130,000 as bills payable, which would have been all right had he reduced the liability on the Marcus loan a similar sum. But as it was, no such reduction in the Marcus loan was made. When the call came for a report to the State Banking Department, on Aug. 31, the Banking Department was consulted about the error and advised entering the $130,000 as a participation loan and reducing the Marcus loan to the extent of $130,000. This was accordingly done.

"There was no effort to conceal the transaction as has been alleged. Instead the page of the minute book containing the original entry was placed in Mr. Reichmann's desk for future reference, and when the Executive Committee met the week following the original Robin loan, the new entry was made with the full consent of the State Banking Department. Such is the explanation of the transaction for which Mr. Reichmann has been indicted for a misdemeanor."

Seek Buyer for Carnegie Vaults.

The State Banking Department has had an appraisal made of the Carnegie Safe Deposit Company's massive vaults with the idea of taking steps to collect the $400,000 owed by that concern to the Carnegie Trust Company. It is understood that the value of the vaults reached by the State Banking Department's appraisers is only $200,000. These vaults are rated as the most expensive in the country. They were built at a cost of $600,000 by the Bethlehem Steel Company. The Carnegie Trust Company owns 41 per cent. of the Carnegie Safe Deposit Company stock, and 51 per cent. is owned by the C. C. Dickinson estate and Charles M. Schwab. In case the State Banking Department, in its capacity as acting receiver, attempts to dispose of the vaults it is believed that the Mercantile Safety Deposit Company, just across the street from the Carnegie Trust, would be a likely bidder, as the Mercantile is preparing to move into larger quarters.

A horde of second-hand furniture dealers is haunting the Carnegie Trust Company making secret bids on the handsome mahogany furniture which is being disposed of by the State Banking Department. The entire furnishings of the trust company have been appraised at $15,000, although the purchase price a few years ago was $113,000.

State Superintendent of Banks Cheney has notified Gov. Dix that he will be in Albany to-day to confer with him regarding Carnegie Trust affairs. The Governor while here a few days ago went over the correspondence involved in this matter preparatory to discussing it with Mr. Cheney. The Governor will not take up the appointment of a new State Superintendent of Banks for several days.

WOULD LENGTHEN MANHATTAN ISLAND

Engineer Thomson Thinks a Four-Mile Extension Should Be Built Down the Harbor.

SUBWAY TO STATEN ISLAND

Says Plenty of Long Piers Could Be Constructed for the Biggest Liners on the Reclaimed Land.

T. Kennard Thomson, a consulting engineer of 50 Church Street, has written to the Mayor suggesting a novel method for the solution of the city's docking and freight transportation problems. Taking his cue from the extension of Governors Island by the erection of a sea wall and the filling in of a large part of the harbor, he has proposed that New York should boldly launch out on a similar reclamation plan and continue the island of Manhattan right out into the harbor. Here is Mr. Thomson's letter:

> April 4, 1911.
> Hon. W. J. Gaynor, Mayor,
> Sir: Knowing that you and Mr. Tomkins are deeply interested in the future welfare of New York harbor facilities, I take the liberty of submitting a scheme which, it seems, would accomplish all that you are after and more, and far more than pay for itself, as it would at once add 1,460 acres of the most valuable waterfront land in the world to New York City, to say nothing of the great increase in the value of Staten Island. As an engineer, I know there are no obstacles to prevent absolutely safe and economical construction.
>
> My proposition is simply to build substantial sea walls, a little over half a mile apart, from the Battery toward Staten Island, for about four miles. Between these sea walls place two, four, or six track subways, and then fill in the remaining space by pumping sand out of the channels. From these concrete sea walls docks could be built out, as required.
>
> From the end of this new-made land to Staten Island construct an eight-track tunnel, and then encircle Manhattan and Staten Islands with four-track tunnels, to carry any full sized freight car.
>
> In order to be brief, I have not gone into detail, but it would take a very vivid imagination a long time to think of all the ways this would develop Manahttan and Staten Islands.
>
> Trusting that you will persuade the War Department to sanction this means of making New York City the greatest port in the world, I am, sir, Yours respectfully,
> T. KENNARD THOMSON.

Mr. Thomson has of late made a specialty of foundation work, and was the consulting engineer on the foundation work of the Singer, the City Investing, the new Municipal, the Banking Trust, and other large buildings. He has done a great deal of work on pneumatic caissons, and designed the work of that nature for the bridges over the Ohio, Monongahela, Susquehanna, Missouri, and Harlem Rivers, and in particular the Hartford stone bridge over the Connecticut River. Speaking yesterday of his plan he said:

"It seems to me that there are no engineering difficulties of importance in the way of it, and that to speak of cost in comparison with what it could do for the city is unnecessary. I have suggested running the sea walls four miles out and filling up the space in between with sand, but as a matter of fact there is no need to undertake such a great work at once. We can spend just as much or as little on the project as we please, and can go ahead just as rapidly or slowly as we please, and the improvement would begin to pay for itself from the start. For example, it would not cost much to erect two lines of coffer dams between the Battery and Governors Island. If the water was pumped out the space would be at once available for filling in or building.

"Until surveys have been made and experimental borings have been taken it is impossible to say exactly what would be found, but it might well happen that we should find that some of the river bed thus uncovered would be bed rock and that it would be possible to start the foundations of skyscrapers right on it with hardly any expensive excavation work, which in the case of the Municipal Building has run into the millions.

"Then subways could be built along the tract recovered and covered in at a very much less expense than they can be blasted through the solid rock of Manhattan. My idea is to construct a four-track subway connecting with the existing system across the new land. It could be carried on in an eight-track tunnel under the bay to Staten Island and all around that island in a four-track tunnel. I would build it large enough to carry full-sized freight cars around the whole of Manhattan and Staten Islands. The cost would be defrayed by the immense value of the land reclaimed by the city."

Mr. Thomson pointed out that radical as his idea sounds, it would not be the first time that the city has entered the land reclammation business. Much of the lower part of the island has been built up in past times. There need be no interference with the currents of the North or East Rivers, he maintains, as the reclaimed land would not at any time be carried so far south as to leave the passage between Staten Island and its extremity narrower than are the present Narrows. It could be shaped as to its sides so as not to reduce the width of the present Buttermilk Channel, between Governors Island and Long Island, to less than its present least width, and there is plenty of space on the western side to give the North River all the room it needs.

"When we hear the continual complaints of the lack of docking facilities," went on Mr. Thomson, "and such schemes as the removal of piers to Montauk Point, it seems to me that such an idea as this should receive consideration. It would enormously increase the dockage space in the extended Manhattan Island, and as the new ground was extended into the Bay so as to make a subway connection with Staten Island feasible, it would open up all the splendid sea front of that island for the use of liners. We could plan the docks so that the piers extended out in a slanting direction from the shore and thus give the liners much easier access and egress, and we could provide plenty of sites for the drydocks, which are so much needed."

Mr. Thomson admitted that the assent of the War Department would be necessary for the carrying out of its plan, as it would absorb Governors Island and probably do away with the present barracks.

Artists Evolved These Women's Coats

They sensed the beauty and grace of line that the sheer, transparent voiles and marquisettes, and the shimmering satins made possible; and created them. They used to best advantage the daring cerise, the rich Coronation purple, and the other splendid colorings that the season has brought into vogue. They varied them almost infinitely in combination, and the result, in this Gimbel collection, is a gathering probably without equal in beauty and diversity in New York today.

The picture shows two of these stunning new Coats. One, an Imported Model at $45, of soft and lustrous satin, braided in the prevailing Empire effect or with a long shawl of moire braid, as in the picture, and lined throughout with peau-de-cygne.

The other, an Imported Coat of black voile, in Empire model, lined throughout with black or changeable silk; revers of black satin or black-and-white striped silk, at $31.50.

Imported Coats of soft Liberty Satin, in a new Empire model, with fancy cord and tassel, are distinctly charming at $21.50, and jaunty Short Coats of chiffon broadcloth, well tailored, and lined with peau-de-cygne, are unusual at $16.50.

At $14.50 are remarkably smart coats, full length, made of mannish blue serge, with sailor collar of moire silk, for street and general wear. Third floor

A Great Gimbel Blouse Event!
$60,000 Worth in New Models at Savings of a Third.

Every woman—and there are already thousands of them in New York—acquainted with the USUAL Gimbel offerings of Blouses—that have thronged the spacious Blouse Section of this store ever since it was opened—will be here as early as she possibly can, this morning, for this UNUSUAL event.

The preparations have covered months—the results are truly extraordinary. Thousands of brand-new waists are ready—in over seventy-five different, beautiful and desirable styles.

Enchanting foreign models have been copied; new ones have been evolved by the best American makers. Prices have been pruned and pared until the blouse that under usual conditions would command $3 will be sold for $2; the blouse that is usually $1.50 will be $1—and so on, in proportion.

So vast is the quantity involved, and so eager are we that the great numbers of women that will come here as soon as the doors are opened this morning shall be well and quickly served, that we have provided DUPLICATE stocks, one in the regular Waist Section on the Third floor, the other on the Main floor, where we have devoted the whole Centre Aisle to the display and selling.

Materials, styles, colorings are the very newest. A few of the models are illustrated. Most of them are in the favoured Voiles, Marquisettes and Batistes, trimmed with colored embroidery. Some are hand-embroidered in solid colors, in Hungarian effects or in all white, with trimming of colored voiles, buttons, ornaments and piping. Plenty of waists in all-white, for women who prefer them. These are trimmed with Valenciennes and Cluny lace and embroidery motifs. Others are of white batiste with trimming and yokes of allover eyelet embroidery; while still others are entirely of allover embroidery.

Prices—all with a grand average saving of one-third, are

$1, $2, $3, $3.95 and $5.

In beauty, variety and value, the event is quite without a precedent; and not a woman in New York or its environs should miss it.

Throughout the whole superb Gimbel stock of Blouses, at $5.95, $6.95, $7.50 and up to $85, strikingly moderate pricing prevails. Main and Third floors

BRONX TROLLEY LINES UNDER ONE CONTROL

Union Railway Buys the New York City Interborough from the Interborough.

8-CENT TRANSFERS AFFECTED

Terms of Deal Not Yet Known, but Must Be Submitted to Service Commission for Approval.

The Union Railway, according to information obtained yesterday, has acquired from the Interborough Rapid Transit Company the New York City Interborough Railway, which holds important franchises for a system of surface lines on both sides of the Harlem River in the Washington Heights section of Manhattan and in the Bronx. The terms of the deal, which probably involves the transfer to the Union Railway of the $2,800,000 stock of the New York City Interborough, which the Interborough Rapid Transit Company owns, have not yet been made public, but they will have to be submitted to the Public Service Commission for approval before the matter can be officially closed.

The Union Railway has extensive lines in the Bronx and in Westchester County, and was a part of the Third Avenue system prior to the receivership of that corporation. It also passed into a receiver's hands in connection with the default of the payment of interest on its bonds, and the court turned it over to Frederick W. Whitridge, receiver of the Third Avenue Railway, in connection with which the Union Railway has since been operated. The addition of the New York City Interborough lines brings the Bronx entirely under Third Avenue-Union Railway domination so far as the surface traffic is concerned, and it has generally been understood that when the Third Avenue Road is reorganized the reorganization will provide also for the Union Railway system.

The present interest in the transfer of the control of the New York City Interborough centres in the matter of transfers between that company's lines and the elevated and Subway lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company at points of intersection in the Bronx and upper Manhattan.

The New York City Interborough has franchises for nine lines, of which four have been built. One extends from the viaduct at 155th Street and Eighth Avenue across Central Bridge, along Ogden Avenue in the Bronx, and across Washington Bridge to the Subway station at 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue.

Another extends from the 181st Street Subway station across Washington Bridge and along Aqueduct Avenue to University Heights and Kingsbridge; another from the 181st Street Subway station along Tremont Avenue to West Farms and Unionport, the entire width of the Bronx, and the fourth runs from the 238th Street station of the Broadway Subway through Kingsbridge and Fordham to the West Farms terminal of the Subway at Boston Road and 177th Street.

As to all these lines, and prospectively as to others building under New York City Interborough franchises, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company has been obliged under a twenty-five-year agreement to exchange transfers on an 8-cent fare. The agreement covering the transfers is so constructed that it may be abrogated, but the question of abrogating it would have to come before the Public Service Commission in connection with the application of the New York City Interborough and the Union Railway on the merger deal.

The Union Railway and the New York City Interborough now exchange transfers at many intersecting points. It is understood to be the intention of the Union Railway management to abrogate the 8-cent transfer arrangement with the Interborough. What the attitude of the Public Service Commission on this matter would be could not be learned yesterday.

CROKER SAILS, FEELING FINE.

"Fit as a Fiddle," He Tells His Friends at the Pier.

"As fit as a fiddle" Richard Croker, the former leader of Tammany Hall, said he was, when he sailed yesterday for his home near Dublin, on the Cunard liner Mauretania. He said his stay in Florida had done him a world of good, an opinion to which his friends agreed.

"Look at the number of Americans who go abroad to escape the rigorous laws against racing here. Such laws are narrow and they do not express the opinions of the majority. I am in favor of local option in racing matters. If Saratoga could have her own way there would be good racing there. As it stands racing here is going to the dogs, and this is a great mistake. The matter should be referred to popular vote."

Mr. Croker was enthusiastic over Carter Harrison's election of Mayor of Chicago. He said it was a fine Democratic victory. He will return to America in November.

Birds and Foxes on the Pretoria.

The Hamburg-American liner Pretoria, which got in yesterday from Hamburg, brought a large collection of birds. Between decks were 1,462 pheasants and 990 partridges, which are to restock preserves in Western Pennsylvania, and 92 wild ducks and 13 geese. She also brought two fine blue arctic foxes, which, it is said, are intended for a private collection.

FRAMING SUBWAY DEMANDS.

To-day's Conference of City's Representatives Again Proclaimed as Last.

The Transit Committee of the Board of Estimate will meet with the Public Service Commission this afternoon in a conference which is once more proclaimed as the last of the series required to frame up the city's demands for modifications of the Interborough's subway offer. There has been a series of evening conferences between the Commission and the representatives of the Board of Estimate since the concluding session with the Interborough's representatives a few weeks ago, and hope is entertained by the conferrees that the end will be reached today.

A report was printed yesterday that a representative of the Interborough attended a conference held uptown on Tuesday night, but this was denied by one of the alleged participants. The story that Borough President McAneny, Chairman of the Board of Estimate Committee, who holds the votes that will tie the board on the Interborough's proposal, had started to back down from the list of modifications which he was prepared two weeks ago to demand, was also denied.

After the city's conferrees have settled on their programme the Interborough's representatives will be called in again to receive the final list of demands. If Mr. McAneny and his colleagues do not recede from the position they took when the sessions with the Interborough ended a fortnight ago, there is small expectation of the Interborough granting the demands and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's offer, with an extension of its proposed routes in Manhattan so as to include a subway much like the Triborough route, will loom up large in the negotiations.

KATZENSTEIN GOT THE MEAT.

Ward's Island Employes Identify Receipts for That Found in His Wagon.

Three witnesses were examined in the trial of Simon Katzenstein, the Bronx dealer in fat and bones, who is on trial before Justice Davis in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court for receiving stolen goods. He is accused of carting away more than $200 worth of meat which had been stolen from the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, on Ward's Island. They were Dr. William Mabon, Superintendent of the hospital; Frederick A. Wheeler, purchasing steward of the institution, and Thomas Carroll, the head storekeeper.

In his opening remarks Assistant District Attorney De Ford described the manner in which the meat is alleged to have been carried away by Katzenstein, and quoted part of the conversation which it is alleged occurred between Katzenstein and Policeman Phelan at the time the former was arrested. In this conversation it is alleged Katzenstein made a partial confession.

Dr. Mabon in his testimony said that Andrew Martin, the head meat cutter of the institution, who it is alleged sold the meat to Katzenstein for a low price, had complete control over the receiving of meat. He also said that Katzenstein had contracted with Martin to remove the bones from the island.

Wheeler, the purchasing steward, was questioned about the quantities of meat purchased and the amounts paid for it. He said that the daily purchase was about 10,000 pounds. He said that the refuse and bones from the four kitchens were collected each day by the chief cook and placed in barrels and left on the dock for removal.

Carroll, the storekeeper, identified several receipts for meat signed by Martin and himself. They were for meat found in Katzenstein's wagon.

The case was then adjourned until today.

ENTIRE HOSPITAL STAFF DISMISSED

Six Internes at St. John's, Long Island City, Object to the Regulations.

ASK CONTROL OF PATIENTS

Declare That Their Resignations Were Tendered Ten Days Ago and Refused.

Six internes comprising the house staff of St. John's hospital in Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, were dismissed on the ground of insubordination Tuesday night by Dr. Richard Kalish, President of the Hospital Medical Board.

St. John's is the largest institution of its kind in Queens. It is managed by the Sisters of St. Joseph and has at present between 150 and 160 patients. The house staff was composed of Dr. F. Carlier Smith, house surgeon; Dr. Frederick Meichner, house physician; Dr. James Grady, assistant house physician; Dr. Peter Daly, first assistant house surgeon; Dr. Charles Lutz, second assistant house surgeon, and Dr. Michael McMahon, ambulance surgeon.

The six internes, it is said, found fault with the rules of the hospital. It was stated that these same rules have always been in vogue there and are the same as those in force in other hospitals. Just which ones the young doctors objected to has not been learned. Their complaint was submitted a week ago to the medical board, composed of prominent physicians of Queens, Brooklyn and Manhattan. They decided that the internes must abide by the rules and gave them a week in which to determine whether they would do so or not. This period expired on Tuesday night. Fourteen members of the hospital board met and the internes were admitted singly one after another, to their presence. There they were informed that their grievances had been considered and disallowed. It is said they still held out for certain concessions and that a motion to dismiss the entire staff was then adopted. Permission to resign was denied them.

The Governing Board then divided itself into relays to look after the patients. In an interview last evening Dr. Kalish of 36 West Forty-seventh Street, Manhattan, said that an entire new staff would be on duty this morning.

The dismissed internes were interviewed in a body last night and they had an entirely different version of the trouble to give. They said that instead of being dismissed they had handed in their resignations to Sister Loyola, Superintendent of the Hospital, ten days ago. They had entered a complaint that their patients were being interfered with and had demanded complete medical and surgical control of them. This was not granted and at a meeting of the Medical Board they were requested to reconsider. They refused to do so unless complete control of the patients was given them. At the meeting Tuesday night, they say, they were again asked to reconsider. They refused to withdraw their resignations unless their wishes were complied with. The young doctors say that they were then presented with a set of rules which they had never seen before. They all volunteered their further services until a new staff could be obtained.

Robert Bacon Gone Back to Paris.

The Hon. Robert Bacon, American Ambassador to France, returned to his post yesterday on the Cunard liner Mauretania. He has been here on vacation.

FIRE DRILL IN THEATRE.

An exhibition of how one theatre has drilled its attachés in ways to meet emergencies was given at Cohan's Theatre yesterday afternoon just before the house was opened for the matinée audience. It was to be presumed, the manager explained, that some accident had occurred that might start a panic in the audience.

The ushers and stage hands were stationed in their customary places, the house was darkened as it is during a performance, and the curtain was raised. At a whistle signal from the stage manager there was a rapid pattering of feet, a sudden inrush of light, both from the electrics within the house and the daylight outside; the asbestos curtain fell with a bang, and the fire hose was laid and manned. A man who had a stop watch said that only ten seconds elapsed between the sound of the whistle and the opening of all of the exit doors, and less than thirty seconds passed before every piece of emergency apparatus was in place and ready for use.

Drills of this kind, the manager explained, are held every few days at unexpected times. Yesterday's exhibition indicated that the drills had successfully taught the attachés how to be ready for any sort of panic.

NURSES' BAZAAR OPENS.

Friends Fill the Reception Room of Osborn Hall, Where It Is Being Held.

The reception room of Osborn Hall, which Mr. and Mrs. William Church Osborn have just built for the graduate nurses of the Bellevue Hospital Training School in East Twenty-sixth Street, was gayly decorated yesterday, and crowded with friends of the 200 nurses.

Shortly after the handsome brick dormitory was opened three months ago the nurses formed the Osborn Hall Nurses' Club. The purpose of the club was not only to promote social intercourse but to assist such outside nurses as might be found in need of temporary aid. The nurses found they needed money for this purpose, so they organized an Easter Bazaar.

Miss Lucy Minnigerode, President of the Bellevue Nurses' Alumni Association, was made Chairman of the Bazaar Committee; and a list of patronesses for the function was obtained, which included Mrs. William Church Osborn, Mrs. John W. Brannan, Mrs. George Blumenthal, Miss Mabel Choate, Miss Dorothea Draper, Mrs. Paul Dana, Miss Iselin, Miss Ruth Morgan, Mrs. George B. McClellan, Mrs. Francis K. Pendleton, and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

The bazaar opened yesterday and will be continued this afternoon and evening. Groceries, dolls, fancy work, cakes, jams, and candy are sold at the different booths. There is also a mysterious grab bag. After consultation with the District Attorney's office, the nurses are raffling off an automobile which one of the leading manufacturers of the city turned over to them. Douglas Fairbanks will auction off what goods are left to-night. The nurses hope to raise $10,000. Whatever is left after paying the deficit of their club will be used to start a pension fund.

TO GET LEGACIES AT 65.

Mrs. Olmstead's Children Will Have a Considerable Wait for Her Property.

Several odd provisions were made in the will of the late Mrs. Mary Olmstead of 713 Leonard Street, Brooklyn, which was filed in the Surrogate's Court there yesterday. The document provided that in the case of her own children none was to get his bequest until he reached the age of 65 and her grandchildren must wait for theirs until they are 35.

Mrs. Olmstead sought apparently to provide against a contest of her will by stipulating that in the event of a contest the shares of the contestants were to go to the non-contestants.

INEZ BENNETT DEAD.

Young Woman Taken to Bellevue from Hotel Was a Drug Victim.

Miss Inez Bennett, 22 years old, of 173 Allen Street, Hartford, Conn., who was removed from the Hotel Frederick on Tuesday night to Bellevue Hospital, died last night. According to Dr. Bishop, in whose ward she was confined, her death was due to chronic veronal poisoning.

While at the hotel Miss Bennett had frequent outbursts of grief, and it was thought she was suffering from hysteria. She was delirious most of Tuesday night. She told Dr. Bishop that she had been in the habit of taking veronal in hot beverages as a nerve sedative and as a sleep producer. Dr. Bishop said that he believed her death was due to poisoning brought on by an excessive use of the drug.

Miss Bennett was the daughter of a newspaper writer. Yesterday morning he got into communication with the hospital authorities by telephone and inquired if she could be removed to her home next Wednesday. He was told that the hospital authorities had not made a thorough diagnosis of her case, and it was recommended that he come to the institution.

Fire away that notion about dark Spring overcoats being the only coats in good taste!

Brighten up!

Fancy overcoats are now looked upon with equal favor.

Some of our staidest citizens, who formerly wore only the quietest sort of Spring overcoat, now ask for livelier patterns.

Nothing obtrusive — far from it — just attractively bright fabrics well within the bounds of good taste.

Like our fancy cheviots and new Harris tweeds.

Of course we're amply provided with more modest Oxfords and blacks.

Having "what every man wants when he wants it" is our job.

Talks on Teeth

BY

G. GORDON MARTIN
(INCORPORATED)

Your Individuality

Do you know why we are constantly receiving letters of appreciation similar to the one published below?

For this reason:

We are a big enough concern to do all of the work pertaining to the restoring of teeth in our own offices. None of it is turned over to some public laboratory to be made up—hit or miss.

The average dentist does not have the equipment to do his laboratory work. He sends this most important part of the process out to be done at long range by a public laboratory.

In our office your case is in the hands of a specialist who follows it through, step by step, until it is ready to be put in your mouth.

The work is individual—made for the person who is to wear the teeth, and nature's teeth are copied so closely as to deceive anyone.

Each little characteristic of the natural teeth is kept in mind, so that the new teeth will make no undesired change in the looks or speech of the wearer.

Read the following letter from Mr. Mortimer L. Hinchman of Brooklyn:

> Dr. G. Gordon Martin (Inc.)
> Dear Sirs:—
> The dental work you recently completed for me, without any inconvenience whatsoever, is as mechanically and artistically perfect a substitution of teeth as is possible, and I recommend your method for mouth comfort, health and efficiency.
> MORTIMER L. HINCHMAN.

We invite you to call at our office for a consultation and examination of your mouth, for which there will be no charge, and let us explain what we can do for you.

If you cannot call at once, send for our book,

GIANTS AND YANKEES KEPT INDOORS AGAIN

McGraw's Men Stormbound in Richmond, Va., and Chase's Squad Idle in Indianapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., April 5.—Again prevented from playing by rain, the Giants are beginning to believe they never will be able to get in another good work-out before the season opens at home. The showers that held the Boston Nationals idle while Tenney's team was here continued all last night and to-day, putting playing out of the question. Though the game was not scheduled to begin until 4 o'clock, it was called off long before noon. To-night the sky is still threatening more rain.

Waiting for a real good day is beginning to tell on the players. They have had no good practice session since last Saturday, for it was so cold at Greensboro that the game played there Monday was a useless expenditure of energy. Wet grounds prevented hostilities at Norfolk yesterday.

When the Regulars trooped downstairs for breakfast this morning they found the Yannigans, who lingered a week in Texas under the management of Otis Crandall, after the main disivision had started its march north, in the dining room waiting for them.

The Yannigans played seven games in Texas after the Regulars left, winning six of them. They lost the seventh at Dallas on a muff and a wild throw made by one of the Dallas catchers, who was playing in the New York outfield in place of Ernest Lush, who was ill. Crandall had only nine men in his squad, and had to borrow one of the home players to fill out his team. Only eight of the Yannigans came north with Crandall, Cy Forsythe being left behind at Dallas, to which club he was sold a couple of weeks ago. At leave-taking his fellow-Yannigans presented him with a silver watch fob. In Crandall's party, besides himself, were Pitchers Rustenhaven and Jenkins, Outfielders Lush and Johnston. Infielders Manush and Fullerton, and Catcher Grover Hartley. With their arrival here the Giants' entourage was increased to forty-five persons, including seven correspondents.

The prophets predict that there will be more rain and consequently no game to-morrow. In this case the Giants, instead of remaining in Richmond until 9:30 to-morrow night and making a jump to Baltimore, will leave town before dinner on a train that will bring them to the home of the Orioles in time to get a good night's sleep before tackling the Eastern Leaguers.

Cy Young Knocked Out of Box.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 5.—Hard hits off Cy Young's delivery, mingled with errors in the fifth inning, gave to-day's game between the Cleveland Americans and Cincinnati National League team to the home players. Young was practically knocked out of the box. McQuillan made his initial appearance here in a Cincinnati uniform and held Cleveland to three hits in five innings. The score:

Cleveland	0	0	0	1	0	2	0	0	0	3	9	4

Comiskey Insures White Sox.

CHICAGO, April 5.—In an effort to protect himself from loss of money as well as of service when his players become ill or are injured, Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago Americans, had each player insured. The insurance secured covers accidents, illness, or death from any cause. The policies taken out by Comiskey call for $5,000 in case of death from accident or illness. In case a player is unable to play owing to illness or accident, President Comiskey will receive $25 a week as long as the athlete is out of the game.

THIRD IDLE DAY FOR YANKEES

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 5.—The same celestial dampness that kept the New York Americans under cover two days in Cincinnati followed them to this city, and they were idle again to-day. The grounds were too wet for baseball. An effort will be made to play to-morrow, and the New York players will be delighted with any kind of an opportunity. They are getting rusty from warming hotel chairs, but have the solace of knowing that nearly all the other teams are in the same boat.

Manager Chase would like to have taken the team to New York this evening in hopes of a day's practice on the hilltop grounds on Friday, but the necessary arrangements could not be made. As it is the team will leave here to-morrow night for Wilkesbarre. Cree and Elliott went home this afternoon. Chase's leg, injured slightly in Cincinnati, is improving from the rest, but Chase, like the rest of the players, is anxious to get out on the ballfield again. Chase, however, takes the enforced inactivity more complacently than several of the others.

YANNIGANS STORMBOUND.

Yankee Colts, Unable to Play in Jersey City, to Try Again To-day.

Manager Jack Ryan of Jersey City sent word to the Yankees' second team yesterday morning that the ball ground at West Side Park in Jersey City was partly under water and called the game off. Just because yesterday's game had to be canceled doesn't necessarily mean that there will be a double header to-day. One game is scheduled for to-day, but the chances are that the mud will be too deep to wade through. The Yannigans will try to play in Jersey City to-morrow also, and on Saturday will play in Princeton. The youngsters will cavort among themselves on the hilltop for the first time on Monday, and on Tuesday they will play Manhattan.

The Yannigans assembled at the Yankee headquarters on Fifth Avenue yesterday and talked over the disappointing atmospheric outlook. They left Baltimore in a snowstorm and ran into rain here. Duke Farrell has the youngsters in hand and says they are the snappiest bunch of colts he has seen in many a day. The party includes Jube, Kauff, and Bailey, outfielders; Roach, Litchi, and Gardner, infielders; Walsh and Russell, catchers, and Revelle, Sykes, McGraner, and Burbank, pitchers.

SUPERBAS HELD BY WRECK.

Brooklyn Team Encounters Unusual Run of Bad Weather in South.

Special to The New York Times.

DANVILLE, Va., April 5.—Instead of playing here to-day, the Brooklyn team, which left Asheville, N. C., last night, did not reach this city until this evening. A wreck of about eighteen freight cars north of Greensboro was responsible for the delay. As a consequence the best the players could do was to remain in their Pullman car at Greensboro until after 3 o'clock this afternoon. The second team, which did not leave Asheville until this morning, joined the regulars at Greensboro and came here with them.

Both Manager Dahlen and Treasurer Medicus said to-night that this was the worst Spring training trip they have ever experienced. In only one city, Nashville, have the Superbas been able to play out their schedule. In all other places they have lost a day or more owing to bad weather.

At midnight to-night the following players left for New York: Fischer, Quillon, Knetzer, Schardt, Stark, Ryan, Ragon, Myers, Burk, and Aitchisen. The other players will leave here to-morrow morning for Lynchburg, where they will play a game with the local club. Immediately after that game they will board a train for New York, arriving there Friday morning.

TENNIS TOURNEY IN FALL.

Metropolitan League to Hold Lose-and-Out Series Sept. 2 to 30.

By the adoption of the plan suggested by Theodore R. Pell of the New York Lawn Tennis Club the members of the Metropolitan Lawn Tennis League have arranged to hold the greatest series of matches for the annual championship this season. The twelve clubs which compose the membership of the league were represented, and include Crescent Athletic Club, New York Athletic Club, Hamilton Grange Lawn Tennis Club, Knickerbocker Field Club, Bedford Park Lawn Tennis Club, Brooklyn Tennis Club, Harlem Lawn Tennis Club, Kings County Tennis Club, Montclair Athletic Club, New York Lawn Tennis Club, West Side Tennis Club, and Park Slope Tennis Club.

Mr. Pell's suggestion that each club nominate three players for the singles and two pairs for doubles to begin a lose-and-out series, commencing Saturday, Sept. 2, to continue through to Saturday, Sept. 30, for the finals, received unqualified approval.

The league voted to offer the Championship Trophy, a runner-up prize in both singles and doubles, and also a consolation prize in the singles. The details were left in the hands of the Schedule Committee—Walter L. Pate, Chairman; Harry S. Roberts, Knickerbocker Field Club, and Walter Hall, Hamilton Grange. The necessary changes in the rules will be made by Otto H. Hinck and Walter L. Pate, respectively President and Secretary and Treasurer of the league.

An intercity match with the Philadelphia team of the Interclub Association of that city was also scheduled for July, to be decided in this city. There will be ten singles and five doubles in this series.

Among the delegates present were O. C. A. Child, Bedford Park; Dr. William Rosenbaum; Harlem; Dimon E. Roberts, New York; Harry S. Roberts, Knickerbocker Field; A. P. Abbe, Park Slope; Otto H. Hinck, Montclair; Walter Merrill Hall, Hamilton Grange; Theodore R. Pell, New York, and others.

HARD COURT TENNIS MATCH.

C. T. Russell of Boston Defeats W. H. Huhn of Philadelphia.

BOSTON, April 5.—The closest match so far played in the National court tennis tournament was that of this afternoon between C. T. Russell of the local club and W. H. Huhn of the Philadelphia Racquet Club, the former winning by the scores of 6—1, 5—6, 5—6, 6—4, 8—6.

Mr. Russell took the first set easily and made a hard try in the second. He led Mr. Huhn 5—2 in the third set, when the latter showed at his best and pulled out a victory. Mr. Russell forced the playing in the fourth set and made the score two sets all. The deciding set went to deuce, the local player winning. Both contestants were thoroughly exhausted by their efforts, the match consuming two hours and ten minutes of play.

In the morning play in the second round two local players, Joshua Crane, a former champion, and Dr. G. S. Derby, were matched, the former winning, three sets to one. The score were 6—3, 6—4, 4—6, 6—0.

Drawings for Squash Tourney.

Showing slightly greater strength in the lower half the draw of 38 competitors for the National squash tennis championship was made last night at the Harvard Club, 27 West Forty-fourth Street. The first round matches will begin Saturday at 10:30 A. M. The final will probably be decided Tuesday afternoon, the intervening days being devoted to competitions all of which will be held on the Harvard Club courts. The draw follows:

National Championship, (Second Round—First Round Byes.)—D. S. Phelps vs. O. de Vanderbilt, S. H. Bird vs. J. H. Williams, H. Tobey vs. L. du Pont Irving, J. V. Onativia, Jr., vs. Frank Kidde, C. M. Bull, Jr., vs. E. Lewis D. P. Starr vs. Dr. Alfred Stillman, 2d, F. H. Davis vs. winner of L. E. Mahan and N. S. Torrance match.

First Round.—Lyle E. Mahan vs. N. S. Torrance, G. O. Winston vs. A. H. Lockett, Henry C. Martin vs. G. A. Lyon, Jr., Glidden Osborne vs. H. Hadden, R. Goepel vs. W. W. Pell, George Whitney vs. F. S. Keeler.

Second Round, (First Round Byes.)—J. W. Prentiss vs. winner of George Whitney and F. S. Keeler match, J. H. Hunt vs. H. H. Boyesen, H. S. Satterlee vs. H. D. Buckley, Grenville Clark vs. F. Cruger, J. O. Low vs. A. W. Riley, M. L. Feary vs. Dr. G. W. Hawley, Malcolm D. Whitman vs. Reginald Fincke.

Princeton Wrestlers Honored.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 5.—At a meting of the Athletic Executive Committee to-day the "P" was awarded to Capt. Franklin C. Wells, 1911; George W. L. Prettyman, 1911; A. T. Ormond, 1912, and J. H. Frantz, 1913, for the intercollegiate wrestling championship, which they recently captured.

Pitcher "King Cole" Has Malaria.

DANVILLE, Ill., April 5.—Leonard Cole, better known as "King Cole," of the Chicago National League ball team, was taken ill here this morning, and will probably remain in this city until Monday. A physician diagnosed his case as malaria in a mild form.

Steinfeldt Sold to St. Paul Club.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Harry Steinfeldt, the veteran third baseman of the Chicago National League team, tonight was sold to St. Paul of the American Association. Steinfeldt, who has played with Chicago since 1905, declared that he would retire from baseball and enter business in Cincinnati.

MOTOR TRUCK PARADE.

Fully Four Hundred Vehicles to be in Line on April 22.

The establishment of a Motor Truck Committee by the Licensed Dealers' Association was indorsed by the members of the Motor Truck Club yesterday at the weekly meeting of the club, and President F. B. Porter was instructed to invite the co-operation of the Dealers' Association in the motor truck parade which is to be held on Saturday afternoon, April 22.

The reports of the various committees having in charge the details connected with the parade indicate that the parade will be a big success. The participation of at least 400 vehicles seems to be assured. The offer of E. Lescardis of the De Dion-Bouton omnibus, similar to those in service on Fifth Avenue, to be used to carry the band was accepted.

It developed at the meeting that one of the features of the parade would be a squadron of motor fire apparatus, entered by the New York Fire Department.

Among those present at the meeting were E. Lescardis, De Dion-Bouton; F. B. Porter, the Chase; John H. Kennard, the Couple Gear Company; W. A. Westlake, Diamond Tire Company; E. S. Walton, the Midtown Garage; E. C. Ludin, the Randolph Company; A. Bingham, the Metzgar Motor Company; E. A. Levy and Andrew C. Don, the Hewitt; James C. Breese, the Kelly; E. Hoopengarner, Swinehart Tires; E. B. Williams, the Goodyear Tire Company; W. W. Brocktade, the Johnson Motor Company; E. C. Stone, the United States Motor Company, and C. W. St. Louis Wins Billiard Tourney.

PITTSBURG, Penn., April 5.—The National amateur three-cushion billiard tournament closed to-night with the game between Pittsburg and Boston. By winning to-night's game Pittsburg tied with Kansas City for second honors. St. Louis won the tournament. The others follow in the order named: Chicago, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston.

In previous advertisements we have told you how important it was for prospective purchasers of HUDSON cars to secure an early delivery date.

We told you as earnestly as we could just how hard it was going to be for us to deliver all the HUDSON cars ordered for April and May. We tried to make clear the fact that the HUDSON delivery situation was a serious matter for both you and ourselves.

We naturally expected a prosperous season—the HUDSON warrants all the good things people say about it. Proof of this is found in the large number of orders we are taking every day.

We have instituted an advertising campaign for the purpose of facilitating deliveries. We are doing everything possible to avoid disappointing those who want to buy a HUDSON car and "own a winner." Will you be one of the fortunate?

You will remember that we say nothing about the mechanical features of the HUDSON—the remarkable efficiency of the HUDSON is a well-established fact—appreciated by all those who KNOW motor car values.

At this time, we are mainly interested in facilitating deliveries—in helping our customers to get their cars.

That is why we ask you to come in now and get a fixed delivery date. The longer you delay, the harder it is going to be to get your HUDSON car—the longer you will have to wait before you, too, can "drive a winner."

DEMOCRATS AND THE INCOME TAX.

Judge GRAY in his letter to Mr. AUSTEN G. FOX and Gov. WILSON in his message to the Legislature of New Jersey make appeals regarding the income tax amendment to the United States Constitution which lead in opposite directions, although both base their arguments on grounds of patriotism and disclaim partisanship. It is the Federal Judge who thinks first of the State, and the State Governor who thinks first of the Nation. It is a distinction which would not exist if there were any National emergency. Neither would it be remarked upon if there were any reason against deliberate action, and if there were not every reason why we should not think before we acted.

Judge GRAY emphasizes this point when he remarks upon the lack of consideration which has marked the action upon this subject until now. The income tax proposal is the afterthought of an afterthought. If there had not been fears of a deficit there would have been no corporation "excise" tax, and if there had been no corporation tax there would have been no general income tax proposal. There no longer is any National deficit, and the rage for an income tax may be supposed to have been appeased in some degree by the corporation tax. The moderate Treasury surplus which has established itself within a day or two is not unlikely to be increased when the tariff is so moderated that its rates shall be permissive upon many imports which have been made impossible by the "high and higher" theory of protection. With or without this addition to the National income there is no reason for haste in enlarging the taxes which the Nation collects, and which the States need. The Nation could do very well with a smaller income, and the States—especially New York—are in need of all their own resources which the income tax amendment proposes to reduce.

Judge GRAY explicitly says to Mr. Fox that he is not hostile to the idea of a Federal income tax, under suitable safeguards regarding the interests of the States. It is not every Federal income tax which is objectionable, but this specific proposal to tax everything, "from whatever source derived." The argument that this does not invade the political and financial jurisdiction of the States cannot be established until after the case has gone through the United States Supreme Court, on some appeal against the collection of the tax, and not then in the opinion of that Governor of this State who, as Justice, is in a good position to uphold views which Judge GRAY approves. In other words, the adoption of this amendment would present the Nation with a lawsuit before it got any taxes. It would get its taxes quicker and more willingly if a fresh start were made along the same road by which the country came to the enjoyment of the corporation tax. Washington dispatches have been saying that no less an authority than the President is of the opinion that without an amendment a constitutional income tax can be drafted. This is the quickest way to the enjoyment of an income tax, as certainly as the pending proposal is the most criticised and the most in danger of defeat.

The reason for proceeding according to the Constitution rather than by amendment of the Constitution is that the former method preserves the constitutional rights of the States, while the pending amendment abandons them. It is not a division of the power of levying an income tax which is proposed, but a surrender. A double taxation of incomes by both State and Nation is too much of a good thing, except perhaps from the standpoint of those who approve duplication of taxes which they think to escape. This is not a sentiment which needs strengthening. There is no deficiency of taxation any more than there is a deficiency of revenue. Such deficiency of revenue as there is is most marked in the States. State patriotism therefore requires the reservation of this source of income for those who need it most. Gov. WILSON's words, "the powers of the Federal Government in this important matter should be restored to their first integrity," ought rather to read that the powers of the States should be continued in their first integrity. He well says that this is a subject on which Republicans and Democrats can think alike. What they ought to think, in our opinion, is that the Governor proposes an excessive instead of a praiseworthy liberality on the part of the States when he asks them to surrender this source of income to the Nation without any limit as to what the Nation may tax, or any safeguard against the exercise of the right without any exceptional necessity. It is easy to imagine conditions under which no voice would be raised against this or any other tax vital to the Nation. That time happily is neither now nor within perception of any vision of the future. The Judge so easily gets the better of the Governor on the argument that the Governor is under suspicion of inspiration by political considerations, rather than the elevation of patriotism to which he makes appeal so unconvincingly.

THE AERIAL "HIGHWAYS."

This country is already plotted with transcontinental "highways" through the air, marked out on maps of favorable air currents and following the level stretches of land and water. The Aero Club, as reported in the dispatches yesterday, has stretched two new "highways" of the air across the Tehachapi mountains from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and has plotted out three more aërial routes to Chicago, and four from Chicago to the Atlantic.

The first of this new species of cartography appeared in New England, marking out the air, or rather the earth, from a perspective suspended in air, with ink of indelible red or black. This map covered the way from Portland, Me., to Burlington, Vt., and thence to Bridgeport, Conn. It was suggested that canoeists and "hoboes" might gobble up the first edition, because of its accurate delineation of the contour of rivers and railways. It discloses no ranges of mountains. Mountains are avoided or the lower ranges soared over. Cities are indicated like ragged scraps of wire screen. Objects that have color, like the forests, and direction, like the railroads, are there, but the confusing network of highways is omitted. There are no cliffs, no landscapes. The ancient landmarks will not serve. But every curve in the railways is noted, each winding of the rivers. It is a selective map, on the principle of maps for automobilists, for pedestrians, for tourists on railways, and for caravans in deserts, severally adapted to the special point of view of the traveler. None of them would make a Giant Geyser look like a boiling pot, or the Redwood Forest of California like a cabbage patch, like the "aero maps," which level skyscrapers, fill chasms, and drive steeples into the earth.

The cartographers' aviation maps may eventually lead into strange and secret places. Their highways will project over the brinks of cataracts and bridge the wild wastes through chaos to the temples of Mammon.

MEANING OF THE CHICAGO ELECTION.

It may be assumed that a majority of the legal voters of Chicago prefer a municipal administration that permits those conditions which are described by the term "wide open." The first-hand superficial explanation of CARTER HARRISON's victory will be that the people of Chicago voted for a "wide open" town. It would be an absurdity, however, to suppose that the people of Chicago would by their votes deliberately determine, not merely that the laws relating to saloons should be "liberally" enforced, but that graft and corruption should be intrenched in their City Hall. There is a pretty widespread belief in Chicago and in other parts of the country that the election of Mr. HARRISON means just this, that it will bring about exactly that condition. The election of Prof. MERRIAM, the Republican candidate, would have brought about precisely the opposite condition. Why is it, then, that in parts of the city inhabited by the "best people," where there are no saloons, no toughs, no boon companions of the vulgar gang whose dominance in past years has been the disgrace of Chicago, the vote cast for Prof. MERRIAM should have been so disappointingly small? Why should the city as a whole have made by so emphatic a majority so bad a choice of Mayor?

That leads us to broader considerations. Why was it that something like 200,000 Republicans stayed away from the polls at the election in the State of New York last Fall? Why did Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, and Indiana go Democratic? Why is it that Hartford for the first time in thirty years is now to have a Democratic city administration? Why were so many Democratic county officers elected in the recent elections up the State in New York? Why, in the town elections just held on Long Island, have some towns usually strongly Republican gone Democratic?

In explaining the Chicago election it is worth while to take account of similar political tendencies in many other States and cities. The conclusion that the Democratic Party has regained the confidence of the people might be rash, or, at least, premature. But these surprising election results, it seems to us, do indicate a withdrawal of confidence from the Republican Party. Times are hard, business is dull, profits are declining, the cost of living is high. These are conditions to cause unrest, dissatisfaction, resentment. In looking for a cause people naturally scrutinize the party in power, its policies, its acts, and the consequences of them. It is not very difficult to trace the relation between the present business stagnation and the policies of the Republican Party, at least of the great leader of the Republican Party, in the last seven or eight years. Men have given much thought to those policies as a possible cause of the ills from which we suffer.

If the Democratic victories of last Fall were due to such a state of the public mind, if it was this belief about the cause of the industrial reverse from which the country is suffering that turned so many States over to the Democrats only a few months ago, then it would not be unreasonable to conclude that these forces are still operative, and that in the City of Chicago it was a disposition to vote against the Republican Party rather than any high degree of confidence in CARTER HARRISON that led to Prof. MERRIAM's indifferent showing at the polls.

OUR UNMANAGEABLE BANKNOTES.

In giving out the April statement of Treasury business the officials inspired this comment:

> Despite the tendency of the National banks to contract their circulation in preparation for the slower months of the Summer, the addition of thirty-nine new banks to the system increased the outstanding notes of that kind to more than $729,000,000.

The extent to which the thirty-nine new banks masked the tendency to contraction of the currency of seven thousand banks is indicated by the facts in this other Washington dispatch of similar date: "Increase in National bank circulation for the month was $217,875, and for the twelve months $11,898,920." The thirty-nine new banks might have accounted for the increase of a quarter million in a circulation of $729,000,000, but they could not have accounted for an increase of twelve millions in twelve months. In other words, the point about contraction for the dull Summer months, at a time when expansion for the planting season is more natural, is not well taken.

Instead of palliating the defects of a bad banking system, it would have been better for the officials to expose its defects, with the view of substituting something better. Inasmuch as the Treasury need feel no responsibility for the banknote system, apart from its administration, which is not criticised, it is difficult to see why it should so often excuse and explain in a manner suggestive of no particular understanding of what the trouble is, and therefore how it ought to be remedied. Why should the Treasury stand as defender of the system which supplies the country with its maximum circulation of all sorts of currency, including banknotes, during the current month after a year of quiet trade and with no exceptional animation within sight?

MOBERLY BELL.

Since MOBERLY BELL was summoned from Egypt twenty-one years ago to take part in the management of The London Times the proprietorship of that journal has changed without, however, involving marked change in its character or its aims. It remains what Mr. BELL strove with all his zeal and his great energy to make it, the most important organ of British opinion, a newspaper that more than any other in England, or perhaps in the world, has concerned itself with the great affairs of nations, with the larger politics of the world, and with those tendencies in the minds and in the acts of men that shape the policies of nations.

There have been in these twenty-one years changes in the political temper of the English people, and one cause that lay very near to Mr. BELL's heart, a cause in which he was deeply and sincerely interested, that of friendly relations between this country and Great Britain, relations of ever-increasing friendliness and accord, has pretty steadily advanced until now, when Mr. BELL is called away from his labors, the friendship and the sentiment of mutual regard and confidence which he sought to cultivate is about to find expression in a written treaty of which it will be the aim to make serious differences between us impossible. Mr. BELL had many friends in this country, and his visits here have served to strengthen his attachment to the sentiments which will be embodied in the general treaty of arbitration.

Mr. BELL's energy, his great ability, his devotion to high principles, and his unflagging industry have been reflected in the character of The London Times, of which, during the last two Times, of which, during so many years, he was the Managing Director. His ideals were high, and he worked faithfully to carry them out. He died at the post of duty, literally at his desk, engaged in the labors to which he had given so many of the best years of his life.

THE TRENTON EGG CASE.

A seizure of eggs in Jersey City, which had been kept in cold storage until they became "seconds," has resulted in the decision of Judge CROSS in the Federal District Court at Trenton, N. J., that such eggs should be included in the scheme of conservation. Incidentally, the trial has shown something new concerning the bacteriology of eggs.

The dealers in the product, which was accused of decomposition and general unfitness, brought to the trial a teacher of cooking, who demonstrated that cakes, omelets, and custards made with the eggs were not malodorous. Chemists of National reputation, particularly Prof. KEITH of the Boston Institute of Technology, showed that fresh laid eggs also betrayed a bacterial count of nearly 2,000,000, with the dreaded coli bacillus among them. Where there is smoke there is fire; that does not necessarily mean that a house is afire and burning to the ground. In tests of milk a "safe" limit of 500,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter is set, but the defense demonstrated that a standard for milk was not necessarily a proper standard for eggs in the bacterial count. The odor of sterilized rubber rings, subjected to heat, had fooled the sense of smell of one of Dr. WILEY's expert witnesses. The eggs themselves had been subjected to three "smellings," first as individuals, then when broken, and later in the porcelain cups, whence they were poured into larger receptacles. As for the coli bacillus, its presence is a danger signal only when other evidences of decomposition are found.

Much is yet to be learned before standards of bacterial content can be fixed for all foods. Meanwhile properly conducted business enterprises need not be subjected to the purely arbitrary limitations of a Government bureau. Dr. WILEY has made serious blunders in other cases—particularly in his ruling that ice cream shall be always cream. He harms the very worthy cause which he champions in behalf of the consuming public and aids evildoers when he thus assails a legitimate and necessary business.

If our children and children's children feast regularly upon the domesticated African bustard, koodoo, dik dik, and water buffalo, refrigerated morsels of which from the slopes of Mount Kilimanjaro will to-night grace the table of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity in this city, it will be by the original efforts of Capt. FRITZ JOUBERT DUQUESNE, a grand-nephew of the Boer commander, PIET JOUBERT. Capt. DUQUESNE has set the Federal machinery in motion to import these edible African animals for our farms, as well as the giraffe, the hippopotamus, the springbok, and many other varieties of domesticable animals.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Woman Answers "Clericus." As might have been expected, several feminine readers have been moved to send us expressions of resentful emotion, excited in their minds by the charge of "Clericus" that when they have bank accounts they "play" with them, and for the fun of the thing pay with checks little bills which their accuser thought might better be settled with cash.

One of these indignant protests we printed yesterday. In very nippy phrases the letter gave excellent reasons for drawing exactly the sort of checks that "Clericus" found so bothersome, and explained why his suggestions as to cash payments will never be followed by the sensible woman who has learned the better way of those who have learned how to use banking facilities.

The one valid objection to the payment of household expenses by check was not mentioned by either of these correspondents—the fact that it tends strongly to substitute deferred for immediate payments, and so encourages unnecessary and extravagant purchases. That is not a slight fault, since it is not for nothing that so many tradesmen are always urging their customers to start a credit account instead of paying for everything when bought. That, for some people, is the only thing to give them a realizing sense of how fast the money is going out. Those are just the people, however, who need most the sort of training that the possession and use of a bank book give, and most of them will learn in time that goods obtained on credit cost as much as those for which hard cash is handed out.

The critic of "Clericus" was quite right, of course, when she said that the bank's only legitimate concern in the matter is as to the size of the depositor's average balance. If that of the woman depositor, she said, often ran down too low, it is the fault, not of the woman, but of her husband in that he doesn't supply her with much more than enough for meeting the current monthly expenses. That certainly is an error—when it is not a necessary precaution. Possibly a husband or two will have a word or two to say on that point, just to keep the discussion going.

Mostly a Matter of Money. According to the State Commissioner of Health, the people of this State are manifesting to a notable degree the fact that in recent years they have acquired much information about sanitation, the nature of disease, and the preventive side of medicine.

More than ever before, he says in his annual report, is the public asking why it is that the contagious maladies, since victory over them is possible, have not been conquered.

This is a question no less encouraging than it is legitimate, for the answer to it will be prompt—the preventable diseases continue for hardly any other reason than that the money provided for carrying on the war against them has been and still is inadequate in amount. As soon as the public realizes how well it pays to be healthy, and how much can profitably be invested in attaining that end, the complete utilization of knowledge already available will suffice to make at least as great a difference in conditions here as the military sanitarians have brought about in Panama.

It is mostly a question of expenditure, and that the people themselves determine.

China Is On a New Road. Much importance must be ascribed to the recently issued edict of the Chinese Government, proclaiming as a settled policy of the future that the Emperor will be Commander in Chief of the Army, and that during the minority of the present Emperor the Prince Regent will perform the duties and accept the responsibilities of the new position. This may or may not mean much, immediately, as to the competence with which the Chinese Army will be trained and led, but it does show that hereafter the military profession in China, instead of being held the lowest in the social system, and viewed with contempt by all classes down to the laborers at unskilled trades, will have something like the esteem it has in other countries.

When the half divine Emperor himself is a soldier, other soldiers cannot be despised. In this matter China has always been the exact antithesis of Japan. In the latter country, from the beginning of history, and even of legend, the fighting man has always been held in the highest honor. Limitless courage and devotion have been expected of him, and therefore both have developed in him, while the tradesman and artisan have passed for—and consequently been—beings with distinctly inferior standards. The result can be seen in the widely different reputations now possessed by Chinese and Japanese merchants—a difference which is one of the greatest difficulties encountered by the Japanese in their effort to meet the Occidental nations on their own ground.

Whether the change will mean the elevation or the depression of the Chinese character is a question to which varying answers will be given, in accordance with the prophet's liking or dislike for the military spirit and characteristics, but undoubtedly it will tend to make harder the coercion of China by foreigners, for it will sooner or later create among the Chinese the feeling of national unity and patriotism which until recently seemed to be almost entirely lacking in them. The Chinaman's interests and sympathies will no longer be limited to his own family, and the shades of his ancestors will probably soon miss some of the reverence they have been accustomed to receive.

NEEDLESS CELEBRATIONS.

Civil War Was a Family Quarrel Not to be Observed in Triumph.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read your editorial article, "Avoid Needless Celebrations," published in last Sunday's TIMES, with patriotic interest, and as a Northern veteran of the civil war commend your ideas to the thoughtful consideration of both sides in that conflict. The triumphant spirit of conquerors, doubtless, possessed the returning victors of the civil war, but that feeling has long since given way to the stronger and nobler sentiments aroused by kinship, National relations, and mutual interests.

As the war was, so to speak, a family quarrel, memorials to its victims should be erected "with malice toward none, with charity for all," sentiments which Lincoln expressed in his life and in every public act, as well as in the above words. Neither in words nor deeds should the spirit of triumph express itself for victories won in civil strife.

Your suggestion that the fiftieth anniversary of the peace which united the Nation after four years of war with itself, be made a year of jubilee should be, and doubtless will be, indorsed by every right-thinking American, and most enthusiastically received by the veterans of both armies. And may this be the sentiment of the jubilee:

"The union of hearts, the union of hands,
The union of States none can sever."

EDUCATION IN BROOKLYN.

Growth in High School Attendance Eight Times That of Colleges.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The statistics set forth by those interested in the campaign for better facilities for higher education in Brooklyn have been quite convincing as to the backwardness of our borough in this matter. However, to help to make assurance double sure, it might be worth while to add another to the interesting group of "exhibits" already displayed. According to the data obtainable from the Regents' reports, there was, during the decade from 1900 to 1910, an increase in the registration of students in the high schools of Brooklyn of 190 per cent. The number graduating each year was in the same time increased 95 per cent. The number who actually entered college from these high schools gained only 48 per cent. Put briefly, in ten years the number of high school students in Brooklyn has trebled, but the number of these entering colleges from these same schools is greater by only one-half. Our rate of growth in high school attendance is eight times that of our growth in college attendance.

How are we to explain this discrepancy? It seems to me that there are three factors to be considered. In the first place, we have had a very rapid increase in high school facilities. Since 1900 two new high schools, the Eastern District High School and the Commercial High School, have come into existence, and the accommodations and equipment of the others, especially the Erasmus Hall and Manual Training High Schools, have been greatly bettered. These advances in the opportunities for high school education have met a prompt response from the community. Our high school population has suddenly jumped from less than 7,000 to more than 20,000. Brooklyn needed more and better high schools, although twenty years ago many thought otherwise.

On the other hand, in the matter of college facilities Brooklyn is to-day practically where she was sixteen years ago, when Adelphi College was founded. Herein is undoubtedly to be found the main reason why the gain in the number of those entering college has failed so signally to keep pace with that of those entering high schools.

BROOKLYN FORWARD.

Immigrant Inspectors' Hardships.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The papers this morning tell of smallpox on the steamship Verona from Naples; the papers last week contained accounts of spinal meningitis among steerage passengers from Greece, and some of the weekly papers contained pictures and articles on the ravages of the bubonic plague in foreign lands, from which the ocean liners come. With the fire fatalities in Arch Street fresh in our minds, it does seem that there ought to be a different attitude towards our quarantine and immigration officials charged with the sworn duty of executing our Federal statutes, from that occasionally displayed by certain sensational and sentimental papers that intermittently tell, with pictures to prove, heart-breaking "tales" and "stories," all colored up for the occasion, about what is doing at Quarantine and Ellis Island.

These tales and stories are printed, even though the Secretary of Commerce and Labor has said several times that he lets down the bars for sentimental reasons, and even though the examining doctors cannot possibly be said to get any enjoyment out of performing their duty. The surgeon resorts to an operation, as a rule, only as a heroic last resort. If the laws are not properly enforced, then some such catastrophe as the Slocum disaster or the fire fatalities of Arch Street may well be expected. Then the other tack is taken, and the very sensational paper "plays up" additional legislation and its rigorous enforcement. The very legislation, previously criticised as too harsh and infamously inhumane, is excoriated, and the very officials taken to task for officiousness are cartooned and painted as negligent and remiss in their duty.

Proprietary Medicines and Patents.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your report of the recent decision of the Supreme Court declaring illegal contracts between manufacturers and distributors to compel the sale of proprietary or "patent" medicines at fixed prices, permit us to point out that this in nowise affects articles protected by United States patent.

Most of the so-called patent medicines are not protected by patent. In 1902 the Supreme Court held that the right of a patentee to fix and maintain prices on his product does not violate the provisions of the so-called anti-trust laws, and as it is immaterial whether the subject of the patent be a gas stove, a medicinal preparation, or a thrashing machine the proprietors of a food or a medicinal preparation covered by patent remain undisturbed in their right to fix the retail prices of their products.

Wants Customs Duty Off Gifts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is it magnanimous in our Uncle Sam—mighty potentate—to allow $100 worth of foreign purchases and then to limit such to one's personal adornment, thus fostering selfishness and cutting off the possibility—for many—of bringing home gifts, trinkets, and trifles, souvenirs of interest scarcely worth while, or perhaps not possible with 35 to 60 per cent. to be added to original cost on landing in America?

A few olive wood articles from Sorrento, a bit of carved marble from Rome, some inexpensive jewelry from shops on the "Old Bridge" in Florence yes, even Venetian beads—all these, intrinsically of no great worth, have a value quite their own if purchased where they have taken form.

A Swiss waist bought of the peasant who embroidered it at Appenzell brings pleasant memories of the interview later on, and is perhaps seen to better advantage on one's sister than one's self.

Vigorous Protests Against The Times's Views on Cats.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg leave to quote from your valuable editorial column of this morning an excerpt, reading as follows:

> Not everybody, indeed, would like to have a big snake wandering about the house, especially at night, but even that would be preferable in the opinion of many to dying of the plague, which has no attraction to all or to any. And between cats and snakes—good snakes—remember, some people think there is not much choice. To give up dogs for such a substitute would be, however, another matter. Dogs are different. Dogs, as has been well said, are people, and nobody ever said that even the best of snakes were people. Let us keep snakes if we must, and let us banish the cat, if we can find a fair to middling excuse for doing so, but the dog, fleas and all, must remain, lest the sum total of human happiness be too seriously decreased. It's not so large now, that we can take chances.

Another fling, (how unfeeling,) from THE TIMES at poor, persecuted pussy! If, as you aver, "dogs are people," there is certainly room for improvement in their habits. Surely, plague being caused by uncleanliness, give me the cat for safety rather than the dog.

Science, true science, proves that there is a purposiveness in all created things. Even the earth worm, if exterminated, would produce untold misery, as they are the greatest tillers of the soil. The cat was placed here by God, or caused to develop and differentiate from its wilder species, for the same wise purpose as any created thing. Does not THE TIMES know that the cat is a comfort and a pet in thousands and thousands of homes of nice, fine people, humane people?

Several very influential people in the Oranges dislike your articles on the cat.

This is a land of justice and fair play. Therefore do not use your columns against the useful cat to the exclusion of this defense of the cat. There are thousands of splendid people, I have no doubt, who do not appreciate your cat ideas, and it is only fair that you publish my opinion and the kindly opinions of others, instead of allowing only one man's ideas to be given space.

East Orange, N. J., April 4, 1911.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The present writer loves dogs, and, indeed, all animals, except snakes and worms, (if they may be so called,) but adores cats! Having a fair amount of feminine curiosity, she would give ten years of her blessed spinsterhood to know what that special cat did to THE NEW YORK TIMES to get itself so disliked!

Small Checks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What better way to pay bills, large or small, than by check? The butcher, the baker, the grocer, make poor bookkeepers, and frequently present bills which have already been paid once. They receipt their bills by writing "paid" across the face of the bill, which is no receipt at all. A canceled check, with indorsement of payee on the back, puts a quick end to an argument as to whether a bill has been paid or not. Some banks solicit household accounts. "Clericus" must be an overworked bank clerk's assistant.

ACCOUNTANT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may be that some of our badly trained sisters in the social world abuse the privilege of the checking system, but I would have to see it to believe it, that any woman with a business training—and there are thousands of us in this big city—would use a business bank and the checks that are a part of its system in any more trying way than do our business brethren.

Mercury Now an Evening Star.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of the four periods when the planet Mercury is brightest during 1911 occurs from April 1 to 10, at which period he is firmamentally situated in Pisces, southward of the sun Alpha in the constellation of Aries. At this time Mercury is situated apparently near the giant planet Jupiter, which rises about or before the hour of 9 P. M.

Mercury is an evening star during April 1 to 10, setting about an hour and a quarter after King Sol. He is, however, so close to the horizon and so near the illumination of sunset that it is rather difficult to discover his presence. As a planet, Mercury is a veritable midget, his volume amounting to only about one-twentieth that of our earth. He comes the nearest of the eight planets to King Sol—a mean of 36,000,000 miles—and revolves around our sun at a velocity varying from twenty-three to thirty-five miles a second. Mercury possesses no moon, and his atmosphere—if he has one—is probably less dense than that of Venus, now shining brightly in the west after sundown.

Complains of Railroad Smoke Nuisance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the showing up of the Police Department for their failure to suppress crime, attention may also be directed to the Health Department for its failure to suppress the use of soft coal by the freight engines of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. The Health Department has been very vigorous in prosecuting owners of smoking automobiles, but the engines of this railroad almost hourly go through the Hunts Point section of the Bronx emitting great volumes of soft coal smoke. Complaints have been made to the department by individuals and by the taxpayers' associations without avail. The great New Haven Railroad is too strong; its influence too wide, to be interfered with in this matter.

STOVER WOULD DENY PARSONS A HEARING

BORGLUM WRITES TO GAYNOR

Commends Parsons as an Able Public Servant and Calls Stover a Novice and a Dreamer.

Many friends of Samuel Parsons, Jr., the landscape architect of the Park Board, expect to be present at the meeting of the board in the Arsenal this afternoon, at which Commissioner Stover will move that Mr. Parsons be dismissed. No formal charges have been filed against him and he is still ignorant of the reasons for Mr. Stover's attitude and as to why his March pay was held up, except for what the Commissioner said in his letter to the Mayor.

When Mr. Stover was asked yesterday whether he intended to suggest that any opportunity be given to Mr. Parsons to reply to the allegations thus made against him, he replied that he did not.

"Mr. Parsons," he said, "can be removed by the vote of the board, and there is no reason why we should call on him for any statement."

It was reported yesterday that the Commissioner intended to bring accusations against the architect concerning the contracts for the soil necessary for the rehabilitation of certain portions of the parks, many of which have fallen to the New Jersey Company, 11 Broadway. The Commissioner denied that he had any intention of bringing up this matter.

"I stand on the charges contained in my letter to the Mayor," he said. "If you listen to all the graft rumors about you will hear some curious things. Why, it is even asserted that the dinner given to me at the Hotel Plaza last Spring by a number of the most prominent residents in the city was got up in order to induce me to favor that company. The stories are absurd, and I have never associated Mr. Parsons with them."

Mr. Parsons himself declined to discuss the report, and declared that he had nothing he wished to say concerning the controversy between him and the Commissioner.

Several of his friends, however, came out yesterday with strong statements in his behalf, and Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, who is head of the citizens' committee that is seeking to preserve Central Park, wrote a letter to the Mayor comparing Mr. Parsons and Mr. Stover, very much to the disadvantage of the latter. Speaking of the charge that Mr. Parsons had been "excused" from the Park Department for 29 per cent. of the hours he should have been on duty in 1910, a charge based on returns from the Bureau of Municipal Research, Mr. Borglum said:

"It is a pity that with the splendid service the Bureau of Municipal Research can render such a city as New York in its present period of uplift, an item so paltry in its significance should form the bulk of serious criticism of a high official's service, and be used to measure his service by the time spent within the doors of his office, as with the other employes of the department. Surely Mr. Stover does not stop dreaming as he steps out of his office, and yet his exacting executive duties more really stop when he leaves his office than can that of the designer of our parks."

Replying to the assertion of Mr. Stover that Mr. Parsons had made few constructive suggestions and has obstructed those of the Commissioner, Mr. Borglum declared:

"I would like to say that in my four years of intimate acquaintance with Central Park I never heard of one single bit of constructive work projected for Central Park, Riverside Park, the extension of the Drive, not heartily supported by if not actualy initiated by Samuel Parsons. I have never heard of a single plan during the present Commissioner's term that had any constructive sense in it—and I am not unmindful of many of Mr. Stover's dreams—that was not the suggestion of Samuel Parsons or some previous Commissioner."

After some caustic comment on the wide schemes put forward at various times by Commissioner Stover Mr. Borglum said:

"The large gift of rhododendrons in the Park to-day became the property of the city through the direct influence of Samuel Parsons. He, more than any other man, has urged upon the city authorities during the last ten years that the Park was deteriorating, that the Park land itself was below grade, that it was without water, and that the trees required proper surgery; that the shrubs were suffering from old age and needed replanting. To Samuel Parsons's report to Mr. Wilcox of Oct. 13, 1902, were affixed the names of N. L. Britton, S. E. Fernow, and J. A. Pettigrew. Again, as Park Commissioner in 1907, he reported on the condition of the Park, and urged upon the city certain expenditures. These expenditures were not confined to soil, but referred to planting, water, and general care of the Park."

Mr. Borglum declared that it was Mr. Parsons who brought to the attention of the Parks and Playgrounds Association two years ago the poor condition of the water in Central Park, and that he had urged and reurged the necessity of a proper system of drainage in the Park.

"When you asked me to recommend a Commissioner," Mr. Borglum wrote, "I declined to do so. I declined to recommend Mr. Stover, although he had strongly urged me to speak for him. I declined to do so, because I did not believe he possessed a particle of executive ability."

He recalled that he had advised the Mayor to appoint a commission to investigate the park government of the city, and had this to say of present conditions:

"There is not efficiency enough in the management of the parks of Manhattan to keep a $3,000 business out of a bankruptcy court for three months, and it should have become patent to the city officials long ago that fifteen or twenty busy private citizens would not spend time and money month in and month out watching closely the city's property unless they had a very definite and satisfactory reason for continuing their interest.

"No government exists in the Park Department. There is no management or responsibility. The head of the department wholly lacks the confidence of his subordinates."

Mr. Borglum directly contradicted the assertion of the Commissioner that he had employed C. B. Maynadier of the Bureau of Soils of the Department of Agriculture because he did not feel it wise to rely on Mr. Parsons either for advice or suggestions. Of this Mr. Borglum said:

"Mr. Stover in that statement, as in a number of other statements, probably because he has forgotten, is saying what is absolutely untrue. The investigations that have brought about the employment of Mr. Maynadier were made by my committee, and the plan of rehabilitating the soil met with so many outside suggestions that the employment of Mr. Maynadier, over which Mr. Stover consulted with me constantly, was simply to check the various methods and to help in arriving at one best suited to Central Park.

"In conclusion I want to say I do not doubt Mr. Stover could secure a more quiescent landscape architect; some one who could somehow shape those glorious dreams our department, if not our parks, has proved itself so fertile in. But that the Commissioner could secure an architect mature in the peculiar service our park needs—experienced in the work that produced under Andrew H. Greene a park property unsurpassed anywhere—is more than doubtful, and it seems an unpardonable public offense that a novice in park work could dismiss such a public servant."

Hearing on Proposed Taxicab Laws.

The Aldermen's Law Committee will hold a public hearing at the City Hall next Monday afternoon on various proposed ordinances to regulate the cab and taxicab traffic of the city. The most important of the measures is that introduced by Alderman Nicoll, which calls for a great reduction in the fares and the abolishment of the private stands at hotels and restaurants. The ordinance passed by the Aldermen two years ago has been declared unconstitutional by the courts.

GRACE GEORGE TO OPEN THE PLAYHOUSE

Will Give Two Performances of "Sauce for the Goose" on April 15—"Over Night" to Follow.

THEATRE FOR REPERTOIRE

Company Headed by Miss George Will Present New Plays Every Month—Robert Mantell's Engagement.

William A. Brady's new theatre, The Playhouse, in West Forty-eighth Street, east of Broadway, will be opened on Saturday afternoon, April 15, by Grace George in "Sauce for the Goose." This play is a comedy by Geraldine Bonner and Hutchenson Boyd. Miss George will give only two performances at the new house, on Saturday afternoon and evening, and on the following Monday "Over Night" will be removed from the Hackett to The Playhouse to continue its run.

Miss George's two performances and the engagement of "Over Night" will be preliminary to the inauguration of a policy for making The Playhouse distinctively a répertoire theatre. It is Mr. Brady's plan to install there a répertoire company, headed by Miss George, for the presentation of a series of plays by American and foreign authors, including revivals of classical dramas as well as the production of new works. According to the announcement, no play will be continued for a run, and at least one new production will be made every month. Among the American authors whose plays will be introduced are George H. Broadhurst, Edward Sheldon, Margaret Mayo, Jules Eckert Goodman, George Playdell, Thompson Buchanan, David Carp, and Geraldine Bonner. The Playhouse will have a small auditorium, and is expected to be suitable to the more intimate type of plays.

Following the engagement of "Over Night" Mr. Brady will bring Robert Mantell into Daly's Theatre for a four weeks' engagement in Shakespearean répertoire with one or two plays by other authors. The opening bill will be "King Lear." Other plays to be given during the first week will be "As You Like It" and "The Merchant of Venice." During the other weeks "Hamlet," "Macbeth," "Richelieu," "Othello," "Romeo and Juliet," "Louis XI.," "Richard III.," and "Julius Caesar" will be acted.

Mr. Brady will also make another revival of an old play this Spring, as he has done in other plays. This year's piece will be "The Lights o' London," which will be presented at the Lyric Theatre on May 1, following the run of "The Deep Purple." Douglas Fairbanks in a new play by Woodhouse and Stapleton, called "A Gentleman of Leisure," will be still another of Mr. Brady's Spring productions.

In June the manager will go to Europe to present "Over Night" in London, with James Welch as Richard Kettle, and to put on Jules Eckert Goodman's play, "Mother," in which Mary Terry will appear.

CARUSO OUT FOR THE SEASON

Physicians Notify Opera Management Tenor Should Seek Change of Climate.

It was finally officially announced last evening that Enrico Caruso would be heard no more this season, either at the Metropolitan Opera House or on tour. The announcement took the form of a letter from the tenor's physicians to Mr. Gatti-Casazza.

This absence of Mr. Caruso from the bills at the Metropolitan has cost that institution a great deal of money. It has also been an expensive vacation for the tenor, as he has lost about $5,000 a week by not singing. His illness will have an especial effect on the three weeks' road tour of the company, as he was announced in all the cities where the company will be heard. Following is the letter from his physicians explaining the situation:

> To Mr. Gatti-Casazza, Director Metropolitan Opera Company:
> This is to certify that we have examined Signor Enrico Caruso and find that he is still suffering from the effects of his recent attack of grippe and laryngitis, and that in our opinion it would be advisable for him not to attempt to sing again this season, but to seek a change of climate.

The company will give "Parsifal" on Tuesday evening in Philadelphia, while the opera house during the afternoon will be devoted to the benefit for the fire sufferers.

"Gioconda" will be sung on Wednesday evening with Miss Destinn, Mrs. Homer, and Messrs. Martin, Amato, and De Segurola. Mr. Toscanini will conduct.

"Ariane et Barbe-Bleue" is announced for Thursday evening, with Miss Geraldine Farrar and the regular cast with Mr. Toscanini conducting.

"Parsifal" will be given as a Good Friday matinée at regular prices, with Mme. Fremstad and Messrs. Jörn, Amato, Goritz, and Witherspoon. Mr. Hertz will conduct the performance, which will begin at 1 o'clock.

"Otello" will be Friday evening's opera, with Mr. Slezak in the title rôle; Mrs. Rappold, Miss Maubourg, and Messrs. Amato and De Segurola. Mr. Toscanini will conduct.

"Haensel und Gretel" and "Pagliacci" will be the last Saturday matinée, and the cast of the former will include Miss Alten, Mrs. Homer, Mrs. Mattfeld, and Mr. Goritz, Mr. Hertz conducting. "Pagliacci" will be sung by Mrs. Gluck and Messrs. Jörn, Amato, and Gilly.

"Tosca," with Miss Farrar, Mr. Martin, and Mr. Scotti, Mr. Toscanini conducting, will be the final opera of the season, Saturday night.

At the concert next Sunday night the MacDowell Chorus, under the direction of Kurt Schindler, will appear. The soloists will be Mrs. Alma Gluck, Miss Cara Sapin, Mrs. Homer, Mme. di Pasquali, and Mr. Witherspoon. Francis MacMillen, the violinist, has been engaged as a special feature.

FOLIES BERGERE NOVELTIES.

Tables and Chairs on Orchestra Floor—Conveniences of a Club.

The first detailed description of the new Folies Bergere, in West Forty-sixth Street, was issued yesterday by Henry B. Harris and Jesse L. Lasky, who are to be the managers of the combination music hall and restaurant that is to open late this month. The scaffolding in front of the building was taken down yesterday afternoon, so that all of the attractiveness of the façade of the newest Times Square place of amusement was visible from Broadway.

The front of the building is done in glazed tiles, set in Louis XVI. designs and insert with a large mural painting depicting the origin and development of comedy from the open air theatres of the Greeks to the present-day playhouses. At night this will be lighted by flaring gas torches, softened by jets of steam.

As for the interior of the house, the orchestra floor will be devoid of the usual theatre seats, but in their places will be movable tables and chairs, all of which will face the stage. The tables are built so that they may be assembled into units large enough for parties of any size. In the box circle there will be other tables and chairs, and behind will be the restaurant. In the balcony and grand circle regular theatre seats will be installed. The kitchens and store rooms will be under the street.

Directly beneath the auditorium will be two large dressing rooms, bath rooms, barber shop, manicures, valets and other conveniences of a club or hotel. There will be a broad promenade, bars on every floor, a green room, a florist shop, information bureaus, forty telephone stations, special taxicabs, girl pages, and many other novelties.

There will be two shows a night. One will consist of two revues, of a musical comedy nature, which will begin at 8:15, when the diners will be presumed to have reached coffee and cigars, and the other will start at 11:15 and continue until 1 A. M. This latter will be a "cabaret show," consisting of unusual specialties, and will be entirely separate from the first performance.

Among those in the cast of the revues are Ethel Levey, who returns from four years in Europe; Marthe Lenclud, the star of La Cigale, Paris; Janette Denarber, a comedienne of the Paris Folies Bergere revues; Britta, prima ballerina at the London Alhambra; Borghini, prima ballerina at La Scala, Milan; Novotna, prima ballerina from the Metropolitan Opera House; Emily Lea, an American dancer; the Pender Troupe, Falco and his dancers, the Madrid Quartette, Oy-Ra, Rosalita and Paz Calzado, Pilar la Arenera Company of Spanish players, Otis Harlan, Laddie Cliff, Kathleen Clifford, Ada Lewis, Taylor Holmes, Mayme Kelso, Arthur Lipson and Elizabeth Goodall.

In the cabaret show will appear European acts which have hitherto not been seen in this country.

There will be three musical directors: Paul Lincke, of the Metropole, Berlin; Maurice Levi of New York, and Charles Barton of London. Besides there will be a large ballet under the direction of Alfredo Curti, of the Alhambra, London, and composed of thirty imported dancers and sixty American girls. The opening is set for April 24 after a week of experiment in Atlantic City.

HAMBOURG AND MEYN.

A Joint Recital by the 'Cellist and Baritone in Mendelssohn Hall.

A recital was given jointly in Mendelssohn Hall last evening by Boris Hambourg, 'cellist, and Heinrich Meyn, baritone. Mr. Hambourg has given several recitals before this season. Mr. Meyn appeared for the first time, it being his custom to sing publicly once in the course of the season. Mr. Hambourg played a number of the pieces by old masters for which he has such a fondness and to which he brings such excellent appreciation, taste, and skill, though it must be confessed that his tone is a little dry and thin. Bach's suite in G major, unaccompanied, was his first number; Sipruntini, Galeotti, and Boccherini were the names that followed. Later he played Boellmann's symphonic variations and pieces by Grainger and Popper.

Mr. Meyn shows fine discrimination in selecting songs that are not hackneyed. His numbers included Dvorak's "Zigeunermelodie," Weingartner's "Liebesfeier," Bungert's "Ein Kleines Lied," and Schumann's brilliant and imaginative song, "Der Hidalgo," songs by Brahms, and five by Mr. Sidney Homer. Mr. Meyn's singing has qualities of intelligence and artistic feeling, but there are limitations in his vocal powers that prevent their full realization at all times. He sang his German songs especially with clear and intelligible diction.

MISS HOMANS BRIDE OF CHARLES F. MOSLE

Daughter of the Late Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Homans Married to Owner of Big Ranch.

WILL LIVE IN WYOMING

Only Relatives Witness Ceremony at Bride's Home, Performed Under a Bower of Spring Flowers.

The wedding of Miss Katherine Homans, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Homans, to Charles Frederick Mosle, a son of Mrs. George Mosle of 70 West Fifty-fifth Street, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride, 61 East Sixty-fourth Street. The Rev. Dr. Henry E. Cobb officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and a veil of old family lace, which was caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, and her only ornament was a diamond pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

Only members of the two families witnessed the ceremony, which was performed under a bower of Spring flowers. Howard P. Homans gave his sister in marriage, and Mrs. Charles Dexter Cleveland, a sister, was her only attendant. Mrs. Cleveland appeared in a blue and white striped silk gown with a black fichu, and wore a poke bonnet. She carried a bouquet of old-fashioned flowers. Max A. Mosle acted as best man for his brother.

A small reception for the intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom followed the ceremony, after which the couple left on their bridal trip. Mr. Mosle, who was graduated from Yale in 1897, has a large ranch at Circle, Wyoming, where he will take his bride. They will spend part of the Winters in New York.

Among those present at the wedding were Mrs. George Mosle, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Mosle, Mr. and Mrs. A. Henry Mosle, Mr. and Mrs. Keyes Winter, Mr. and Mrs. George Dunscombe, Mrs. Harris Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Colt, Harris D. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan, Miss Browning, Mr. and Mrs. Briton N. Busch, Douglas Gibbons, Mrs. Ewald Fleitmann, the Rev. and Mrs. H. Roswell Bates, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Conner, Mrs. S. H. Vollmer, Mrs. F. S. Salisbury, Miss Salisbury, Dr. and Mrs. Clement Cleveland, Mrs. William H. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. H. Halsey, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Elliman, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Watjen, and the Misses Nannie and Sarah Homans.

Those from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. Sibley C. Smith of Providence, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Parsons, Waterford; Mrs. Selden Blair, Scranton, Penn., and Mr. and Mrs. Howard P. Eells, Miss Eells and Samuel Eells of Cleveland, Ohio.

GET THEIR LICENSE AND WED.

C. C. Bartholomew and Miss Witter Return to Majestic for Ceremony.

Miss Florence W. Witter, daughter of William C. Witter of this city, and Clarence C. Bartholomew of Lakeville, Conn., were married yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Majestic, where the bride's parents make their home. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Stimson.

Earlier in the day the young couple visited the City Hall and took out their marriage license. Mr. Bartholomew gave his age as 23, and Miss Witter gave her age as 24.

After the reception, which followed the ceremony at the Majestic, and which was attended by many of Miss Witter's schoolgirl friends, the couple went to the Hotel Cumberland to remain for several days.

CHARLES S. ADLER IS DEAD.

Ex-Republican Leader of "De Ate" District Was a Typical East Sider.

Charles S. Adler, for years one of the best-known politicians of the east side, died yesterday of a complication of diseases at his home, 47 St. Nicholas Avenue. He had given up active participation in politics, when his health began to fail, two years ago.

"Charley" Adler, as he was known to the Bowery, was Republican leader of "de Ate," or the Eighth Assembly District, when it was the scene of many bitter fights and the home of many picturesque political leaders. He carried the district again and again for members of Assembly, although it was normally Democratic.

Adler was a typical east sider and knew thousands of his constituents personally. He was born in 1862 and as a boy served as a tailor's apprentice. As he grew up he became interested in improving the condition of the workers in the sweatshops.

Adler introduced a plan of campaign of his own. Never aggressive, he talked to the voters individually about his plans for improving the condition of the poor. He showed his sincerity by helping them when they were threatened with dispossession. He helped them pay the rent and engaged counsel for them when they got into trouble. Many of them came to him with their domestic difficulties, and he usually succeeded in adjusting them. He consulted the people of his district by scores whenever he had a bill to introduce and made them think they had a hand in the legislation. By these methods he obtained a following regardless of party that made him nearly invincible in elections.

He devised a machine for cutting cloth that was introduced in tailor shops all over the east side, and when the royalties began to come in he gave up working at the bench and devoted himself still further to politics. He soon became district leader, which he retained for several years.

Adler retired from the Assembly to become a Port Warden, and he held this office for six years. At the time of his death he was a member of the Republican Club and belonged to the Masons and the Elks. He leaves two brothers.

Mrs. Randell Hoyt, who was Miss Margaret Cabell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Cabell of Webster Grove, St. Louis, died last night at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital of meningitis and other ailments. She was a private patient of Dr. Samuel McCullagh of 35 Park Avenue. Mrs. Hoyt was in St. Louis in December last with her husband, and appeared to be in the best of health. Early in January she came to New York and complained of pains in her right ear. After the pain refused to yield to treatment she was taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Hoyt, as Miss Cabell, was a pupil at St. Mary's Institute, and completed her education at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. She was the Queen of the Veiled Prophets ball in St. Louis in 1907, and was said to have been the most beautiful Veiled Prophet ever crowned there. Her marriage to Dr. Randell Hoyt, a Princeton graduate and of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, was a brilliant event in St. Louis society.

MRS. DAVIS DEAD AT 117.

Former Candy Peddler Said to be Oldest Woman in New York.

Mrs. Esther Davis, whose relatives say she was born 117 years ago in Russia, died yesterday in the Home of the Daughters of Jacob, 302 East Broadway. According to the east side, Mrs. Davis at the time of her death was the oldest woman in New York.

Mrs. Davis was born in Russia and came here with relatives thirty-five years ago. She was an unusually healthy and well-preserved woman, weighing 180 opunds. She was a candy peddler in Hester Street during her active days, continuing the trade until she was 112 years old, according to her relatives yesterday. She survived being knocked down in the street by a horse; but through increasing infirmities was obliged to enter the institution in which she died, about three years ago. She lived there very happily in full possesion of her faculties.

She was greatly amused when, last year, her eighty-five-year-old nephew, Max Shapiro, whom she had always thought of as a child, was brought into the home and became an inmate with her.

MOBERLY BELL OF LONDON TIMES DEAD

Managing Director of Chief British Newspaper Dies at His Desk in His Sixty-fourth Year.

VICTIM OF HEART DISEASE

As Times's Correspondent in Egypt He Was Credited with Largely Bringing About British Occupation There.

LONDON, April 5.—Charles Frederic Moberly Bell, managing director of The London Times since 1908, died suddenly as he sat in his office to-day of heart disease.

Charles Frederic Moberly Bell, who for more than twenty years had been the manager of The London Times and director of its news gathering force, was born in Egypt sixty-four years ago. He was the son of Thomas Bell, and was educated in a private school in that country. When hardly more than a boy he started a corn and bean business in Alexandria, Egypt. In his spare moments he also assisted Judge Scott, the English member of the international tribunals. Judge Scott was the Egyptian correspondent of The Times in those days, and when, in 1865, he was transferred to the Indian bench by the British Government, he recommended young Bell, who was at that time only eighteen years of age, to The Times as his successor. Mr. Bell was thus connected with the paper for forty-six years.

Almost immediately after his appointment, Mr. Bell devoted himself to the task of persuading Great Britain to occupy Egypt. Not a day passed at one time without The London Times containing long dispatches from its Alexandria correspondent urging that Egypt be either annexed or occupied. His advocacy of British intervention, backed by The Times editorially, is said to have largely brought about the English occupation in 1882.

In 1890 Mr. Bell went to London from Cairo, to be assistant manager of The Times, succeeding Mr. MacDonald. By that time he had written several books on Egypt, among them being "Khédives and Pashas," "Egyptian Finance" and "From Pharaoh to Fellah."

A few years ago Arthur Walter, the chief proprietor of The Times—since dead—entered into negotiations with C. Arthur Pearson for its sale. Mr. Walter, however, apparently forgot to consult his co-owners, all more or less affiliated with the Walter family. They appealed to the courts and the purchase agreement was quashed. Judge Warrington at the same time sanctioned a scheme for the conversion of The Times into a company with Mr. Bell as Managing Director. Lords Northcliffe, Rothschild, Cromer, and Leconfield are said to be the principal shareholders.

Mr. Bell was a member of the Athenaeum Club in London. He had made several visits to America, knew many well-known men here, and was always a promoter of friendly relations between Great Britain and the United States.

At the time of the shooting of the late President McKinley at Buffalo in September, 1901, Mr. Bell happened to be a guest of J. G. Milburn, to whose house the wounded President was taken, and from which he daily sent a series of bulletins to The Times reporting Mr. McKinley's condition.

His next visit to this country was in April, 1907, when he was one of a number of distinguished foreign guests invited to the dedication of the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg. On this occasion the University of Pennsylvania conferred on him the degree of Litt. D.

His last visit was in 1909, in company with Lord Northcliffe, with whom he made an American and Canadian tour, arriving in New York in time to witness the Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

"I am deeply grieved to hear of Mr. Bell's death," said Andrew Carnegie last night. "I hadn't even heard that he had been ill, and the news comes as a great shock. Mr. Bell was a great manager. I doubt if he ever wrote much for The Times. But he had a mind which was remarkable for its suggestiveness. When the younger branch of the Walter family came into possession of The Times, Mr. Bell rendered himself indispensable, and it was then that I made his acquaintance. I remember one day, when I met him at the country home of Mr. Walter, he asked me if I were going to see Mr. Gladstone next day. I assured him that I was.

"'Tell Mr. Gladstone that I don't agree with him at all about his policy of—' Mr. Bell exclaimed, and made me the bearer of an exceedingly amusing but rather indiscreet message to the famous English statesman.

"When I visited Mr. Gladstone next day I delivered Mr. Bell's message with some trepidation.

WOULD BAR RHODES SCHOLAR ATHLETES

Movement Under Way for Formulation of Plan to Curb Their Competition.

"A student shall be allowed to compete at the intercollegiate meeting four times and no more, no matter whether he changes from one college and goes to another or not. This applies to all departments—medical, law, academical, &c. It shall be understood that a student may compete two years in one department or college and then go to another department or college and compete in the other two, but in no event shall a student compete more than four times."

The above is the article in the official handbook of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America dealing with times of competition, and forms the basis for the promulgation of a similar rule which is quietly taking shape at Oxford and Cambridge in England, being principally directed at Rhodes scholars, who are, in the main, graduates of universities from different parts of the world.

It is conceded that if such a rule is put into effect it will to all intents and purposes bar the Rhodes scholars from competitive athletic activity during their stay at Oxford, as those from the United States, at least, have qualified as beneficiaries of the bequest through their participation in some branch of sport, as the conditions of the Rhodes legacy called for.

As a general proposition it is agreed that the majority of Rhodes men going from the United States to Oxford have improved in their competitive athletic work while there, only one, Warren E. Schutt, a former intercollegiate champion here, having done anything out of the ordinary before taking residence abroad.

The athletic prowess of the American Rhodes scholars has been a mote in the eye of the British, and while disclaiming any attack upon them in particular, an editorial writer in the London field has the following to say concerning the subject:

> The bequest of the late Cecil Rhodes has not been without its effect on the sports and on the interest taken in them by university men and others.
>
> The scheme for bringing a large number of picked men from our colonies and from the United States under the influence of Oxford was magnificent in its conception and in the liberality with which he provided for its carrying into effect. But the author of it must bear such blame as attaches to him.
>
> The advent of the Rhodes scholar has caused an uncomfortable feeling that Cambridge has been somewhat unfairly handicapped in her contests with Oxford, particularly in that one which takes place annually on the track of the Queen's Club.
>
> The mental discomfort is felt more strongly by Oxford than by Cambridge men. Not a word of complaint has ever come from Cambridge. But it has, we understand, been suggested by men who have worthily represented Oxford on the running ground that those ready-made athletes whom the Rhodes bequest has brought into residence from some other university should, for purposes of athletics, count the time spent there as time elapsed since matriculation at Oxford.
>
> The effect would be that a man who came up after spending two years at, say, Yale or Harvard, would only be eligible to represent Oxford for two years instead of four. Having regard to the fact that at many universities undergraduates begin residence at a comparatively early age, it would probably be wise to modify the enactment by ordaining that men should not begin to reckon their university time spent elsewhere until they are nineteen years old.
>
> The suggestion is in no sense to be regarded as an attack upon the Rhodes scholars, who individually and in the mass are as much welcomed and respected at Oxford as any other body of men.
>
> Those who have been prominent members of the O. U. A. C.—and few have failed to win distinction after joining it—have taken their place in the circle with marked acceptance.
>
> They have not introduced at the Iffley road track anything of the training and racing methods pursued by some American athletes, to which exception has occasionally been taken by Englishmen. They have done at Oxford what Oxford does, setting a conspicuous example of thoroughness and persistency in doing it.
>
>
> The practical problem is to reconcile the carrying out of the contract made when Oxford accepted Mr. Rhodes's legacy with the duty owed to Cambridge. Mr. Rhodes desired, above all things, that his scholars should share in every department of the life at his old university, in order that they might come fully under its influence and later spread it through the world.
>
> It would be a breach of contract if regulations were made debarring them from competing for the Blue, which is the worthy object of ambition among a large and important circle of undergraduates.
>
> But it takes something from the joy of victory if supporters of the winning side suspect that in the opposite camp it can be felt that the conditions did not give an equal chance to both sides.
>
> It is manifest that the arrival in Oxford every year of forty or fifty men, slightly older than the ordinary undergraduate, and, therefore, in many cases, physically stronger, must give her a very distinct advantage, especially as these men are selected for their physical as well as their mental excellence.
>
> The advantage is likely to become more, rather than less, apparent for some years to come. Therefore, if the Blues' committee should see fit to pass some self-denying ordinance, such as that suggested to us, the present is a good time for taking the step.

TWO BOOKMAKERS ARRESTED

Further Test of Virginia Anti-Betting Laws to be Made at Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Va., April 5.—Antenor, a colt owned by W. H. Austin, captured the Victoria Hotel stakes to-day in the feature event of the opening day of the Jamestown Jockey Club meeting, which is to continue until April 26. During the running of the fifth race the horse Sam Mathews bolted to the inner fence and broke Jockey Wingfield's right leg by crushing it against the rail.

Fred Miller and William Hickey, bookmakers, were arrested to make a further test of the Virginia anti-betting laws. Both were bailed for their appearance to-morrow afternoon before Magistrate Backus.

The telegraph companies had no wires on the track to-day in order to avoid, it was said, any possible violation of the Inter-State Commerce laws by giving one class of business preference over another.

August Belmont's Rocksand colt Dragnet, with Eddie Dugan in the saddle, won the first race, a half-mile sprint for two-year-olds. In the hurdle race every contestant except Nick o' Time fell.

UNION SETTLEMENT WINS BOXING TROPHY

Several Aspirants for Amateur Honors Outclassed at Irish-American Club.

Novice boxers concluded their long-drawn-out tournament in seven classes last night at the Irish-American A. C. The bouts naturally proved the classiest seen in the whole series.

The Lenox Settlement A. C. won the point prize with two firsts. Christ Church A. C. also won twice, but through a protest against H. Ehrhart, who boxed in the 145-pound class, they will, in all likelihood, be passed up when the point prize is allotted. The claim was made that Ehrhart's name is Beckman, and that is the name his adherents hailed him by when he won.

The second bout of the semi-final 115-pound class showed the cleanest case of knockout of the night, when W. Saunders of the Christ Church A. C. put S. Frank of the New West Sides away in less than two rounds.

W. Spingler, Union Settlement A. C., practically knocked out C. F. Houser in the final of the middleweight class, the referee stopping the go.

The final of the heavies was a victory for G. J. Benz, a mammoth who put E. Oterson away in the final round with a right on the jaw.

The session began with the semi-finals in the "twenty-fives." The second bout in this class called out Harry Alexander, Mott Haven A. C., and Frank Waldo, Irish-American A. C. Although practically knocked out in the first and second rounds, Waldo came back in the third and made a nice stand, but was finally put down and to all intents and purposes out, the referee taking him to his corner.

First to show in the 135-pound division were J. B. Connelly of the Irish-American A. C. and D. Frank, Mott Haven A. C. This bout was the best of the tournament up to that time, being replete with toe to toe work, which was the essence of fast, hard fighting. Midway in the first round Frank looked to be all in as the result of a fusillade of left swings which had him dizzy. He survived the bad period, however, and managed to come through during the rest of the battle with some corking returns. A dozen times during the concluding two rounds the boys swapped blows with lefts and rights to the delight of the crowd. Try as he would with his vicious left, Connelly found himself unable to finish his man, who seemed ready and willing to exchange. The judges found for Connelly.

When F. Mulligan, Mott Haven A. C., and H. R. Engellbracht, Morningside A. C., finished their little difficulty their mothers would not have recognized them. Each bled profusely and had his nose spread apparently all over his face. Mulligan did a shade the better work and got the verdict after the required three rounds.

After the welters had been disposed of the "white hopes" put in an appearance. In this division Eugene Oterson of the Avonias got the verdict over H. Hettrick of Dominican Lyceum, who was outweighed probably twenty pounds. They were pretty tired at the final bell.

Two very willing "squabs" showed in the initial bout of the 105-pound class, with the judges' decision going to G. J. Anderson over Tony Parrone of the St. Bartholomew A. C.

Peter Farrell of the Irish-Americans proved himself the "dodging kid" in his go with J. Buchins of the New West Side A. C., and, although it took him four rounds to do so, he got the decision at the end in somewhat handy fashion.

Summary of the bouts:

DR. WEST DEFENDS TITLE.

New York A. C. Champion Wrestler Throws Hernsheim in Final Bout.

Dr. James N. West successfully defended his title of heavyweight champion wrestler of the New York A. C. in an exciting bout at the club gymnasium last night with Charles Hernsheim. West won in spectacular fashion, standing his opponent on his head and after getting him in the clutches of a crotch hold jammed his shoulders to the mat after eight minutes of wrestling in the final bout. W. B. King became the new club champion in the welterweight class, defeating Dr. K. Connell in the final match. The former welterweight champion, Octaveck, did not defend his title this year.

The wrestling tournament was held in the club gymnasium and was witnessed by a large crowd of club members and guests. In the heavyweight class, Dr. West wrestled William Beaver, Jr., in the first preliminary. This bout came to a sudden end after eighteen seconds, Dr. West picking up Beaver and slamming him to the mat with terrific force. In a jiffy he had him locked down with an arm and body hold. Charles Hernsheim wrestled J. G. C. McNair to a draw in the second preliminary and in an extra bout of six minutes, Hernsheim received the decision on points.

The finals in the heavyweight brought West and Hernsheim together. Both big men were over cautious at the start and they tugged and mauled at each other's arms and neck for five minutes without either being toppled over. West got a tight grip on his opponent's leg and whirled him about until he went down on top of him. West tried one hold after another without success, Hernsheim breaking away from the champion's grip many times. West was always the aggressor and Hernsheim gradually tired himself out evading the snares which West set for him. West got a half Nelson and leg hold on Hernsheim, but the latter squirmed out of it cleverly after a hard tussle. After eight minutes of wrestling West caught Hernsheim unawares and turned him upside down before he realized it. In the grip of a crotch hold West soon had his opponent helpless on the mat and won the match. The summaries:

Welterweight Class; Preliminary Round.—W. B. King threw Oswald J. Karsh with half-Nelson, Time—1:07. Dr. K. Connell threw B. H. Harned with half-Nelson and neck hold. Time—5:03.

Welterweight Class; Semi-Final Round.—W. B. King threw T. C. Eastman with half-Nelson and leg hold. Time—2:00.

Final Bout.—W. B. King threw Dr. K. Connell with half-Nelson and bar hold. Time—10:00.

Heavyweight Class; Preliminary Round.—Dr. James M. West threw William Beaver, Jr., with arm and body hold. Time—0:18. J. G. C. McNair and Charles Hernsheim wrestled to a draw. Time—10:00. Charles Hernsheim defeated J. G. C. McNair. Referee's decision on points. Time—6:00.

Final Bout.—Dr. James N. West threw Charles Hernsheim with a crotch hold. Time—8:00.

POLICE GET NO NAMES.

Sharkey A. C. Members Greeted by Police After Boxing Show.

Two big, husky negro boxers, Black Bill of this city and Jeff Clark, better known as the "Fighting Ghost," of Atlantic City, N. J., furnished the members of the Sharkey A. C. with a good contest of ten rounds last night despite the fact that neither man was possessed of much science. Black Bill had several pounds advantage over his opponent, but the Jersey pugilist was lean and rangey and evaded the wild swings of Bill, and in return kept Bill from landing to any advantage.

As members passed out of the club the Police Inspector of the precinct and two officers greeted the members and endeavored to secure their names, but the attempt proved fruitless, and they went away as though nothing had happened.

SAILOR BURKE WINS A FIGHT.

Jim Mitchen Chased from Long Acre Ring in Third Round.

The strange spectacle of Sailor Burke actually winning a bout was presented last night at the Long Acre A. A., at the West Twenty-ninth Street clubhouse, and, as sometimes is the case when something unusual happens, only a few of the members were on hand. Jim Mitchen, the Brooklyn middleweight, was the centrepart around which the pugilistic novelty was staged, and the curtain was rung down on the tragedy after seven minutes of actual boxing. In that short period Mitchen had gone back so far that he was completely lost in the scenery, and it looked as if the Brooklyn tar was boxing alone. Mitchen did not collide with a dream punch, but he came so close to it that Referee Willie McDonald mercifully stepped into the breach and chased the Brooklyn boy to his corner.

Mitchen suffered somewhat in comparison with Burke from the standpoint of avoirdupois, and in the matter of "sand" he was likewise distanced. The sailor was never accused of being overburdened with gameness, and a big part of those who turned out to see him perform last night expected to see him come across with the same old line of goods. It was not imagined by the most enthusiastic of Burke's followers that there was a man in the ring who weighed in as a middleweight who could not hand out a better argument than Mitchen delivered last night. Both men proved surprises—Burke because he won, and Mitchen because he was such a filure.

King and Ost in a Draw.

A good-sized crowd witnessed several good bouts at the Princess A. A. last night, the main bout of ten rounds between Tom King of Hartford and Jerry Ost of this city resulting in a draw. The boxers are middleweights, and the bout was interesting from start to finish. At times Ost held the upper hand and was the more aggressive. King handled himself well and when Ost forced the fighting at times he was able to avoid the greater part of the attack. At the end the honors were about even. In the semi-final George Bush knocked out Mike O'Donnell in the second round. Willie Brown stopped Young Sheppard in the fourth round of the other semi-final.

WANT LONG FLIGHT FROM WASHINGTON

Aero Club Asked to Make Contest Feature of Opening Meet at Belmont Park.

A big intercity flight may mark the opening of the aviation season in the East. A movement has been inaugurated for an aeroplane race from Washington to Belmont Park by way of Atlantic City, N. J., and may form a part of the programme being arranged for the meet on May 19, 20, and 21. The tournament will be held under the auspices of the Aero Club of America for the purpose of selecting three aviators to represent the United States in the race for the international aviation championship, which will be held in England during the coronation festivities.

The Aero Club of America has been sounded by the promoters of the flight and informally asked to co-operate with Washington in organizing this over land and water flight. It is intended to have the aviators fly over as many big towns as possible and induce the commercial organizations to put up money. Prizes will be given to the aviators making the best time over the different legs of the course. As the Aero Club is desirous of encouraging cross-country flying, it is probable that it will view the proposition in a favorable light providing it is conducted along sporting lines.

Like the Aero Club of France, the Aero Club of America discourages flights over cities, but the fact that a flight from College Point to the club's new aerodrome in Belmont Park would not take the aviators over any big city will influence the Aero Club in favor of the project. After leaving Washington the course could be laid across country to Atlantic City and up the coast past Long Branch, Asbury Park, Deal, Seabright, and Atlantic Highlands. From this point the contestants could fly across the bay and skirt Brooklyn and Jamaica to Belmont Park.

George F. Campbell Wood, Secretary of the Aero Club, said yesterday that the Washington idea was to follow a course of two long legs with the turning point at the Atlantic City lighthouse. This would carry the aviators over the Chesapeake and Delaware Bays and the mouth of New York Harbor. The total distance would be about 250 miles.

"At the comparatively low speed of sixty miles an hour," said Mr. Wood, "the fliers would cut at least three hours that could possibly be made by train from Belmont Park to Washington, or vice versa, and the flight would do much to arouse interest in aviation in this country."

The return to this country of Earle L. Orington has increased the number of contestants in the elimination race for the international aviation championship. Mr. Wood said he thought that ten or twelve aviators would make an effort to procure a place on the American team. Henry Weymann, an American who has done all his flying in France, is anxious to compete. He is desirous of obtaining permission from the Aero Club of America to make his trials in a monoplane in France. Cortlandt Field Bishop, the club's representative abroad, is now in France and would be able to arrange for the trial in France if the Aero Club grants Weymann the desired permission. It is probable, however, that all competitors will be required to make their trials at Belmont Park the latter part of next month.

Cremer Champion Gymnast at N. Y. U.

New York University's gymnastic season closed yesterday afternoon, when the annual college championship meet was held in the gymnasium at University Heights. G. S. Cremer was the individual point winner, taking four first places in the five events he entered, and obtaining a total of 202.7 points. MacAdam won second place with 121.2 points, and in the freshman-sophomore contest, which was held at the same time, captured the greatest number of units for his class. His work made possible the victory of the sophomores. Gollubier did the best work for the freshmen.

Blauvelt Wins Squadron C Shoot.

Corp. C. H. K. Blauvelt carried off the honors of the annual revolver match which has been in progress for the past ten days on the range of Squadron C, with the total score of 246 out of a possible 250 for the ten days.

The event brought out a large field and the tournament was closely contested, many high scores being recorded. Two events were on the programme, consisting of five strings, of twenty-five shots in groups of five on a fifty-yard range, and the other of the same amount of shots on a seventy-five-yard range.

On the first range the victor turned in a complete score of 25 clean breaks on each of his five times at the range, which netted him a total of 125, and at the longer target he missed only four shots, making a clean sweep in the fourth string, while he missed only one on each of the first, second, third, and fifth times at the range, making a total of 121, or an aggregate score of 246.

So close was the competition that the winner was only victorious over Capt. Charles A. Brown, who finished second, by a single shot, and Sergt. S. S. Tumbridge finished third, with a score of 242. The scores:

Corp. C. H. K. Blauvelt.....49 49 49 50 49—246
Capt. C. A. Brown.....50 49 48 49 49—245
Sergt. S. S. Tumbridge......48 48 48 49 49—242

Morris H. S. Shooters Defeated.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Morris High School Quintet of New York City suffered their first setback in the interschool rifle shooting series when they were defeated last week by the Culver, Ind., Military Academy. However, the New York School leads the league with ten victories and one defeat. Harvard School of Los Angeles, Culver Military Academy, and Deering High School of Portland, Me., are tied for second place with 9 wins and 2 defeats.

N. Y. A. C. Trap Shooting Postponed.

The Westley-Richard double event trapshooting match, which was to have been decided yesterday on the traps of the New York Athletic Club at Traver's Island, was postponed, owing to conflicting dates with several other clubs. Secretary Robinson was notified that the Fox Hills and Manhansett Bay gun clubs both had contests, which would mar the shoot at the Traver's Island traps, and it was decided to postpone the match until Saturday, May 20. It was hardly probable that the event would have been contested yesterday, however, as a drizzling rain fell all day over the traps, and a heavy mist overhung the sound, which would have made shooting impossible, as the "blue rocks" would have been almost invisible.

ELECTED TO COMMERCE BANK

Five New Members Added to Board—Insurance Companies Represented.

The directors of the National Bank of Commerce met yesterday and elected five new members of the board in place of the late Paul Morton and David H. Moffatt, and H. H. Vreeland. W. G. Oakman and Francis H. McKnight, resigned. The new Directors are F. A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank; A. H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National; Francis L. Hine, President of the First National; William A. Day, Vice President of the Equitable Life, and William A. Simonson, Vice President of the City National Bank. Messrs. Vanderlip, Wiggin, and Hine were made members of the Finance Committee.

The board took no action yesterday on the election of a President, but pending the selection of a successor to Valentine P. Snyder, who left the Presidency on April 1, James S. Alexander, Vice President, will be acting President. Judge Day takes the place on the board made vacant by the death of Paul Morton. President Peabody of the Mutual Life is a Director of the National Bank of Commerce, and thus both of the life insurance companies which have retained half of their former holdings in the Bank of Commerce stock are directly represented on the Board of Directors.

Regarding the other additions to the board announced yesterday, it was considered in the financial district that Messrs. Hine and Wiggin were elected as representatives of the interest in the bank which had been taken over from the life insurance companies by the First National Bank group, while Messrs. Vanderlip and Simonson were elected as the nominees of the National City Bank interests which shared with the First National Bank interests in the purchase.

STEEL MERGER ASSURED.

English Representative Says Southern Mills and Mines Deal Is Financed.

Plans for the consolidation of the Southern Iron and Steel Company with the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company and the Lake Borgne Canal Company and other properties in Alabama have been practically completed according to Cecil Grenfell of Bourke-Schiff & Co. of London, who has been in this country for several months past working out the details. The Southern Iron and Steel Company is the successor of the Southern Steel Company, which went into a receivership in 1908 and was reorganized under the new title.

The Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company is a subsidiary of the International Power Company, controlled by Joseph H. Hoadley. Last month a new corporation was organized in New Jersey, with a nominal capitalization, to become the holding company for the consolidation under the title of the Alabama Consolidated Coal, Iron and Steel Company.

Mr. Grenfell said last night that the new capital would be supplied by Hayden, Stone & Co. and the basis upon which the securities of the present companies will be purchased had been agreed upon. The entire plan will be announced, he said, within a few days.

"The great asset of the consolidation," said Mr. Grenfell, "is that a single corporation is formed with immense bodies of coal and ore, blast furnaces, and mills complete to manufacture the products. The Southern Iron and Steel Company, the stock of which is controlled in Europe, has been through difficult times, and it was for the purpose, if possible, of saving the investments in this company in Europe that I came here and devoted my entire time to studying the problem."

Only 7% of the People Go to Dentists Regularly

You should go twice a year at least. Your teeth guard your general health. Only 7% of the people realize the dentist's power of preventing disease. Don't wait till a nerve is exposed—the slightest cavity is dangerous to your health. Painful and expensive operations are unnecessary if you go often and use VERNAS LOTION daily after meals. Assimilation, digestion and nutrition are dependent upon mastication. Contagious diseases are most often contracted through the unprotected mucous membrane of the mouth. Particles of food left in the crevices of the teeth quickly decompose and become poisonous.

VERNAS LOTION

INCREASE IN IRON OUTPUT

Stocks of the Metal Decrease Despite Larger Production in March—Grain Higher and Cotton Lower.

Dealings on the Stock Exchange yesterday exceeded by a substantial amount the transactions on the two earlier days of the week. The movements in the market were conflicting and for the most part resulted in net gains which so far as the majority of the active stocks were concerned represented very little departure from the recent inconsequential fluctuations. There were a sufficient number of exceptions, however, to give the trading a little more animation yesterday even though the market as a whole did not get very far away from the disposition to wait on future development rather than to attempt practical interpretation of day-to-day events through the medium of market commitments. A variety of reports found more or less attentive ear, though some of them, such as the reported sale of Baltimore & Ohio stock by the Union Pacific and the purchase of this stock by the Pennsylvania, did not find credence among those best placed to be informed on such matters.

Information of real interest to the markets, however, was not lacking, even though little stress was laid upon it in Stock Exchange circles. There was for one thing the record of the country's iron output during the month of March, which showed that despite an increase of over 6,000 tons in the daily average production compared with the month of February there was, according to the estimate of The Iron Age, an aggregate decrease of 45,000 tons in the stocks of pig iron in some of the important iron producing districts. At the same time this organ of the steel trade reports some falling off in the specifications for finished material with the exception of wire, and says that the indications are that the high point of production has been reached for the present.

President Taft's message to Congress would have been given more attention in the financial district yesterday had there been any ground for the supposition that the suggestions which he might make to Congress would in any way indicate the extent to which this session of the Federal law-making body would go in the matter of considering legislative proposals. As a matter of fact the message confined itself to the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada, which was the direct occasion for the calling of the special session, but, of course, it was long ago made clear that Congress would not limit its work to this one proposal. The financial markets will await with interest further light on the scope of the tariff revision and until this light is obtained much uncertainty must necessarily exist as to the extent of this special session's influence upon business and financial affairs.

The grain market was higher yesterday, while cotton closed lower for the day. The latter change was attributed to rain in a large part of the cotton belt, although some reports had it that the rainfall was more than had been desired and was interfering to some extent with farm work.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wednesday.

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange exhibited a decided broadening, not so much as to total as in respect to number of issues represented by sales. Forty-nine different stocks were dealt in, as compared with thirty-five on Tuesday, with the commission house business in odd lots again a feature. An incident was a number of transactions in American Sugar Refining at 118½ and 118⅝, no sales of this stock being reported on the New York Stock Exchange.

The total balance in general fund was $91,331,190.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading Irregular, with Activity Only in Spots and Narrow Price Movements.

INSPIRATION IS ACTIVE

Most Active of the Established Coppers in Yesterday's Market at Declining Prices—Yukon Gold Movement.

Curb stocks were somewhat more active yesterday, but price movements were irregular and fluctuations narrow. Inspiration Copper, which has been neglected recently, took on an accession of activity, and sold 2,100 shares from 7½ down to 7 5-16. Giroux and Greene-Cananea were sluggish, and British Columbia, which attracted interest in the previous day's market, sold only 190 shares, the price rising from 5⅛ to 5⅞. Yukon Gold became active on the upward scale, selling 4,000 at 3 15-16 and 4. Missouri, Kansas & Texas 5 per cent. notes reported transactions of $75,000 at 99⅝ and 99 7-16. The New York State 4s, which were the feature of Tuesday's market, did not report a single transaction.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 5.—This was another dull day on the local Stock Exchange. Trading was extremely small in volume and price changes were limited to fractions. On the whole the undertone was inclined to be somewhat weaker, and prices are generally slightly lower as a result of the day's trading.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

New Security Issues.

New securities of railroad and industrial corporations, issued in the first quarter of 1911, show an increase of $26,261,185 over the same period last year. The increase in railroad issues were $78,134,735, and there was a falling off in industrials of $51,873,550. The totals, as given by The Journal of Commerce, were $447,132,900 for the railroads and $210,412,050 for industrials. The note issues of the railroads accounted for $128,010,000 of the aggregate, an increase, as compared with 1910, of $61,410,000. The bond issues, $268,968,900, were only $11,360,395 more than last year. Stocks amounting to $50,154,000, exceeded last year by $5,364,340. In the stock issues of industrial corporations there was a falling off of $73,863,550, this year's total being $64,210,050, against last year's $138,073,600. This was partly offset by an increase in bond issues from $108,112,000 last year to $124,426,000 this year, and in notes from $16,100,000 to $21,776,000. For March alone the figures show a heavy reduction, because of unusual activity in March 1910. The decrease amounted to $162,001,865, of which $125,493,465 was in railroad issues and $36,508,400 in industrials.

Reforms and Business.

In this period of suspense, while the Supreme Court decisions are awaited, every one is willing to believe that this and the related hesitation in general business account for the stagnation on the Stock Exchange. The Stock Exchange itself, under the new regulations which have been gradually built up in the interest of legitimate trading, is in a large measure responsible for the lack of activity which has produced days of such stagnation that it has been necessary to go back fourteen years, in one instance, to find a parallel. Wall Street is pleased or displeased over the conditions according to its individual bent. The professional trader is the chief sufferer by the checks which have been put upon manipulation, but the commission houses, too, suffer, and the absence of complaint against the new order of things is a fair test of the Exchange's sincerity. An old-timer in the Street complained yesterday that the Exchange has not had credit for the thoroughness of the reforms which have been put into effect from time to time after the scandals of 1909, the Hughes investigation, the Rock Island incident, and other events had stimulated the campaign of housecleaning from the inside. Two of the new rules alone, he estimated, were enough to account for a large part of the loss in business which has changed this from an ordinarily dull to the dullest Spring. These are the rules compelling the recognition of hundred-share lots before thousands can be dealt in and the prohibition of pairing.

B. & O. Rumor Denied.

One of the market rumors yesterday told of the sale of the Union Pacific's holdings of Baltimore & Ohio. The common stock of the latter road opened 1⅜ up and closed with a net gain of 2 points, at 106¾, after a day of more than 10,000 shares—unusual activity in such markets as have recently prevailed. The Union Pacific held on June 30 last $32,334,200 of the common stock of the Baltimore & Ohio and $7,206,400 of the preferred. The stock was purchased when the market was well above present levels, and why it should be disposed of at a loss would have been difficult to understand had not the necessity for such speculation been disposed of by prompt denials of the sale from authoritative quarters.

Wire Business Humming.

Wire products have been the busiest end of the steel trade all Spring, and led the price advance which marked the upturn in the industry. That there has been no let up is evidenced by Pittsburg's announcement that not only the Steel Corporation's plants but those of the important independents in the Pittsburg district are operating full time. The American Steel and Wire Company established a new high record for shipments last month.

DECREASE IN STATE DEPOSITS

Total in Banks on April 1 Was $12,000,672, or $3,479,013 Under March.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 5.—Because of the fire in the Capitol, which drove State Treasurer Kennedy to other quarters, his monthly statement of bank balances was delayed several days. It shows that on April 1 there was a total on deposit to the credit of the funds of the State, $12,000,672, which was less by $3,479,013 than on March 1. The general fund was $5,646,939, less by $2,903,370, and the canal fund was $6,345,580, less by $573,477 than a month ago. In only three institutions were the balances greater on April 1 than they were on March 1. These were the Nassau Trust Company of Brooklyn, which had no deposit last month, but has $100,000 of the general fund to-day; the Citizens' Trust Company of Brooklyn, which was doubled to $40,000, and the First National Bank of Utica, which had $2,000 general fund moneys on March 1 and had $27,000 on April 1.

Forty-five of Manhattan's financial institutions hold deposits of general fund moneys. Compared with a month ago thirty of these have reduced balances, while fifteen show no change. The greatest changes were in:

Those holding big deposits which were not reduced were: Commercial Trust, $114,000; Empire Trust, $105,000; Hudson Trust, $120,000; Fourteenth Street Bank, $29,000; Mercantile National Bank, $42,000; National Nassau Bank, $46,000; Night and Day Bank, $22,000.

Eleven Brooklyn institutions have general fund deposits. In only three, the largest deposit of which is $8,000, the balances were unchanged. In the others, with the exception of the Nassau and Citizens Trust Companies, all were reduced, the largest reductions being:

L. I. Loan & Trust Co.	65,000	35,000
Mechanics' Bank	50,000	30,000

Forty-nine Manhattan and eleven Brooklyn banks and trust companies have canal moneys. The greatest reduction was $50,000, to $305,000, in the Empire Trust Company, and the second largest $40,000, to $160,000 each, in the Bankers' Trust Company and the Union Trust Company of New York. The Columbia and the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Companies each suffered a loss of $30,000. The other reductions were $20,000 and under, excepting the Windsor Trust, whose balance was reduced $24,000, to $110,000, and whose general fund went down from $40,000 to $24,000.

PEOPLE'S GAS MEN CONFER.

Troubled Now About Mayor-Elect Harrison's Demand for 70-Cent Gas.

James F. Meagher of Chicago, Vice President and general counsel of the People's Gas Light and Coke Company, was in conference here yesterday with C. K. G. Billings, Chairman of the board, and other officials of the corporation. Among the matters discussed was the election of Carter H. Harrison as Mayor of Chicago, after a campaign in which he demanded 70-cent gas. The present price of gas in Chicago is 85 cents, which was agreed on with the city five years ago. The agreement expired on Feb. 25, but the old price will continue until a new contract is made.

In the meantime the city has employed an expert to investigate the cost of manufacture, and the books of the company have been thrown open to him. He was not appointed in time to finish his work before the expiration of the old contract, but it is understood that his report will be made soon. On it will be based the contention of the city as to what reduction, if any, should be made in the price to consumers.

The gross receipts of the company last year were $15,530,349, and the operating expenses $9,324,505. After deductions for depreciation, reserves and interest on bonds, the net earnings were $3,154,332, equivalent to a little more than 9 per cent. on the outstanding capital stock.

ABSORBED BY ANACONDA.

Boston & Butte Taken Over in Accordance with Plans of Amalgamated.

All of the 199,840 shares of the Butte and Boston Consolidated Mining Company have been turned into the Anaconda Company in exchange for Anaconda stock on the basis of one and a half shares of $25 par Anaconda stock for each share of $10 par Butte and Boston. This carries out another part of the long-perfected plans of having the operating companies of the Amalgamated Copper Company taken over by Anaconda, which is an Amalgamated subsidiary.

The consolidation of all of the Amalgamated's subsidiary companies in the Butte district in the Anaconda as a single operating company was undertaken primarily because of the difficulties arising over boundaries under the peculiar Montana laws and to effect economies in management.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 5.—People's Gas broke sharply on the local Stock Exchange to-day in sympathy with the decline in the New York market and on the election of Mayor Harrison, whose platform declared for a reduction in the price of gas in Chicago to 70 cents per thousand cubic feet, which compares with 85 cents net at the present time. The first sale on the local Exchange was made at 105. Illinois Brick was among the strongest features, with a rise of 1½. Commonwealth Edison was up a fraction. American Can preferred was another strong feature, and there were small gains in a number of other issues. Banking interests here heard that the National Biscuit Company Directors may declare an extra dividend at their meeting in May. It is believed that the amount will be 10 per cent., which would amount to around $3,000,000 on the outstanding common stock.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The wheat market showed a distinct change for the better and a strong advance in values. The improvement in the market was the result of a material change for the better in the foreign markets. The Northwest showed a very decided advance, and Minneapolis closed at about 2c advance compared with the final of Monday, taking May wheat as a basis. Winnipeg showed a gain of 1⅝c, Chicago a gain of 1⅛c, and New York a gain of 1⅛c. The strength abroad was credited to the development of a considerable increase in the Continental demand for wheat and some falling off in the volume of offerings from competing countries. There was good foreign buying of futures. Exporters were also buyers. It was estimated that the purchases of futures were easily 500,000 bushels, while shippers reported 12 loads of red wheat New York to Antwerp and 30 loads of Manitoba wheat at Winnipeg. The advance found the market generally oversold, and there was very active covering of shorts. The domestic news was very favorable. There were further general rains shown throughout the entire Winter wheat belt, while in the American and Canadian Northwest the map showed rain or snow throughout the entire Spring wheat area. The market has declined so much, however, that, with the development of an improved foreign tone, many operators were very willing to get off the bear side, temporarily at least. No. 2 red was quoted at 93½c; No. 1 Northern, $1.05; No. 2 hard Winter, 97c, and No. 1 Manitoba, $1.

CORN.—The corn market was also active and strong, advancing over 1c a bushel, and closed only a little under best prices. The advance in corn was very largely due to the recent weather conditions. The storm which has swept over the country has made the moving of corn very difficult, and as a result receipts have fallen off heavily this week. The cash situation has improved also. The market was also influenced by the strength in wheat. No. 2 corn was quoted at 53c, free on board; No. 3, 52½c; steamer, 51½c; No. 4, 49½c, all in elevator, export rate.

OATS.—The market was moderately active and firmer for oats. There was a fairly good demand shown, and prices were influenced to some extent by the strength in wheat and corn. The general rainstorm in the Central West and snowstorm in the Northwest have removed the question of moisture supply for the oat crop, and the situation in this respect is a very favorable one. Standards were quoted at 36½c; No. 2 white, 37c; No. 3 white, 36c.

PROVISIONS.—The market for hog products also showed a strong recovery. The market was influenced to some extent by the advance in grain, but the hog receipts were lighter than expected, and the report from stock yards showed a good demand. Product opened firmer and advanced with quite active covering of shorts in the afternoon.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market was less erratic during yesterday's session, with the volume of business smaller, and on the whole there was a steadier undertone in evidence. During the early part of the session scattered liquidation was observable, but on the small setback there was substantial inquiry noted from interests who have recently been identified on the bear side of the market. The improvement in lard at the West was not without effect and served to restrict selling, while it was intimated that there was a slight improvement in the consumptive demand. On the whole, however, underlying conditions are not greatly changed with consumers buying conservatively. There are some reports in circulation that foreigners are rejecting oil on slight pretexts, and while it is thought that these rejections may be warranted in some instances, the consensus of opinion is that were it not for the severe decline in prices this unfavorable feature would not have materialized as extensively as is noted. On the other hand, in proportion to the amount of export business that transpires the complaints are unimportant. Crude oil is quiet and steady at the South. Future quotations follow:

COTTON.

There was an absence of Tuesday's urgent demand during yesterday, and as news advices were not of a character to stimulate buying the tone of the market was generally heavy, particularly for the old crop options. Developments tended to indicate that the advance of the previous day was due mainly to short covering by interests who have been aggressively bearish, but who were disposed to even up commitments owing to their small amount of progress in working for the fall. The elimination of these shorts was used by some traders as a bearish argument, with the claim made that the technical position had been weakened, but nevertheless it indicates to a large extent the firmness of present holders. On the advance, however, offerings continue to increase, and the recollection that the sales against actual holdings at the South make their appearance around 14.60 for May doubtless tended to increase confidence among some sellers.

During the early trade there was a fair degree of firmness displayed on good Liverpool cables, which market continues to be favorably influenced by a fair demand for new crop months by the continent. Some authorities claim that new crop options abroad are relatively cheaper than at the American South, which would explain the existing demand to a large extent. In the local market the new crop months were also relatively steady, with buying by spot interests against sales of July on the basis of 150 points between that month and October. Weather advices continue favorable, but these are having little effect at the moment. During the course of the day there were additional reports of curtailment from mills in Alabama, and it is evident that outside sentiment is being affected by the uncertainty as to the probable Washington legislation and those unsatisfactory trade reports which factors continue to offset bullish statistics. Indications favor small into-sight movement for the week, which is quite natural for this time of the year, although on the other hand demand at the South has not been especially good. Spinners' takings, it is thought, will be in moderate volume, but as bullish figures have failed to stimulate interests recently the disposition is to act cautiously. Southern spot markets were unchanged to ⅛c advance. New York spot cotton quiet and unchanged from the previous close; middling uplands, 14.50.

COFFEE.

Coffee was narrow, with comparatively small price changes. The opening was 2 to 5 points higher, and later showed additional gains, but on the advance there was further selling, and last prices were about the low, net unchanged to 3 points higher. Business was 36,000 bags. Havre closed unchanged to ½ franc higher, while Hamburg showed an advance of ¼ pfennig. Rio was 25 reis and Santos 50 reis lower. The world's visible supply showed a decrease during March of 386,825 bags, compared with a decrease last year of 361,846; total was 12,960,728 bags, against 14,959,092 last year.

Spot coffee was quiet, with sales reported of 1,000 bags of Rio No. 7 at 12 1-16c. This sale apparently represented the total amount offered at that price, and at the close the market was quoted at 12⅛@12¼c.

STEEL PRODUCTION INCREASE

Great Gain in March Evidenced in Latest Statistics of the Trade.

That the steel trade has been holding its own despite the hesitancy in new business is evidenced in the statistics of pig iron production in March made public yesterday by The Iron Age.

After a Winter of curtailment at the furnaces production began to increase early in the year. In March the total output was 2,188,161 tons, or 70,586 tons a day, against 64,030 tons a day in February, and this sharp increase, The Iron Age points out, was due to the larger activity of the steel works plants in the face of a slight falling off in the production of the merchant furnaces.

There was a net gain of nine in the number of furnaces which were active at the end of March, as compared with the end of February, all of the increase being at the steel company plants. The steel works furnaces produced 48,970 tons a day last month, a gain of 6,621 over February, while the output of the merchant furnaces, 21,616 tons a day, was a falling off of 125 tons.

At the opening of April the capacity per day of the 231 furnaces in blast was 70,752 tons, against 66,562 tons a day for 222 furnaces on March 1. This puts production at the rate of 25,950,000 tons a year, which is a gain of 6,250,000 tons, as compared with that on Jan. 1, when production was at its low ebb.

Commenting on general conditions in the trade, The Iron Age says:

> Significant in connection with this large increase in production is the fact that since February 1 pig iron stocks at furnaces in the Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, and Wheeling districts have been reduced 57,000 tons, 45,000 tons of this being since March 1. More than 50,000 tons of this reduction was in merchant stocks. Alabama stocks, including those at steel works, were reduced about 40,000 tons last month.
>
> Finished material specifications show some falling off in most lines. Wire is an exception.
>
> The Harriman rail order is expected this week. Not more than 50,000 tons will be placed now, though the year's requirements have been put at 150,000 tons.
>
> The Steel Corporation is low bidder on 12,000 tons of steel for six Panama lock gates and a large drawbridge.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> Rail orders of the week were light, the principal lot being 5,350 tons for the Sandy Valley & Elk Horn Railway, in West Virginia, to the Carnegie Steel Company. The 15,000 tons for the Seaboard Air Line is expected to be rolled by Maryland mills.

INSURANCE MEN IN B. R. T.

Two Companies Which Are Big Stockholders Represented in Directorate.

Representatives of two insurance companies which are large holders of the shares of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company have been elected to the Directorate of that road, succeeding James McKeen, general counsel of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, and Edward Merritt, President of the Long Island Loan and Trust Company. Judge W. A. Day, Acting President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, and George E. Ide, President of the Home Life Insurance Company, are the two new Directors. The Equitable owns $466,810 par value of the Brooklyn City Railroad stock and the Home Life about $60,000 par value. The Mutual Life owns $1,247,000.

The dividend was reduced last June from 10 to 8 per cent. so that a fund might be accumulated against the possibility of the confirmation of the Brooklyn Heights Railroad's judgment against the company. The Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company, which is part of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, operates the Brooklyn City Railroad under lease for 999 years and pays dividends of 10 per cent. per annum on the stock.

New Directors for Isle Copper.

At the annual meeting of the Isle Royale Copper Company in Jersey City, yesterday, 93,292 shares were represented out of the total capitalization of 150,000 shares. These Directors were elected: R. L. Agassiz, F. L. Higginson, W. E. L. Dillaway, Quincy A. Shaw, and Charles N. King. Mr. Dillaway succeeded George A. Flagg.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.—During the morning the tone of the local market was generally somewhat depressed, particularly among the arbitrage issues. United States Steel and Reading were weak and Cambria Steel also sagged. Later, however, they hardened again, only to ease off at the close. But the whole day's fluctuations were devoid of significance. Asphalt preferred fell a point on an odd-lot offering. On the other hand, United Gas Improvement and Lehigh Navigation were firm. The tractions were dull and irregular.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Million Dollar Deal Involving Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street Corner for Business Building—Hebrew Asylum Sells Washington Heights Property—Bronx Block Front Sold—Syndicate Secures Old Bonner Farm.

Robert E. Dowling, who has contributed to the activity of the real estate market by some large downtown deals recently, figured in another important transaction in the upper Fifth Avenue commercial section yesterday. He sold the 50-foot corner of the famous Langham Hotel site on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street, and the site is to be improved at once with a high-class commercial structure. The brokers in the deal, which represents a financial consideration of about $1,100,000, at which the plot was held, were the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company. The buyer is a client of the firm, but is said to be the same purchaser who bought from Mr. Dowling a few days ago the southwest corner of Broadway and Dey Street, which Mr. Dowling lately improved with a six-story structure. The same brokers have negotiated an eighty-four years' lease for the buyer to a tenant, who will erect a fireproof commercial building, probably not over eight stories high, and which will be designed so as to contribute to the architectural adornment of the avenue.

The plot has an interesting history, as it was acquired several years ago by the Vanderbilts and William D. Sloane for the purpose of protecting the residential character of the avenue. At one time it was reported that William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., was to build his new house on the corner, but he eventually built on the opposite block, adjoining the residence of his father, on the northwest corner of Fifty-second Street. The corner just sold was then bought by the late Edward H. Harriman, having been previously owned by James H. Smith and Frederick G. Bourne. Mr. Harriman did not deem the situation favorable for an expensive residence, and bought further north on the avenue. The rapid invasion of business north of Forty-second Street led the Harriman and Sloane interests, the northern part of the plot being owned by William D. Sloane, to cancel the restrictions they had placed on the property, and last July Mr. Dowling bought the entire plot, 115 feet on Fifth Avenue and 130 feet on the street, at a price reported to be $1,750,000.

The plot that Mr. Dowling has sold is the 50-foot corner parcel, running back on Fifty-second Street, 115 feet. A 15-foot reservation has been made so as to give an entrance to the remaining 65-foot parcel fronting on Fifth Avenue for the business building that will eventually be erected there.

Opposite the plot just sold, on the southeast corner, is Morton B. Plant's big house with the Union Club on the Fifty-first Street corner. On the west side of the avenue, opposite, are the homes of the two W. K. Vanderbilt's, with the Gallatin house on the Fifty-third Street corner, recently converted into a business house, and the two double Vanderbilt houses occupy the block between Fifty-first and Fifty-second Streets, the lower one of which is leased by Henry C. Frick.

Hebrew Asylum Block Front Sold.

Negotiations, which have been in progress for some time have finally resulted in the sale of the valuable block front owned by the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society on the west side of Broadway, between 150th and 151st Streets. The plot occupies a choice situation in the upper Washington Heights section, which has been so largely built up in recent years with high-class apartment houses. There are about eighteen city lots in the plot, which has a frontage of 199.10 feet on Broadway and 225 feet on each street. A four-story asylum building covers a large part of the plot.

The buyers are a syndicate composed of A. L. Mordecai & Son, Heilner & Wolf, and Daniel B. Freedman, all of whom have been active operators in different parts of the city. The Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society will retain the use of the property until May, 1912, when the asylum will move to its new home at Pleasantville, N. Y., where several acres were purchased over a year ago, and new buildings with vastly improved facilities are being erected. The brokers in the present deal were L. J. Phillips & Co. The property has been held at $400,000. The buyers own a plot of 75 feet, extending through the block adjoining their recent acquisition, thus giving them a total depth on each street of 300 feet. When the asylum moves the block will be improved with several large apartment houses.

Adolph Lewisohn is President of the society, and he with other members of his family have assisted it in many ways. The property was bought by the asylum eighteen years ago.

Franklin Pettit Buys West End Avenue Corner.

The southeast corner of Eighty-sixth Street and West End Avenue, 25.2 by 80, was purchased yesterday by Franklin Pettit. The lot, which is occupied by a four-story and basement dwelling, was owned by Agnes Lynch. It was held at about $75,000. Mr. Pettit recently acquired title to the adjoining houses, 528, 530, 532, and 534, and with yesterday's purchase controls a plot 102.2 by 80. It is understood that a ten-story apartment will be erected on the site. Leroy Coventry was the broker.

Another private dwelling sale in the same vicinity was that of 262 West Seventy-eighth Street, a five-story structure, on a plot 32 by 27.2 by 41.2 by irregular. The parcel was owned by Ada L. Shiland.

Construction Co. Buys on 51st Street.

The Janpole and Werner Construction Company has purchased from William P. Craig 247 West Fifty-first Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 15 by 100.5, about 145 feet east of Eighth Avenue.

Builders Buy Bronx Block Front.

The Friedman Construction Company has purchased from the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company the block front on the west side of St. John's Avenue, between Beck and Kelly Streets, a plot fronting 250 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on each street.

The buyer will break ground at once for the erection of three four-story apartment houses, 83.3 by 67 by 110.11. The broker, E. D. MacMannus, who negotiated the sale has also placed for the buyers a building and permanent loan of $182,500.

Bronx.

Clement H. Smith has sold for a client 2,700 Bainbridge Avenue, between 194th and 196th Streets, a two-family house on full lot.

Jean L. Miller has sold the premises at the southeast corner of 183d Street and Webster Avenue, known as 2,246, 2,248, and 2,250 Webster Avenue, two four-story apartment houses with stores on a plot 50 by 100.

The property was purchased by a client of E. A. Turner for an investment, the price being in the neighborhood of $50,000.

Mary Durand has sold through the Theo Realty Company 882 Southern Boulevard, a four-story flat on a plot 34 by 100.

Edward A. Schill has purchased from C. F. Stein, as executor of Michael J. Stein, the plot 50 by 216 on the north side of Houghton Avenue, running through to Ludlow Avenue, between Castle Hill and Havemeyer Avenue, Unionport.

W. L. Varian has sold for George D. Kingston for a client the brick dwelling at 2,985 Perry Avenue on a lot 20 by 115. It is one of a row of five similar houses recently completed.

Brooklyn.

Friday & Lehmann have sold 990 Flatbush Avenue, a three-story brick store property, for Philip H. Freund to a client; also a lot 25 by 100 on the northerly side of Bainbridge Street, 100 feet westerly from Howard Avenue, for William V. Young to a builder; 24 Schaeffer Street, a three-story double frame flat, for Mary K. Davis to an investor and an irregular parcel on the southerly side of Sumpter Street, 80 feet easterly from Stone Avenue, for Mary F. Bradford to an investor.

L. J. Smith, Vice President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, has bought from Edward J. McGuire the last of the row of six dwellings erected by him several months ago on St. Mark's Avenue, between Kingston and Brooklyn Avenues. The house is three stories high, and measures 18.4 by 70 feet.

Burrill Brothers have sold the three-story American basement brick and stone private house on lot 19 by 95 feet at 584 Third Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, for the Morgan Realty and Construction Company to a client for occupancy.

Big Hotel Lease in Brooklyn.

The John H. Fife Company has leased the Harbor View Hotel at 62 Montague Street, a ten-story building on lot 50 by 100, containing 152 rooms, for the Securities Company of Brooklyn to Charles A. Swan for a term of fifteen years at an aggregate rental of over $225,000. Mr. Swan was formerly proprietor of the Criterion Hotel, New York; the Butterfield at Utica, and the Weddell House at Cleveland.

Syndicate Buys Robert Bonner Place.

The famous Robert Bonner place at Mamaroneck on Long Island Sound has been purchased by a syndicate in which Andrew J. Connick, Max Marx, and several other well-known realty operators are interested.

The property consists of about 118 acres of land, and has a large mansion, besides numerous cottages and outbuildings.

It lies between the Post Road and Sound, and is one of the handsomest estates along the Sound.

The property has been held at about $300,000. George R. Read & Co. negotiated the sale.

Newark.

Henry J. Berry has sold for James H. Cruikshank and William D. Kilpatrick to Nathan H. Berger, 14 and 20½ East Kinney Street, Newark, N. J., two dwellings on plot 20 by 60 each. These two dwellings, as well as the dwelling now occupying the northeast corner of Broad and Kinney Streets, Newark, N. J., were recently taken as part payment for the southeast corner of Morton and Greenwich Streets, a new eight-story and basement fireproof building, leased to the General Electric Company and now owned by Gen. Edward P. Meany.

Suburban.

Burke Stone has sold for Theodore M. Bullinger a ten-room house on McIntyre Street, Armour Villa Park, Yonkers, to David Lamb.

The James Jay Smith Company has sold its property at Boscobell, Crugers, N. Y., a plot fronting on the river, to Dallas Welford, who will construct a bungalow.

New Loft Building on West 27th St.

Maximilian Zipkes has been commissioned by Louis Levy, the owner of 135 and 137 West Twenty-seventh Street, to draw plans and specifications for a twelve-story loft building. The demolishing of the buildings now on the premises will begin at once.

Madison Av. Apartment Foreclosure.

As the result of foreclosure proceedings brought by the Fort Amsterdam Realty Company against the Saint Catherine Corporation, the sale of the Saint Catherine apartment at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Fifty-third Street has been advertised to take place at the Vesey Street salesroom on Thursday, April 27, by ex-Judge William A. Keener, as referee. It is an eight-story apartment with stores, the upper portion of which was recently remodeled for physicians' quarters, on lot 47.9 by 100.5. The amount due on the judgment is about $260,000. Herbert A. Sherman will act as auctioneer.

New Church on Blackwell's Island.

Plans have been filed for the erection of a one-story church and rectory for the Roman Catholic Church of the Sacred Heart, on the East Driveway of Blackwell's Island, opposite East Seventy-fourth Street. It will be built of the trap rock from the quarry on the island, and will be in the old Gothic style of architecture, with a frontage of 47.10 feet and a depth of 141.8 feet. The cost of the church will be $30,000.

Notes.

Justice Newberger has appointed Henry Brady receiver of the rents of premises 335 and 337 East Twentieth Street, pending foreclosure of a mortgage.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company reports that its sale of mortgage certificates for the month of March was six times as large this year as in 1910. As a large number of these certificates are sold outside of New York City they are the means of bringing to New York for investment in real estate mortgages money which would not otherwise have been available for this purpose.

Harry Tobin is the purchaser of the four-story dwelling 28 West Thirty-second Street, sold several weeks ago by the Kennedy estate.

L. J. Phillips & Co., in conjunction with William F. Lalor were the brokers in the sale of the residence at 888 Park Avenue, reported yesterday.

Corn & Co. negotiated the lease of the building at 216 West Forty-second Street, for Klein & Jackson.

LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET

WE HAVE RAISED $60,000 for a development proposition on the North Shore of Long Island and want to interest in the same parties with $10,000 to $20,000. We are experienced developers, know the business thoroughly, are just completing a successful development in this same section, have developed one of the best sales forces in the city, and are now doing a large volume of business. We are investing a large amount of our own cash in this proposition. The profits are not guesswork—we know what we have done in a poor market and base our estimates thereon. If you are in the market for an investment, investigate this proposition. Everything is absolutely open and above board. We will answer all your questions frankly. Sharp, shrewd business men have taken this up after a thorough investigation of its soundness, our integrity, honesty and ability. Profits are large, conservatively estimated at 150%; there is security for your money and we can show you that we are actually doing the business. For evident reasons we cannot sign our name to this advertisement. We ask brokers and meddlers not to answer it, as under no circumstances will we take the matter up with them. C 231 Times Downtown.

RAINY DAISIES CHEER UP.

Dr. Wheeler Gives Them Some Good News About Low-Cut Gowns.

It was too rainy for the Rainy Day Club to have much of a meeting at its regular social day at the Hotel Astor yesterday, but the members who did get out went home happy to think that any number of things that they had thought hygienically sinful they can do now with a clear conscience. Dr. Claude L. Wheeler, associate editor of The New York Medical Journal, gave them the cheerful tidings.

"The woman who wears a gown cut low at the throat," began Dr. Wheeler—and every woman in the room immediately pulled up her furs—"is following a very sensible fashion," he went on, and every woman immediately dropped her furs, for there was not a high-cut frock in the room. "There is nothing which so strengthens the throat," he continued, "as to give it plenty of light, freedom, and fresh air."

Then he began to speak on the subject of corsets, and every woman's face wore a consciously unconscious expression and something like a long-drawn sigh passed through the room as every one drew a long breath to show how completely unrestrained her breathing apparatus was. But Dr. Wheeler had nothing to say even against the corset. The modern one, he says, is quite a different thing from the old-time one. It is not only not hurtful as a rule, but frequently beneficial. The women drew natural breaths then and smiled happily.

A Garland for the Want Columns of The Times

MARLBOROUGH HOTEL,
Cor. Arlington Ave. and William St.,
East Orange, N. J.,
New York, March 28, 1911.

The New York Times:—

Convincing results compel me to admit that our big advertisement published every day under "Boarders Wanted" has caused us to concentrate in The New York Times all our advertising under this classification. Our tabulated card record shows results of two to one over your nearest newspaper competitor. The character of the callers also ranks high, and the majority mean business. Many who call on the undersigned at our New York renting office, No. 303 Fifth Avenue, say: "Unless we had read your advertisement in The Times we would not have believed one could get such accommodations in a first-class hotel at such prices." We send this unsolicited statement in simple justice to the aid you have been in usually keeping the Elmwood and Marlborough Hotels filled with desirable guests.

Very truly yours,
V. K. GARLAND,
Manager New York Renting Office.

CRIME WAVE HITS CALDWELL, N.J., HARD

Discriminating Burglars Break Into a Round Dozen Houses and Help Themselves.

TOWN MARSHALS EXPLAIN

That Is to Say, Two of the Three Tell How It Was—The Other Slept Through It All.

Caldwell, N. J., has been hit by the wave of crime which, while it appears to have receded or swept on, perhaps, to other parts, has left the populace in a state of unwonted excitement, so that the agitated commuters yesterday morning had enough to talk about to last till the train reached Hoboken. The wave reached the village in the early and treacherous hours of Tuesday morning, when it took the unpleasant form of a round dozen of burglaries.

Twelve Caldwell homes were burglariously entered and the lower floors ransacked. If you imagine that that amounts to about every other house in the village you had better not say so in Caldwell. Please understand that the place has 3,000 inhabitants, three marshals, (very much excited just now,) and a history. Although many things have happened before in Caldwell, it was admitted yesterday that not since Grover Cleveland was born there has there been any event of quite the importance that attaches to the arrival of the wave of crime.

No trace of the burglars has been found, and the marshals confess that they have no clues to their identities, and while Prosecutor Mott of Essex County sent out Detective Wymer to look over the scene of the depredations, the authorities have taken no definite action, and are doing nothing at present except keep an eye on the Newark pawnshops.

It was not quite the same care-free Caldwell that took to its bed last night and Tuesday night, and several of the best people vowed they hadn't slept a wink since the news of the burglaries spread through the village. Marshal Jackson was asked if it had had the effect of making the people over whose peace he guards more cautious in the matter of protecting their homes in the still of the night.

"Not a mite," he said, and then laughed. "Well," he said, "my wife didn't go to bed last night without a chair shoved under every doorknob."

Escaped His Eagle Eye.

The amount of the loss sustained in all twelve houses was variously estimated yesterday from $50 all the way to $400. It was Marshal Harkey who gave the lower figure, but then he is showing a marked tendency to belittle the whole affair. It is Harkey who serves as Caldwell's night watchman, receiving $600 a year from the borough and something from the residents of Bloomingdale Avenue, the course of his nightly march. He marched on Monday night, as usual, but the burglars were so clever that they escaped his eagle eye at every point, and did not appear to find him an inconvenience.

"The place was never more perfectly policed," said Harkey yesterday. "If people will go to bed leaving their doors and windows unlocked, what can they expect? If they don't take decent care of their own things, whose fault is it? Theirs. That's what I say. Yes, Sir. Why, they said that Hoffman's dog was chloroformed, but he appeared pretty spry to me when I went to see the place first thing in the morning. Charley Hoffman—he's a retired farmer, you know—well, he said his safe was opened by some one who knew the combination, but [he whispered in the reporter's ear] if you want my opinion, he forgot to lock it last time he used it. Yes, Sir."

Rumor had it that Special Officer Elsolt of Essex Fells had telephoned over sarcastically to offer his assistance to the Caldwell authorities. Harkey was sounded on that.

"I believe he did," he said stiffly, "but I refused to go to the telephone. [Here Marshal Jackson chuckled and confided to the reporter that there was some professional jealousy in the air.] No, Sir, I wanted none of his help. I tell you that there has been more trouble in Essex Fells since they have had a special officer than when they were satisfied to do without. It is my opinion that the burglars had at least one man among them who knew the houses and knew the town. You will notice that they selected the places where I wasn't apt to be."

Here Jackson took the reporter aside and explained that even if Harkey had run across the men he couldn't have bothered them much, being disabled ever since he shot himself in the hand some days ago.

He Needed the Sleep.

Marshal Corter could not be found to discuss the burglaries. Mrs. Corter was one of the few who were awakened by the sounds of marauding. It was going on in the next house, and she shook her husband out of a deep sleep to confide her fears to him. He rolled over and went to sleep again, so that he had bery little first-hand testimony to offer.

Several other people heard things early Tuesday morning. Mrs. M. A. Putnam [her husband is the butcher] was awakened by the sound of people moving downstairs. She went to investigate, and as she reached the kitchen she saw a matchlight go out. Then it came over her, all of a sudden like, that same one was standing right beside her, and she turned and went upstairs again to arouse the men folk. When they charged the kitchen it was empty, but the window was open and some silver and $20 in cash had gone that way.

Mrs. Lyle Bush, who lives in Gould Place, heard the burglars on the floor below her, and lighted the light to show that she was awake and afriad of nobody. She was afraid to call out, however, and the burglars were afraid to leave just then, for a van had driven up to the house next door for its part in an all-night moving. This delicate situation lasted nearly an hour, [quite an hour, Mrs. Bush said,] and then the burglars went away. They took nothing with them.

It was one of the strange things that in some houses nothing was touched, and in most of them nothing but money. From only a few houses was the table silver taken. Marshal Herkey thought it very queer.

"Now, in that yellow house in Elizabeth Street," he said, "where the new folks live, they never touched the china closet, and it seemed to me to be up-to-date silver and cut glass."

This last remark might have been inspired by the dark hints on the part of some of the Caldwell women that the burglars were discriminating in leaving the silver in some cases because it wasn't really silver. This suggestion was only whispered. Of course, where a woman's china closet was unmolested, you just congratulated her. But some of the Caldwell women had their own ideas on the subject.

Sartorial Discrimination.

There seems to have been some discrimination in the matter of overcoats, for Hoffman's was taken only as far as A. P. Clark's back yard, where it was dropped with the money in the change pocket undisturbed. At that point young Clark's overcoat was taken in its place. Will Clark is away at college somewhere.

There was a division of opinion as to whether the burglaries were professional work or just home talent. Marshal Jackson is for the former and Harkey for the latter theory. But what about that jimmy that was found in a yard in Gould Avenue? It was just a screwdriver, said Harkey with fine scorn. The Newark detectives were of the opinion that the burglaries were the work of amateurs, with an unlatched window tempting some acquisitive persons, who carried a soap-box to make the illegal entries easier. Of course that isn't as exciting, but then there were twelve in one night, and that is more than has ever happened in Verona or Essex Fells.

WIFE AIDED HIS CAPTURE.

C. B. Kelsey, Alleged Defaulter, Returned from Havana with Woman.

Using his wife as an ally, Detectives Wilbur and Talto of the Central Office yesterday arrested Charles B. Kelsey, 38 years old, a former assistant cashier for the Hartford Life Insurance Company. A circular was issued by Chief of Police William P. Gunn of Hartford on Jan. 21, describing Kelsey as a fugitive from justice, and stating that he was wanted for embezzling $1,000. The detectives say that the total defalcation is more than $7,000. Kelsey is said to have admitted his guilt.

Kelsey told the detectives, they say, that when he fled from Hartford he took with him a married woman. Then went to Havana, thence to New Orleans, and then by a circuitous route came to New York. They registered at the Hotel Martinique on Tuesday under the name of Kenneth.

While Kelsey was in New Orleans he sent a photograph to his wife and she gave it to the Hartford detectives. After he arrived here Mrs. Kelsey telegraphed to him to meet her at the Grand Union Hotel. She came to New York and registered there. Kelsey called at the hotel yesterday afternoon. His wife, after greeting him, suggested a walk. The detectives followed them, and at Fortieth Street and Park Avenue placed Kelsey under arrest.

He asked the detectives to be allowed to go to the Hotel Martinique to get some wearing apparel, and they accompanied him thither. They found Kelsey's woman companion there, a striking brunette, probably about 40 years of age. She approached Kelsey, but he tried to avoid her. Then she put her arms around his neck and wept. He left her without saying good-bye and without explaining to her the cause of his trouble. Later, after she had learned that Kelsey was under arrest, she communicated with her husband at Hartford by telephone and asked his forgiveness. He said that he would come to New York and take her home.

MAXWELL ATTACKS THE GAYNOR CHARTER

ADVISES SIMPLE SPELLING

Doesn't Like It Personally, but Regards It as a Necessity and Asks Spelling Board to Prepare Primer.

Dr. William H. Maxwell, Superintendent of City Schools, speaking last night at the dinner of the Simplified Spelling Board, which brought to an end its annual meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria, expressed his feelings freely with regard to Mayor Gaynor's suggestions for the abolition of the present Board of Education. He had been expressing his approval of the introduction of simplified spelling in the public schools, and had said that if this reform was undertaken he had no doubt that it would gain general approval after a short time, as had other reforms.

"I should not advise, however," he went on, "that such an attempt be made to-day or to-morrow. Just at present the time is not opportune. Our public school system in this city is confronted by a great peril. Our Mayor has caused to be laid before the Legislature a new city charter. This Charter contains an educational chapter which resolutely turns its back upon the best educational experience of the last hundred years.

"It provides for a paid Board of Education instead of the voluntary service that has brought numbers of our foremost citizens to work for the public schools. It provides that this paid board of education shall be subject in all things to purely political Board of Estimate and Apportionment. It removes from professional teachers every vestige of initiative which they now possess to control educational methods or to start educational reforms, though it may be truly said that every educational reform has originated with those who have made teaching the business of their lives.

"And yet I do not feel alarmed, because I know that the people who are always sound at heart will not permit the schools that are theirs to be permanently disabled. For a time, it may be, we shall have to make a desperate fight to hold the ground we have gained, but I have no fear for the final issue. When that fight has been fought and won, then will be the time to strike for the next great reform in school work—the teaching of simplified spelling."

The Superintendent's advocacy of simplified spelling was introduced by the remark that he personally hated the suggested forms of words. "I abominate 'thru' for 'through,'" he said, "and I dislike to say that any one has 'past' an examination."

Nevertheless, he declared himself in favor of introducing the simplified forms because of the enormous numbers of foreigners in the public schools, and the fact that they have to learn English as a foreign language. It was of all things important, he contended, that they should learn how to read as quickly as possible, in order that they might become thinking American citizens, and he reckoned that if the simple forms were introduced it would mean that every one of the 700,000 children under the Board of Education would save a year and would be two grades further advanced with all that that implied in mental and reasoning power by the time they had to go out to earn their own living.

Dr. Maxwell concluded by asking the society to set itself to produce a textbook which would be ready for the schools by the time they were prepared to take up the new forms of spelling. No doubt, he said, there would be scoffers who would laugh at so learned a society producing a mere primer, and yet the primer was the chief pillar of our modern civilization.

William Archer, the English critic, represented at the dinner the British Simple Spelling Society, and regretted that he could not report any active propaganda in the past year. "There are two chief faults in the old spelling," he said, "superfluity and incongruity. It is easy to deal with the superfluities, but you cannot raise much enthusiasm over their abolition.

"We must get at the inconsistencies, and I believe that as soon as we can reach a scheme by which the labor of education shall be reduced for the children, we shall have plenty of enthusiasm. Then our proposals will contain a real good for humanity, at least for the English speaking races, and they are not so far short of humanity. We must admit that we shall have to alter the look of the language, and that will be only accepted if thereby we introduce some rule, which is really valuable and rational."

Mr. Archer believed that within a decade great progress would be made in simplifying spelling, and that in his own lifetime, though he could not hope to see the death of the present irrational system, he would at least see its general condemnation.

Dr. Elmer E. Brown and Hudson Maxim also spoke, the latter maintaining that as some words not only express ideas but impress them by their tone-colors, the simple spelling would be of a greater value to the human race by making the printed page carry on this function of language, which it could not do under present conditions. In the absence of Andrew Carnegie, the founder of the Spelling Board, the chair was taken by Dr. Andrew D. White of Cornell.

At the business sessions, among the papers read was one by Dr. Melvil Dewey, who suggested that all changes recommended by the board should coincide with the new "key alfabet" which the National Education Association is preparing. Officers were elected for the coming year, and William Archer was installed as Vice President in place of the late Dr. Frederick J. Furnivall.

The new officers were: President, Thomas R. Lounsbury, Yale; Vice Presidents, Andrew Carnegie, Thomas Wentworth Higginson, David Starr Jordan, Alexander H. McKay, Francis A. March, Homer H. Sebrley, and Andrew D. White; Secretary, Charles P. G. Scott, New York; Treasurer, Charles E. Sprague, New York.

TO HONOR CHARLES DICKENS.

World-Wide Celebration Planned for Hundredth Anniversary of His Birth.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 5.—The hundredth anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens is to be recognized by a world-wide celebration, and Boston is taking a leading part in the plans. Boston was Dickens's place of landing on his first American tour.

H. Snowden Ward of London, writer and lecturer, said to-night: "The Twentieth Century Club, St. Botolph Club, Art Club, Authors' Club, and the Press Club, members of the Faculties of Harvard and Wellesley and other institutions, were desirous of taking part in some adequate celebration in Boston.

"Other cities to join in the movement are New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Grand Rapids, and Toronto.

"Boston probably contains more citizens who knew Dickens than any other city in America; it has at least two of his hostesses among its society women; it has the oldest and one of the most active Dickens societies—the All-Around Dickens Club."

Asked as to the nature of the proposed celebration for next year, Mr. Ward said that a special Centenary Committee of the Dickens Fellowship had been sitting for some time in London, and would suggest a general programme very soon. Meanwhile, it seems desirable that some effort should be made to call together a small, but influential, Advisory Committee (perhaps by nomination from the principal literary clubs and societies and other interested institutions) to consider various schemes and to prevent clashing. A banquet had been proposed, to which all those who had met Dickens should be specially invited, and as the All-Around Dickens Club had been in the habit of arranging a banquet on the birthday, perhaps that body might be induced to take the lead in arranging a more public gathering, on a larger scale.

Hope for Henry F. Dimock Abandoned.

Henry F. Dimock, who is suffering from a stroke of paralysis at his home, 25 East Sixtieth Street, was reported last night by his physician, Dr. W. Gilman Thompson, to be unconscious still. Dr. Thompson said the end might come at any minute, and that all hope for the patient had been abandoned.

Fifty Years of Success
IN April, 1861, our business was founded by the late Henry Behning at 196 Bleecker Street. Since then BEHNING PIANOS and PLAYER-PIANOS have been sold to the public, through dealers, in the principal cities throughout the United States, where they are the universal favorites.
NO finer or more durable Pianos or Player-Pianos have ever been built. Every detail delights and satisfies the most particular artist. The ownership of a BEHNING will give you life-long satisfaction. Recently we opened our own factory-warerooms at 295 Fifth Avenue.
And On This Special Occasion We Will Celebrate With a SEMI-CENTENNIAL SALE OF 50 Behning Pianos and Player-Pianos
AT REDUCTIONS RANGING FROM $50.00 TO $150.00
This is an exceptional event. Never before has such a superb stock of HIGH-GRADE Pianos and Player-Pianos been offered to the music-loving public of Manhattan and vicinity at such extraordinary low prices. Liberal allowance made for pianos taken in exchange. Very convenient terms.
Every instrument is personally supervised before it leaves our factory. [illegible]
Several new Mahogany Upright Pianos, of other makes, value $350.00; Semi-Centennial Sale Price $185.00
